Franklin county, headed by a negro band, arrived in the midst of the serenade and made a noisy contribution.

Place on Commission

J. K. Kazar of Bloomington, Illinois, was spokesman for the salesmen. He declared the Harding and Coolidge League Traveling Men's League would bend its efforts everywhere toward Republican victory. He also suggested that a representative of the traveling salesmen should hold membership on the Interstate Commerce Commission. In reply the senator said the salesmen "ought to be represented" in the federal government, as they are an important factor in industrial life.

Senator Harding also had short talks with Senator Hale of Maine, Representative Kahn of California, and Maurice Connelly, former Democratic representative from Iowa.

Mr. Kahn, who is chairman of the House military committee, said he had only stopped over a few minutes on his way East to make campaign speeches for Harding and Coolidge. He predicted that California would go Republican by 200,000.

The proposed meeting is in the nature of a get-together meeting to discuss past accomplishments and to lay plans whereby a maximum of highway development may be had between valley and coast. Highway Commissioner Whitmore has promised to be in attendance, and in addition to the officers and executive committee, a large gathering is promised. # New York Shows Big Gain in Autos

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—More automobile licenses were issued in the New York city district between February 1 and August 1 than during all twelve months of 1919, according to E. P. Redmond, chief of the State Department automobile bureau. There were 201,066 passenger car licenses obtained in 1920, 65,000 commercial car licenses, and 1100 licenses for trailers. In 1919, 181,227 passenger car licenses were secured, 52,821 for commercial cars and 992 for trailers. Because the total number of license plates given out by the State Department automobile bureau is now in the hundred thousand, a letter with number system had to be adopted for car tagging.

DEMAND JAPAN QUIT FAR EAST SIBERIA

Russians Seek Constituent Assembly as Way to Peace

TOKYO, Sept. 15.—(By Mail)—The evacuation of Far Eastern Siberia by the Japanese and the convocation of a constituent assembly are given as the two basic conditions to peace and order in the Far Eastern provinces of Siberia by a declaration addressed to the Japanese people by the Verkhne-Udinsk government and printed recently in all the Russian papers at Vladivostok. The declaration is signed by Mr. Chervonny, minister for foreign affairs of the Far Eastern Republic.

The reason why evacuation by the Japanese army is declared necessary is that it has been the support of the reactionary forces under Ataman Semenoff, "international adventurer" who has been the main obstacle to the carrying out of the people's will.

The declaration says in part:

"All who hold to their hearts the interests of peace and the welfare of the peoples of the Far East, who not only in mere phrases but in reality, wish to free the population of the Far East from the clutches of poverty, violence and privation, into which they have been thrown by Ataman Semenoff and General Horvath, as well as all others who have supported these international adventurers in their uprisings against the people's will and independence—all, even persons, cannot but agree with the rightful desires of the toiling people of the Far Eastern Republic to maintain the freedom, independence and sovereignty of their state.

"The peace and order of the Far East can only be maintained on the basis of orderly government. Only under such a regime can the people return to peaceful labor and their blood cease to flow in continuous civil war.

"As the basis for the independence of the Far East, we place the principle of the unity of the Far Eastern provinces—Transbaikalia and Kamchatka, Amur, the Maritime Province, and Saghalien. All of these must be united in a Far Eastern Republic, headed by a government which has political and economic authority."

TEXAS COWBOY RUNS ARGENTINE MISSION

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 27.—(By Mail.)—On a street in Buenos Aires which might be called the backwash of the world, judging from the [illegible] derelicts cast up from every stream and every land, a North American cowpuncher of the old West is conducting a rescue mission where hungry children are fed and tired souls are comforted. He is John Calvert de Bohun, who says he "was born on the [illegible] deck of a [illegible] to New Mexico."

Cowboy, jockey, wanderer, and finally ordained minister, Bohun's life has been such as to make him one with the derelicts that drift into his mission, as he tells his story, and his redemption to bodily and spiritual health is paralleled to that of many of his people. There was a time, he says, when American whisky was no longer strong enough for him, so that he satisfied his appetite with Chinese whisky, which is like drinking mixed turpentine and banana oil.

But through the years came glimpses to him of something better. A touch of remorse in Australia, a good example in Europe, the sight of a woman who reminded him of one "he used to know," the influence of Father Damien, who gave his life to the lepers of Hawaii and who was so loved that there was scarcely a dry eye in grog shop or ship's cabin from Manila to Melbourne when he died. Such things made him wonder. And finally, worn and world-weary, when he drifted back to that New Mexico from which he had started and found "Tom the Devil" preaching instead of running the old gambling game, and later saw other fellows in his steps, Bohun says that the light came to him. He became a minister.

Bohun's mission is located in a building something in appearance like San Antonio's Alamo, and with a history as eventful as those who repair to it. Built for a Masonic lodge many years ago, it has been variously dance hall, gambling house, headquarters of the Black Hand in Argentina, and is now a combination church, school, orphan's home and first aid to the morally injured.

In the room where once women and men drank and danced, now there are religious services in Spanish, and between times children, seldom less than 100 of them, at lunch or supper.

When Bohun talks with a visitor, particularly with an American who knows the West, his references to his [illegible] are sprinkled with spontaneous tales of [illegible] and hard shooting men of [illegible] John Wesley Harding, for instance, the [illegible] gambler of [illegible], who, he says, had killed [illegible] men, but was every inch a gentleman and always killed with regret; of Calamity Jane, whose history was bound up with the fight between law and thieves as they were that desolated Tombstone, Arizona; of Moreno, king of cattle thieves; of Wild Bill Hickok, who met his end at Dodge City; and of many more who made the West a place of romance. Minister though he is, he is still a cowboy bent on getting his herd safe into the final roundup.

A Furniture Exhibition at Our Store for Fair Week Visitors

For the benefit of visitors from out of town, and for residents who may feel that Fair Week gives them some time to spare, we are making a special exhibition of home furnishings—showing all the newest and most correct ideas in furnishings, draperies, carpets, and the small art objects that go to make a home more livable.

You are especially invited at this time to come and see what is being shown in these lines. You will find much to interest you in the four floors that are given over to the display. If you are planning to refurnish your home, this will give you an opportunity to make a leisurely inspection.

Our Stocks Were Never More Complete

We have made an extra effort to have our stocks not only normal but so complete that practically every desirable style of furniture is represented, and we feel that never before have we had so complete or so attractive a showing to offer you. In all departments this is the case, so that no matter what your particular interest may be, you will find that we can offer you a showing that will more than please you.

We have set aside a certain portion of our store in which to display our art objects and those other "extra" pieces of furniture and furnishings that add so much to the attractiveness of a home. These are the floor and table lamps, the tea wagons, the console tables, etc., without which no home is quite complete.

New Draperies

And we have also a complete drapery service, by which we mean that you are at liberty to consult with us about your drapery problem, and we will give you expert advice—as well as taking charge of the entire work if you so desire.

FORTUNATELY NO DRY CANDIDAT

It will be fortunate if the ruling of Secretary of State Jordan and Attorney-General Webb is sustained, and the name of James S. Edwards, nominated by the Prohibition state committee as candidate for United States Senator is kept off the ballot. There is no unfairness to the Prohibitionists in this, since the Prohibitionist voters refused to make a nomination, either by primary or by petition, and the ruling merely prevents the committee from foisting on them a nomination which they declined to make. And there will be a very definite advantage to the dry cause.

For the one big dry fight in California at this time is t opass the Harris bill, now submitted to the voters on referendum. Any diversion of energies or interest to anything else will only jeopardize that effort, without accomplishing anything else worth while. A Prohibitionist candidate for United States Senator could not be elected, and if the diversion of votes to him were to elect one wet Senator instead of the other, nothing would have happened to affect the question either way. But the passage or defeat of the Harris law may affect it very positively, even in the Senate. Whoever is elected Senator from California is going to be wet in his personal views. If the Harris law is defeated, Senator Phelan or Senator Shortridge will take that as a permission from the people of California to follow his personal preferences. If the Harris law is passed, either of them will take it as a mandate from the people of California to sustain the Volstead act unchanged. So even on the senatorship, the people of California can vote themselves a wet or a dry Senator by their vote on the Harris law. They could not do so by their vote on a third party candidate, and they might jeopardize their cause by an attempt to do so. We do not care how a Senator thinks or feels on this question. What we care for is how he votes. And our Senators will vote the way we vote; never doubt that.

So the issue is fortunately cleared and all concentrated where it ought to be, on the Harris law. And that issue, fortunately, is no longer one merely of wet or dry. It is an issue of law-enforcement or of law-evasion. There ought to be at least 100,000 Californians who would not vote for a dry law, if wet or dry were the issue, who will vote for the Harris law, because law or lawlessness is the issue.

COMMUNITY PROPERTY ACT SOUN

It is reported that the state bar association, after discussing the community property law, agreed to recommend to the next legislature certain changes in it, and by inference not to oppose its ratification by the people o nthe present referendum. It was agreed that on the death of the husband without a will, the entire property should go to the wife, but it was to be proposed that the husband should have the unlimited right to dispose by will of his half of the community property, without the wife's consent. To this there can be no objection, provided the wife is given a similar right, as to her half. This was, in fact, the Senate bill, which was afterwards compromised with the Assembly so as to increase the wife's testamentary rights, and to reduce those of the husband to the same terms. The present law is that the husband has unlimited right to dispose of his half, and the wife no right at all to dispose of her half by will. The bill as passed at least restored the principle of equality. If the same principle can be continued by the next legislature, so as to give both parties equal and unlimited rights to dispose of their respective halves, so much the better.

However, the very proposal illustrates the most important point in connection with the present referendum. There are only two classes of arguments against the community property law. One is against the community property principle itself and i nfavor, instead, of the common-law principle of dower rights. There can be no objection to that, provided it is proposed to change our whole system to the common-law system. But if we are to have the community property system we should live up to it in its own spirit and consistently with itself. All the other arguments are directed to details of administration under the law as proposed. Most of these objections could be shown to be groundless, but it is not necessary to do so. It is a sufficient answer to say that these objections should be directed to the legislature and not to the people. If a legislative act is sustained on referendum it still remains a mere legislative act, and can be amended by any succeeding legislature just as if there had never been a referendum. The people should therefore vote "Yes" to sustain the general principle of the community property act, and then, if there are sound criticisms of any of its details (most of those actually made are transparently unsound) the legislature which meets only a month after the law would go into effect can take them up.

DIPLOMACY-PROOF

It is an advantage as well as a disadvantage of direct legislation that it removes international matters from the sphere of diplomacy. The disadvantage is that the people may do things which the diplomats would rather not have them do, and which it might be better for international peace for them not to do. The advantage is that if things are going to be done, there is a certain finality about doing them by direct vote that leaves nothing to dispute over. Unless the action is extreme enough to justify war, there is nothing else to do about it.

California has been particularly successful in making its Japanese relations diplomacy-proof. The original alien land law has been the subject of discussion for eight years, and no Japanese diplomat has been able to find any objection to it that he could press with good face. The law expressly guaranteed to Japanese in America all the rights they held by treaty, and all the rights that Americans had in Japan. This is not what the Japanese wanted, but it was all that they could with good face demand. The real situation is one-sided, but the formal situation is two-sided, and it is with forms that diplomats deal. The reason the Japanese will not sell land to us is the quite inoffensive one that they have no land to spare and need it all for themselves. The reason we will not sell land to them is that, while we have plenty of land, and it is for sale, we do not want them and prefer to sell it to other sorts of people whom we do want. But the equality of form is perfect, and that makes it diplomacy-proof.

The proposed initiative measure has something of the same advantage. Unfortunate as it may be to pass am easure which will increase the difficulty of international relations without having a particle of practical effect on our home problem, if we are bound to do that thing, this is the way to do it. It is within our legal right, and when it is done there is no remedy. If a government was contemplating doing a thing which it had a legal right to do, but which it would be better for it not to do, negotiations would be proper to induce it to refrain from exercising that legal right, and if it refused there would be pretext fon offense. Even when California's state legislature has proposed to do things, Japanese diplomats in Washington have successfully urged Presidents and Secretaries of State to use influence to induce that action not to be taken. But when the people propose to do it there is no channel through which to protest to them and no possibility of their heeding that protest if made. And when they have done it, it is a finality. There is nothing left to discuss.

SHOULD HAVE FACED MUSIC

It is a pity that State Printer Telfer did not stay to face the music. If, as his many friends will prefer to think, he is personally innocent of the scandals charged in the conduct of his department, he had no right to resign in order to protect others. If women were appointed, during the legislative session, at the request of legislators, and if some of these earned their pay by debauchery with the legislators instead of by work in the office, that is a matter that ought to come out and a system that ought to be changed, no matter who is embarrassed by the exposure. If, on the other hand, the statet printer was a party to this system and its performances, he could not be much worse hurt by having these things proved than he is by resigning under fire when they are charged. If the problem of discipline in the office has become so difficult that in fairness to the service he ought not to undertake it further, that would justify announcing now that he would resign at the close of the investigation. But to resign before the investigation, in order to prevent it, will be taken by the public as a plea of guilty, which we trust is not justified, or else as a protection of others, which ought not to be.

INVITING REVOLUTION

The New York legislature only played into the hands of the Socialists by again excluding the reelected Socialist members. These Socialists do not care whether they serve in the legislature or not. Their avowed purpose is to use the membership, if they have it, only as an incidental medium of propaganda. Their exclusion serves as much better propaganda. They do not believe that the democratic right of the people to be represented in the legislature is worth anything, and they do charge that under the present system the people will never be permitted to exercise that right if they choose to use it against the will of the ruling classes. The New York legislature, by its action, has done its best to demonstrate that both of these charges are true. It has deprived these members and the more radical part of their constituents of nothing that they valued, but by depriving the democratic part of their constituencies of a right which they do value, it has helped to make radicals out of these democrats, and thereby injure dthe cause of democracy and helped the cause of radicalism in America.

The test of free speech is the liberty of utterance we grant to those who saythings we do not wish them to say. The test of a free press is the latitude we grant to the publications of which we disapprove. The test of the representative system is the right we concede to constituencies to choose representatives whom we think they ought not to have chosen, and to commit those representatives to principles that we think are wrong. If we are to have free speech, a free press and representative institutions as the safeguard against revolution, we should make them particularly available precisely to the revolutionists. To do otherwise is to invite revolution. To the extent of its ability, this is exactly what the New York Assembly has twice done.

Mendocino.—From a gentleman who has recently traveled thru this settlement in our country, we hear most favorable accounts concerning the business interests of that locality. He is fully convinced that the land is as valuable as that famous Mussel slough country, and says the Mendocino folk are ahead in the matter of irrigation. With the natural enterprise of the good people of Mendocino, and the facilities for irrigating so much valuable land, we feel confident that they will soon have the garden spot of the San Joaquin Valley.

PILGRIM TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION

The year 1920 is being specially honored by Americans, particularly in the New England states, as the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth Rock. The departure of the Pilgrims from England to Holland and from Holland to the United States has been extensively observed in those countries, and there have been a series of memorial events held in this country. The notable anniversary, that of the landing of the Mayflower, is still to be celebrated, on December 21. The illustration above shows a part of a parade at Provincetown, Mass., recently.

RUNNING A BOARDING HOUSE

We've gone out of the boarding house business. Maybe it's a good business when you know how to run it. But we didn't. We ran it not wisely, but too well.

We never had any complaints; but on the other hand we never took in any money. And in these days when butchers and grocers and vegetable men aren't exactly giving provisions away, it's difficult to make a profit in the boarding house business with everything going out and nothing coming in.

We didn't intend to embark on this enterprise, anyway, we got into it by accident. And we never knew just how far into it we were.

Sometimes we were feeding only three or four besides the family. Sometimes we have more than half dozen boarders. All in the pink of condition as far as their appetites were concerned.

If that had been all, we might still be catering to part of the neighborhood. But it wasn't all. When the lady who conducted the boarding house branch of our establishment, blushingly plighted her troth with one of the boarders, and began filling a hope chest with our potatoes and sugar and coffee and other edibles we made an investigation.

The result of the investigation opened our eyes. And we quit. It was one month ago that the boarding house manager came to us. She came in the guise of a cook. The first few meals convinced us that she was not a good cook.

But she was always a good provider. We can say that for her without fear of even attempted contradiction.

After she had been in town a couple of days she began making acquaintances. She had a marvelous faculty of making acquaintances. She must have had what is called personal magnetism, although she never revealed any of it when she was in our presence.

Her acquaintanceship presently ripened into friendships. And what can friendship do that is more fitting than to feed those upon whom it is lavished?

Well, she fed them. She began by feeding them tea. Tea was high at that particular time. Cream was bringing around thirty-five cents for a half pint. Sugar was not only high but unless you had friends in the wholesale business you couldn't get any of it at all.

But that didn't make any difference to Gladys. Nothing was too good for our guests—they were hers nominally, but our claim on them is based on the fact that we did the actual providing.

It wasn't any use to tell the milkman not to bring cream. Gladys got up earlier than we did, and had the last word with him. And he always did what she told him to.

None of us drink tea, but the grocery man brought it, and it went on the bill. As for sugar—well, Gladys the first day she came advised us to get a couple of hundred pounds of it so as to have some in the house in case of a shortage or a rise in price.

We know now why she did it.

Guests became more at home as friendships progress. Gladys' friendships progressed very rapidly. The young ladies that were at first contented with tea soon began to pine for cake.

Every afternoon the pleasant aroma of baking cake filled one's nostrils as he entered the house. It never came to the table though. It all went to cement friendships in the kitchen.

Then the jam began to disappear. Gladys hadn't had any hand in putting up the jam. The mistress of the house did that. But Gladys evened things up by helping to dispose of it. When the kids came home from school they wanted jam for luncheon. In a month or two they couldn't have any.

But that was soon mended. Gladys ordered jam from the grocer. It wasn't as good as ours, as we got very little of it. But our guests made no complaint—to us that is. They consumed vast quantities of it, as we discovered at the end of the month.

Then William came. How we don't know—presumably because he had heard of our hospitality. In a few days he was arriving shortly after dinner and remaining till eleven or twelve p. m. his voice rumbling cheerfully in the kitchen long after we had gone to rest.

He taught us how to dispose of leave-overs—a thing that bright women write much about in the household magazines. He disposed of all of them for us. Two or three pounds of steak never bothered—us the next day after William began coming. Hash thereafter was a thing unknown in our household.

In a month Gladys informed us that she and William had resolved to take a great step. When we inquired when the date of the Great Step would be she replied that it would be as soon as William got a better job. He didn't want to get married till he could support her in the style to which she had been accustomed.

It was after that that she began filling the hope chest. All sorts of things went into it—ten pounds of coffee, fifteen pounds of sugar, three packages of tea, potatoes, canned peaches and pears, an alarm clock, half a dozen sheets and a pair of blankets.

We discovered the hope chest hidden away in the attic one day when we were looking for a trunk. It was then that we decided to get rid of the boarding house business.

Gladys departed the next day. She said she could get twice as much money three doors down the street. Possibly she can. But if the people there are wise enough to keep out of the boarding house business she won't be doing nearly as well as she was at our house.

DAIMLERS EVADED GERMAN PROFIT TAX

BERLIN, Sep. 3.—(By Mail.)—A special commission appointed by the former minister of war to audit the books of the Daimler motor works, has issued a report which charges the firm with concealing profits exceeding 96,000,000 marks. It is stated that the annual balance sheets of the firm during the four years of war production failed to include more than 81,000,000 marks profit, which is more than tenfold the amount of its capital.

The report states that on the eve of Germany's big spring offensive in 1918 the Daimler company, which was one of the country's chief supplier of war materials, threatened to shut down its plant unless the ministry of war awarded it a liberal price and increases.

The plant was then placed under military supervision and its director removed from office, but, the commission reports, Captain Gross, who was supposed to supervise the military control, was elected into the company's directorate and entrusted with the management of the plant.

How Many of Your Friends Have Bad Teeth?

—and how many of them do you suppose are suffering from other ailments caused from those bad teeth.

Did you ever stop to figure out how many people around you were carrying around decayed and disease breeding teeth?

The greater proportion of the people in the world today need dental work and if they all started at once to have them fixed there wouldn't be enough dentists in the country to fix them for a long time to come. That just goes to show you how neglectful people are of their teeth—the best friends they have and they seem to never appreciate them until they have to be all pulled out and a plate put in their place. Don't neglect them. Come to our offices at once and let us examine them and tell you their exact condition.

---And Don't Pay Those High Prices

High priced dentistry is not necessary and you do not have to pay it if you don't want to, but if you are inclined to patronize high priced dentists you can find plenty of them to extract your money from you and if you only knew it they use the same methods and the same kind of materials that we use. If you want to get guaranteed dentistry at an honest price come to us.

BANKER CHOSEN BY DEMOCRATS FOR ASSEMBLY

E. E. Slater of Tranquillity Nominated for 50th District Race

Will Oppose B. W. McKeen, G.O.P. Nominee, in November

E. E. Slater, president of the First National Bank of Tranquillity and a rancher of that section, yesterday received the nomination for the assembly in the 50th district as the unanimous choice of the Democratic county central committee.

Slater, whom Chairman Russell Uhler declared was drafted for the race, will make the contest against B. W. McKeen, the incumbent and the Republican nominee at the November general election. The candidate's strongest endorsements was from Chris Jorgenson, chairman of the board of supervisors, against whom he ran for membership on the county board two years ago.

Slater has been a resident of the county for nearly ten years and has taken an active part in the development of the Tranquility section. Besides his banking and ranching interests he is an official of the irrigation district, president of the union high school board, and one of the organizers of the Pine Flat project. He is a native of Ohio and is 42 years old.

"I am entering the race at the solicitude of my friends on the committee and am going in to win, firm in the belief that I can aid the district and the county," Slater said after his nomination. "Realizing the time is short I will base my campaign on a personal canvass. I have made no promises or pledges in the belief I can give better service untrammeled when I am in a position to gauge each measure on its merits and my sole platform will be my past record of accomplishment."

The nomination by the committee was rendered necessary through the disqualification of C. A. Foster, the primary selection, because he was a registered Republican and failed to secure the nomination of his own party.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—Organization of the "One Hundred Club" by leaders among the Japanese residents here as a means of raising the social standing of members of thier race in this country and of effecting a better understanding of Japanese by others was effected here recently. Sessue Hayakawa was elected president and Mrs. Haruko Kojima executive secretary.

HEREFORD, Eng., Sept. 26.—Hubert Delaval Astley, a famous ornithologist, has been fined $250 for feeding his flamingoes and other birds with grain "fit for human food."

ASK PROBATION FOR MURDERER

Application For Release Jas. Corgrove to Be Made Oct. 2

An application for the release on probation of James Cosgrove, a Fresno bartender found guilty of the murder in 1917 of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Annabelle Smith, will be presented before Judge H. Z. Austin on October 2, according to a notice filed with the county clerk yesterday by the defendant's attorney, George D. Collins, Jr., of San Francisco.

Cosgrove, who has twice been sentenced to life imprisonment for the crime, is incarcerated at the county jail pending the outcome of an appeal to the supreme court on the last judgment proceeding. He has already served a portion of his penitentiary term.

In his formal notice Attorney Collins confirms his statement of the pending action to the fact that "release from custody on probation pursuant to section 1202 of the Penal Code," and that "the motion is made on the ground that it will be in the interests of justice."

Evidence taken at the various hearings showed that Cosgrove, who was separated from his wife, became intoxicated, went to the flat occupied by Mrs. Cosgrove and her mother, and shot the older woman without warning, then attempted to take his own life. It appeared that he blamed Mrs. Smith with his strained marital relations.

Mildred Black, former field representative for the Hartsook studios, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of embezzling some $50 from her employer and applied for probation. The case was referred to the probation officer, with judgment set for October 11. She was released on $1,000 bail.

Entering a plea of guilty to a grand larceny information, George Collins was held for judgment on October 11.

When the case of Manoog Sahagian, accused of assault by force, was called for arraignment the defendant could not be found, although his attorney was in court. Further proceedings were ordered continued without date.

WIRELESS TALK DISPELS GLOOM

Officer at Sea Hears Conversation From Home Town

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Voices from his home town, Los Angeles, coming five hundred miles over the sea, dispelled the gloom of a dense fog for Delos Millard, radio officer of the steamship Derbyline, off Eureka, en route to San Francisco from Seattle.

The big tanker was just steaming into a heavy fog bank off Eureka when Millard, who had been working with the coast wireless stations, listened in to other stations. He heard Chatham, Mass., station's dots and dashes and replies from Nauen, Germany. He heard Hawaiian, Alaskan, Canadian, Japanese stations and ships at sea.

Then turning down to 600 meters, the wave-length for some ship-to-ship traffic, words of a conversation filled his ears. A man's voice from Avalon Island, off Los Angeles, uttered an invitation. A woman's voice in Los Angeles responded. Conversations by wireless telephone between Avalon and San Bernardino, and other points, were also heard.

Radio operators at sea are entertained not only by hearing radio telegraphic communication between foreign ports and telephonic communication between foreign lands and telephonic communication on the Pacific coast but as far as two hundred miles, full concerts have been heard at sea, according to Millard.

Radio telephone equipment attached to a San Francisco theater, transmitted full concerts by a large orchestra, speaking and singing of entertainers, and the applause of the audience, according to Millard.

"Closer to San Francisco", Millard said, "the reception of this concert music, sent by radio telephone, was so good that the head receivers conveyed the music to the brig. I just set the receivers on a chair, and the officers on the bridge were entertained better than with a phonograph."

Millard is a former navy radio operator.

PRESBYTERIANS REDUCE EXPENSE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 25.—The new Era committee of the Presbyterian church, criticised at the last meeting of the General Assembly for spending too much money on expenses in connection with its work, reported to the legislative committee of the Presbyterian church today that it had reduced its expenses from nearly one million dollars to about $169,000 for the ensuing year.

The new Era movement is entrusted with raising and distributing the $12,000,000 budget decided upon. About one-third will be spent on foreign missions.

FOOTBALL SEASON HERE

Practically every university in the country that will be represented in the football world has its candidates out on the field preparing for the coming season. The coaches of the various institutions have invented many new methods for the men to condition themselves with and for trying out their strength. Alex Hermann, a member of the Columbia University squad, is shown at work on the bucking machine.

AMERICAN WOMAN IS ARAB OFFICER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A New York woman, Anna L. Fisher, formerly a Red Cross worker in France and later a Near East Relief worker in Syria, is a full-fledged captain in the Arabian army of the Prince Feisal, at Damascus, according to E. M. Newman, of Chicago, who has returned from five months in the Near East. At present Miss Fisher is in charge of the industrial education of women and children in Damascus; but in the event of war she would be expected to take her part as an Arab army officer, which Mr. Newman says, she is quite ready to do.

Although the French have deposed Feisal, the Prince's Arabian army is virtually intact and he hopes that a solution of the Arabian question may be reached by which the "Allies will carry out their promises of an Independent Arabian State," Mr. Newman said.

ISLAND TO GET FIRST MAIL IN TWO YEARS

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Sept. 15.—(By Mail)—The first news from the world that the Rapans will receive after a lapse of two years was carried aboard the French cruiser Aldebaran which recently left this port for the isolated island of Rapa, in the Dangerous Archipelago.

The island is populated by 150 Polynesians and one white man, a French official. Due to the Rapans not having receive mail for two years, and in all probability a boat not having touched the island for that time, it is believed that the inhabitants are not as yet acquainted with the fact that hostilities have ceased among the warring countries.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 26.—The safe of A. C. Bauk's store at Quincy was robbed last night of $16,300 in securities and cash.

CALIFORNIA IS PACIFIC QUEEN

Slated For Flagship of Fleet, Says Naval Visitor to Fresno

The battleship California is to be the flagship of the Pacific fleet, according to Lieutenant Commander G. M. Weichet, U. S. N., who spent yesterday in Fresno arranging for a campaign to arouse community interest in the battleship.

The California, says Commander Weichet, is to be manned by a crew composed entirely of California men. To secure recruits needed for the ship, the navy department is planning a tour of the state in November, during which Governor Stephens will be the principal speaker, and the recruiting officers want every community in the state represented by one or more recruits.

Weichelt stated yesterday that guns of the California actually fought in the war with Germany, a fact that is practically unknown. The mascot of the Ninety-first division, a bear, is to be mascot on the California.

At the request of the navy officer, Mayor Toomey yesterday promised that he would appoint a committee to have charge of such cooperative measures as might be needed here to assist the navy in its effort to secure California men for the crew of the battleship California.

Commander Weicheet will speak before the Rotary club at luncheon Monday.

Girl o' Golden West Dubs President the "Knight of Raisin"

MISS VIOLET OLIVER

Who recently called on President Wilson.

Eighteen-year-old Violet Oliver, known as "California's prettiest girl" recently called on President Wilson at the White House as a part of the campaign she is waging to increase the use of raisins and "dubbed" him "Knight of the Raisin."

Miss Oliver has already visited 42 states in the campaign to save the state's grape crop.

It is reported that she has danced with three European princes: the Prince of Wales, Prince Leopold of Belgium and Prince Carol of Roumania, while they were in this country.

PREDICTS DROP MEN'S CLOTHING

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—A slow but steady decrease in retail prices and a ten to twenty per cent slash in the consumer's price on men's clothing with a gradual general return to normal prices was predicted today by a leading department store and clothing manufacturer.

Immediate reductions in retail prices on men's clothing, following the cuts in raw materials announced this week, are not to be expected, the manufacturer said, because the materials in the present fall and winter suits were purchased last spring.

"An orderly, progressive re-organization of commerce," is under way, Marshall Field and Company, one of the largest department stores in the country, said in a statement. The company warns, however, against a period of reaction which may set in after the initial price decline in prices.

"The mill prices for spring 1921 show reductions of from ten to 20 per cent," Alfred Decker and Cohn, manufacturers of men's clothing said, "but as the cost of labor is not apt to be reduced, too much must not be expected for the next spring. The reduction to the consumer will probably be from ten to twenty per cent."

Senate Discusses President Candidates

With a program consisting of extemporaneous speeches on a variety of subjects, the Fresno high school senate met Friday evening. Reinecht of Vermont talking on "Girls in General"; Green of Wyoming, on the candidacy of Senator Harding, and Peters of Oklahoma on Governor Cox. Walker of California, president of the senate concluded the program by giving the senate his opinion of the two candidates.

Thomas McKoin was elected to membership.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—The Indian branch of the Mohammedan church has collected a fund of 200,000 rupees in British India to finance Mohammedan missionary work in the United States, according to M. Lal Singh, a cotton planter of Calcutta. "Propaganda pamphlets and other literature on the Koran and the Islam religion are being distributed in the United States in this work," said Singh. "There are 100,000 Mohammedans in the United States."

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Federal officials are wondering what's in tea tasting. Some other government jobs with similar salaries are going begging, while fifty applicants eagerly sought the position of government tea taster at San Francisco, $1150 per year with $250 bonus. Duties of the position require meeting incoming vessels from the Far East, and sampling tea cargoes to detect unhealthful coloring matter.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Price reductions ranging from 17½ to 21½ per cent in all models of Franklin automobiles, effective at once, were announced today by H. H. Franklin, president of the company making these cars. From a minimum of $3,050 and a maximum of $4,350, prices are cut to $2,460 and $3,500. Wages will not be reduced, the announcement said.

IRISH ATTEMPT GENERAL'S LIFE

CORK, Ireland, Sept. 24.—An attempt was made on the life of Major General Strickland, commander in Southern Ireland, as he was motoring to the docks en route to England tonight. Six shots were fired at his automobile. The General was not injured but the driver was slightly wounded.

When the attackers began firing, occupants of the machine returned the fire as the car sped on.

A sixteen year old boy, a bystander received a flesh wound in the arm. The attackers fled.

While en route to file this dispatch the Associated Press correspondent was halted by soldiers and taken to Bridwell Prison. Arriving there, however, he was released.

MASKED MEN RIFLE MAIL

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Registered mail pouches were rifled on the New Orleans limited, northbound Illinois Central train tonight before the train reached Chicago by two masked men who escaped. Postoffice officials said they could not determine the amount stolen.

The same train and the same mail clerks were held up last May by Horace Walton of St. Joseph, Mo., who was slain by police while trying to escape with nearly $100,000 stolen fro mthe mail car.

Conductor H. D. Jacks in charge of the train said the train slowed down near Tucker, Ills., and he thought the engineer had received a "slow" signal.

READING CLERK TO TALK HERE

P. J. Halligan to Address Legion, High School and K. of C.

P. J. Halligan, Reading Clerk of the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., who is on a lecture tour of California, will lecture here this evening for the American Legion at the headquarters of the Legion. Tomorrow morning Halligan will address the students of the Fresno High school and Monday evening he will speak at the Johns' Hall, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus of Fresno. The subject of Mr. Halligan's lecture is "The American Congress and the National Capitol." His discourse is illustrated with 125 stereopticon pictures, with which he emphasizes his facts to such an extent that he makes his theme highly interesting and instructive. Many of his pictures are from the archives of the library of Congress, and are authentic in their historical accuracy." He traces the history of Congress and of our National Capitol, and shows many views significant in their political aspects.

The lecturer also tells of the individual functions of both Houses of Congress, the settlement of their differences in the enactment of legislation, rules of debate, etc., and closes with a general outline of the procedure of the House and Senate in the introduction and passage of bills.

He has been Reading Clerk of the House for the past ten years, and because of this advantage, it is said that he is one of the best posted men in the country on matters of legislative enactment and the general history of our country's law-making body.

PLAN ELABORATE PROGRAM FOR MUSICAL CLUB SEASON

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Fresno Musical club held Friday at the home of the president, Miss Bell T. Ritchie, it was decided to spend $7,000 this year in bringing attractions to the city. This will exceed, by $2,000, that expended in any previous year for artists. And, by so doing, the board of directors feel that they are giving to their members the very best that can be obtained. The list of possible attractions was carefully investigated, with the help of L. E. Behymer of Los Angeles.

The opening concert for the season will be Morselwitsch, who will come to the White theater October 18. The other attractions for the year are: Charles Hackett, tenor; Samuel Gardiner, violinist; Mary Jordan, contralto; Anna Case; Chamber Music, with Lada; Salzedo Ensemble with Madame Frisch, the Danish soprano; Bohm Ballet with Little Symphony.

Of these eight artists' concerts which will be brought here, all the performers are new to Fresno with the exception of Anna Case, who was here two years ago. Her concert was among the most popular ones ever given before the club.

The sale of seats will open for old subscribers, next Friday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and will continue until 1 o'clock Saturday, after which the sale will be open to the public. Up until the date of the opening concert, on October 18, every day from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., the box office at the White theater will be open for reservations. Plenty of good seats remain to be procured, though it is advisable to make reservations as early as possible.

Thanks Phelan For Stand on Raisin Co.

Senator James D. Phelan has just made public a letter received by him from Wylie M. Giffen, president of the California Associated Raisin Company, commending him for his recent stand in behalf of the raisin growers. The letter reads:

"Just a line to thank you for the splendid telegram that you sent to the Attorney-General in behalf of the raisin growers of California. It is one of the finest things that has been published since this agitation came up. It stated the exact truth in a very graphic way and I wish to assure you that the raisin growers of California are immensely pleased with your action. Hundreds of them have spoken to me about it, and I am sure when I express to you my own thanks I can also speak for the twelve thousand raisin growers in this state."

Report Air Patrol of Forests Success

Thirty-three per cent of the 196 forest fires discovered and reported by that part of the 9th Aero Squadron operating out of Mather Field this year were accurately located, according to word sent out by the Forest Service.

"And 'accurately' in this case means that these locations, given us by the Airplane Fire Patrol, were all within one-fourth mile of the exact locations as later determined by actual surveys on the ground," says District Forester Paul G. Redington.

"This record, when supplemented by the further facts that an additional 19 per cent of the fires discovered were reported within one-half mile of their actual locations; that 10 per cent of the total number were discovered by the Air Patrol before the rangers knew they existed, even; and that 42 per cent—or 83—of the fires were reported by radio while the ships were in flight—demonstrates beyond doubt that Airplane Fire Patrol in California has been successful," he continued.

Besides acting as lookouts to detect and report fires, airplanes were used this year to direct fire fighting operations, and to patrol fire lines which had been built, but which needed watching to see that the flames did not get beyond control, according to forest officers. The case of the Mill Creek forest fire on the Lassen National Forest, where 25,000 acres were burned over, is cited as an example. "Here," according to the statement issued, "a special reconnoissance plane, equipped with radio and with a forest officer for observer hovered over the fire and actually directed the movements of bodies of fire fighters by wireless messages received right on the fire line. In addition, this plane patrolled, twice each day, some 14 miles of completed fire-line from which all men had been removed. If reports from the air showed the line to be clear, the fire fighters were kept at work elsewhere; but if the observer wirelessed in that the fire had broken away, then a force of them was rushed to the spot and the fire corralled again."

Since June first, two planes have been operating on fire patrol daily from Mather Field, two from Fresno, two from March Field, and three from Red Bluff. This air patrol has been in addition to the regular Forest Service lookouts maintained each summer for the last ten years on nearly 100 of the higher peaks in the National Forests.

JAPANESE DISCUSS INCREASED NAVY

View American Naval Growth as Sea Challenge

TOKYO, Sept. 25.—There was a debate in the Japanese Diet recently between Premier Hara and a representative over the question whether it was necessary for Japan immediately to expend a large sum in an attempt to keep abreast of the United States in the building of warships. The discussion was briefly reported by cable at that time, but the official report of the speech delivered by Ichizo Hattori, who criticized the action of the Japanese government in asking for a naval appropriation, and the reply of Premier Hara permits of a more comprehensive presentation of the argument.

Mr. Hattori interpellated the government, asking why it introduced "the present colossal estimates for armaments into an extraordinary session of the Diet which was called to discuss only such matters as permitted of no delay."

The representative quoted Admiral Kato, minister of the navy, as having explained the "colossal estimates" by pointing to a naval expansion scheme which was being pushed forward by a certain country. "By a 'certain country' presumably the navy minister meant the United States," said Mr. Hattori. "It must be remembered, however, that America is trying to expand her Pacific squadron simply because she misunderstands Japan.

"The Americans are laboring under the misconception that the Japanese are a very dangerous people, wedded to militarism and aggressiveness. Being obsessed by this mistaken notion, they are anxious to complete their naval armaments against all emergencies on the Pacific. America has always been a country which sets store by peace and I do not believe the government thinks that she is doing all this for aggressive purposes.

"Supposing the present naval and military estimates were carried through the Diet, though they ought to be introduced in the next session of the Diet as a measure not requiring very urgent attention, what impression would be caused in America? Americans would ascribe sinister intentions to the Japanese Diet which, notwithstanding an unfavorable economic situation and the restoration of peace went the length of carrying the estimates through at an extraordinary session.

"I am not opposed to proper provision for national defense, but I do not see why this program should not be deferred to the next ordinary session of the Diet.

"Japan and America are the only countries in the world which are going in for naval expansion. In my opinion, it is too feeble an argument to say that the Diet must aprove the estimates at once, because America is building many warships and because the presentation of the estimates to the next ordinary session would cause delay in the completion of the naval program."

In his reply, Mr. Hara, the prime minister said:

"It is superfluous to say that Japan is not actuated by any aggressive ambition in attending to the replenishment of national defense. The national defense program takes into careful consideration the number of troops and warships needed to safeguard the country. No aggressive significance can possibly be attached to the replenishment program which is drawn up with this in view, and I cannot think that any misunderstandings will be created in foreign minds in this connection. The question of the replenishment of national defense has been outstanding for some years and, as it fell through in the last session of the Diet, owing to the dissolution of the House of Representatives, the bill has been laid before the present session

It is impossible to say with regard to any program that its delay for a year or half a year is certainly ruinous, but the government is convinced that in view of the grave importance of national defense, the program which has been outstanding for some years ought to be attended to as quickly as possible.

"As you are aware, Japan is now among the five great powers of the world, and it is important for her to be provided with armaments in commensurate with her position in world politics. I feel sure that the present national defense program will excite no misunderstandings abroad and that Japan will not be credited with any ambitious designs."

Seeks Wife Four Years; She Sues Charging Desertion

Mrs. David Edstrom, formerly a well-known Christian Science practitioner, has brought suit for separation against her husband, David, the famous Swedish-American sculptor, charging abandonment. Instead of abandoning his wife, as she charges in her suit, Edstrom claims that he had detectives searching for her for more than four years in an effort to get into communication with her. "And I don't know where she is yet," he added.

KALMIKOFF KILLED BY CHINESE GUARDS?

PEKING, Sept. 7.—(By Mail).—General Kalmikoff, notorious Ussuri district ataman, charged by the Norwegian government with the murder in Siberia of Norwegian subjects, and a refugee at Kirin from Siberia has made two desperate attempts to escape from the Chinese guards. Kalmikoff, who in January became assistant to General Semenoff as commander of the All-Russian forces in Siberia, was arrested in Manchuria by Chinese guards in July and held prisoner in the Russian consulate at Kirin.

He escaped shortly afterward, but was recaptured. Later when plans were discovered for a second escape, he was taken from the consulate by Chinese soldiers to a train for Peking, for arraignment on the charges against him by the Norwegian government.

Governor Pan Kuei-ching of Kirin, reported today that Kalmikoff jumped from the train at Yilachi, Manchuria, and escaped into the rice fields.

Kalmikoff, as head of a horde of Cossacks in the Ussuri district, during the regime of Admiral Kolchak, ravaged the Ussuri district and gained notoriety as a terrorist by his wholesale murders. Last autumn he created an attack against the American forces, and flogged an American soldier his forces captured.

Peking advices on September 8, reported that Kalmikoff was killed in rice fields near Yilachi, Manchuria, by pursuing Chinese guards, upon whom he had fired.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Another Dickens landmark is to be destroyed, the house where Bill Sikes met his death, as described in "Oliver Twist." It stands in a court on Jacob's Island, Bermondsey, and is being used now as a stable. The house was identified by the finding of some old plans of Bermondsey dated 1855, on one of which was marked "Bill Sikes' house."

RECOGNITION OF MEXICO SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—News that Robert A. Pesqueira, financial agent of the Mexican government at New York, called on Under Secretary Davis yesterday at the state department to urge immediate recognition of the new regime, caused something of a stir today at the Mexican embassy. The embassy said that it was the only agency authorized to speak for Mexico in the United States.

The conversations between Ambassador Fernando Iglesias Calderon and Under Secretary Davis have been going on for several months and are understood to have proceeded satisfactorily both to the department and to the Mexican government. Pesqueira's intervention in the negotiations is made the subject of a report by the embassy to the government at Mexico City. At the state department it was said that neither Iglesias Calderon nor Pesqueira had been received officially.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The Democratic National Committee, in a statement last night declared that membership of the United States in the League of Nations this year would cost only a small fraction of a cent for each person in the country. The total cost from last April to next January was placed at $31,099.50.

The State Department, according to the statement, has received an official statement from the secretariat of the league showing its budget for the nine months to be ten million gold francs, the present exchange value of each being approximately six and one-half cents.

TOKYO, Sept. 25.—Tuberculosis sufferers are on the increase in Japan, the latest returns indicating the total number at over 1,000,000.

Statistics formerly showed the mortality at the rate of one in every four patients. The latest tendency, however, is toward a gradual decrease in the death rate. The spread of the disease is attributed to the inadequacy of preventive measures. The authorities have decided to establish a charity hospital for consumptives in each prefecture.

WOLTERS SCHOOL TO OPEN.

Wolter's school will open tomorrow following the summer vacation.

JAPANESE ROYALTY CLOSER TO PEOPLE

TOKYO.—A tendency of the times in Japan is the effort made toward bringing the imperial house and the people of the country closer on a basis of greater mutual sympathy. Until some years ago, all public traffic used to be suspended for about an hour before the passage of a member of the imperial family but now it is only for the moment that any suspension of traffic is made.

A system has been introduced to admit of no individual appeal direct to the throne on social as well as personal affairs.

Viscount Kiyooka, of Kioto, has requested that the imperial detached palace in Kioto be thrown open to the general public giving the following reasons:

"The recent war seems to have instilled in the minds of some Japanese ideas that are incompatible with the traditions of the Yamato people. If things are allowed to take their own course, the sure result will be that the people will drift apart from the throne until an estrangement sets in that will spell ruin to the country at large. One of the most effective ways for the Japanese to prevent such a calamity is to foster new links of sympathy between the throne and the people and to bring them closer together. The throwing open of the detached palace in Kioto to all, instead of a privileged few, will aid greatly in realizing this object."

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—San Franciscans are to have opportunity next November to ballot upon the purchase of the United Railways, which concern divides the traction business here with the Municipal Railway, under a recent decision by the Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors also decided to arrange for a ballot to be taken on increase of the interest rate on municipal bonds, to enable them to be sold more readily.

The Phonograph with the "tone that thrills"

THERE is nothing phonographic in the exquisite music of the Blue Bird. Its tone is the real tone of voice—or instrument. The full richness of the deepest bass—the bell-clear sweetness of the highest treble—is re-voiced in the complete splendor of the original tone in the Blue Bird.

We invite you to come and see and hear— the Blue Bird at our booth at the Fair—

We will place one in your home on a small initial payment and $5 to $10 monthly payments.

Circus of Fleas Is One Offering at District Fair

Jumping fleas, fleas dragging carts, fleas doing almost human acts—some 300 of these tiny performers are an attraction at the Fresno District Fair in the special flea circus offered by John Ruhl.

Ruhl has devoted almost his entire life to the study and training of these small animals and now carries a complete troupe of performers trained in almost incredible endeavors by his untiring efforts. Every day, it is said, he bares his arm and the fleas dine on fresh blood as fleas will.

At any rate there is a complete circus of the small performers and the entertainment which they give under the efforts of the trainer and owner is said to be remarkable.

PROMPTNESS TO MARK OPENING OF 14TH EVENT

Exhibits Will Be All in Place For Noon Premiere

Varied Amusements to Be Offered to Patrons

When Monday's sun swings to the zenith, the fourteenth annual Fresno District Fair swings open its gates in warm welcome to the people of the San Joaquin valley.

That the fair will be bigger and better than any of the thirteen fairs that have preceded it is the consensus of opinion of those who have been in touch with the weeks of preparation which have now concentrated into the last feverish effort to make the fair open on time, and open with everything in place.

Besides an exhibit display never before attempted and a diversity of selection worthy of a larger event, an amusement program which is without a parallel has been arranged for the idle moments of the thousands expected. From the "Path of Pleasure" to the roaring speed of giant automobiles in deciding the San Joaquin Valley Classic on Saturday; from the gripping suspense of the leap for life to the antics of trained fleas; from the haunting sweetness of concealed music to the bucking of an untamed broncho—these and more are the attractions which give the lighter side of glamor to the event.

Monday Children's Day

Remembering the children first, tomorrow, the opening day at the Fresno District Fair, will welcome thousands of kiddies from the city and valley, when the Rotary Club of Fresno plays guide, counseller and friend to the small devotees of fair attractions, see that they attend and distribute ice cream in satisfying quantities to the hungry. Going on through the week, Tuesday will be Sanger, Del Rey, Parlier and Clovis days; Wednesday will be Fresno, Selma, Fowler and Malaga days; Thursday will be Reedley, Dinuba, Navelencia and Orange Cove day; Friday will be Kingsburg, Kerman, San Joaquin, Raisin City, Caruthers, Riverdale and Laton days, while Saturday will be dedicated as Governor's Day, Coalinga Day and the San Joaquin Valley Counties' Association day. On this final day, as is fitting with its dedication to the counties of the valley, the new speedway will be dedicated with the San Joaquin Valley Classic race of 200 miles, when a dozen of the best drivers in the United States vie for a new American track record.

Rush Work on Exhibits

The fair grounds will be the scene of great activity today when exhibitors begin the last efofrts in arranging their displays and doing their share toward having everything in readiness when the tickets begin to fall and throngs move fairward. Monday morning is also expected to be a busy time for fair officials and exhibitors, and then the test of the weeks of preparation will be thrown open to the public to judge the fourteenth annual fair.

While the fair will be opened officially at noon, an arade of the down town streets, beginning at 12:45 at the Fresno County Chamber of Commerce is the real beginning of the week's activity. The parade will be a special forerunner of the opening of the Days of the Old West rodeo which is to be a daily attraction at the fair. The parade will be led by Tom Mix, actor and cowboy and his troupe, while in it will be many of the performers in their picturesque costumes which will be seen through the days of the fair. The line of march of the parade is from the chamber of commerce building to Tulare street, on Tulare street to J, J to Fresno, Fresno to Van Ness, Van Ness to Tulare and out Tulare to the Fair grounds.

Program at Grounds.

At 2 o'clock at the grounds the first band concert will be given while daylight fireworks will also be given while Lumberjack Charlie will sing to the accompaniment of the High school band. At 2:30 o'clock, the first day's program of the rodeo will be given featuring Tom Mix and his horse "Tony," and will be free to the school children attending the fair.

At 4 o'clock, Daredevil Foucher makes his "ride for life" down the 100-foot tower erected in the oval inside the track while at 5 o'clock a special band concert will be given in the exhibit buildings, these buildings remaining open from the first opening of the fair.

During the hours each evening just after dinner, the "Path of Plesaure" with its many attractions, is expected to claim the attention of most of the visitors to the fair. At 8 o'clock, special daylight fireworks illuminated by the 168,000 candle power searchlight will be the attraction and Daredevil Fouchee will repeat his "ride for life." At 8:30 there will be a special display showing a night attack in No Man's Land using speciel army flares and rockets after which the attractions of the path of pleasure and the open air dance floor are expected to draw the attention of patrons o fthe fair.

Thirteen May Eenter Race.

This is the first day's program for the fair and into its compass have been crowded a world of attractions, the manager believes, aside from viewing the hundreds of exhibits of all kinds which will be on display.

With the arrival yesterday of six racing automobiles from Syracuse, New York, it developed that perhaps thirteen drivers instead of eleven

SPECIAL GUARD FOR FAIR HERE

Thorwaldsen Is Chief of Deputies Assigned to Event

A warning against the pickpockets, confidence men and suspicious over-friendly strangers who frequent events such as the Fresno District Fair will offer, was sounded yesterday by Horace Thorwaldsen, former sheriff of Fresno county, and special director of police regulations for the Fresno District Fair. Thorwaldsen will act as the chief of special deputies at the fair grounds working in conjunction with the county and city police officials.

"To those who are coming to the Fresno fair for those purposes, I want to extend my sorrow and sympathy," he said yesterday, "for we are going to show them that the 'way of the transgressor is hard.'" Thorwaldsen states that a special force of officers has been organized to give protection to the public attending the fair.

He asks the co-operation of the public, warning against carrying unnecessarily large sums of money at the grounds and stating that crowds should be avoided where possible as the jostling stranger may sometimes have designs upon wallet or watch. He also states that it is poor policy at such an event to leave valuables in automobiles as they invite theft.

A special automobile parking space has been provided opposite the main gate of the fair grounds where there is space for between 4,000 and 5,000 cars. This parking space will be lighted at night and will be patrolled by mounted men, a charge of 25 cents being made per machine. Cars will be checked in and out of the parking space and facilities have been provided to handle the machines rapidly.

WANTS U. S. MONEY TO WIN KINGDOM

Scion of Hungarian Royalty Claims Right to Crown

BUDAPEST.—"If I conclude my arrangements to secure American capital to finance my campaign, I feel reasonably sure of being elected king of Hungary," declares Etienne Crouy Chanel, who claims his family to be the only living descendants of the ancient kings of Hungary, the Arpads, whose line lost the crown six centuries ago, it finally passing to the Hapsburgs.

Other members of Etienne's family who dispute his ambitions are the Duke of Croy, or Crouy, of Dulmen, Westphalia, Germany, who married in 1913, Miss Nancy Leishman, of Pittsburg, daughter of the former American ambassador; and the duke's aunt, the Archduchess Isabella of Austria, also a Croy, who is supporting for the throne her son, Albrecht.

However, Etienne Crouy Chanel, who styles himself Count of Hungary and Prince in France, waives aside their claims on the ground of nonresidence and that they are members of a younger line. He is a medium-sized man, distinguished by a full dark beard of the cut known as Henri Quatre. He is energetic, cheerful, modest and poor. Ever since the National Assembly was convened, he has been industriously cultivating its members who one day or another may wind up this dynasty dispute by electing a king from the various claimants.

"What I need most is money," explained Etienne. "There is no law here against funds, so my American backers need not be frightened on this score. I understand Charles of Hapsburg is seeking funds in the United States, too. Last year he secured for campaign purposes a loan of 50,000,000 francs from a Trieste bank, it taking his Italian Este estates as security."

According to Etienne's supporters, Emperor Charles is wasting his time in attempting to recover the throne. One of the reasons advanced is that Madame Bellaugh, the Magyar soothsayer, has predicted for him an unhappy ending if he returns. As her forecasts are accepted here as fact-proof, the question very naturally presents itself to the Hungarian mind: Why should Charles struggle against Fate?

The claims of Charles Rudolph, thirteenth Duke of Croy, who married Miss Leishman, can not be well considered, according to Count Etienne, because he is a descendant of Mark, the second son of Andre III, the last king of Hungary of this dynasty, whereas Etienne is descended from Felix, the eldest son of Andre III. "In fact, we have not had any relations with these Dukes of Croy for centuries," said Count Etienne, "except by way of lawsuit, as we are not sure of their titles. They were recognized by the German nobility, and are therefore in the Almanac de Gotha, but the French kings would not recognize them.

"You see it is this way: When Andre III died in 1302, he left these two sons who were unable to secure the throne because of political difficulties here. They were in France, but not permitted to return here by the kings of Anjou, who had their own candidate for the throne. But King Wenceslaus of Bohemia, seized Hungary. He in turn was driven out by Prince Otto of Bavaria, until Charles of Anjou, aided by the French, came up from Naples with an army and took the throne for his son, who was known as Louis the Great of Hungary. The latter left no male descendants and, at the battle of Mohacs in 1526, the Hapsburgs got possession of the throne.

"Maria Theresa was the last of the Hapsburgs. They, and those who came after her treated Hungary as a colony and have never been liked here. If my family had its rights the throne would be ours. Even the Este estates of Charles rightfully belong to my house. As late as 1553, with the help of Napoleon III of France, we filed suit at Turin, Italy, to secure these estates, but for lack of money we had to drop the suit.

ISSUES WARNING FOR FAIR WEEK

Beware Pickpockets Is Advice of Chief of Police

Believing that Fresno will be the rendezvous for crooks, pickpockets and confidence men during the fair week, Chief of Police Frank P. Truax sounded a warning yesterday to Fresno people and visitors.

A large squad of special police officers in plain clothes has been added to the force for the fair week, Truax said yesterday, and every effort will be made by the police to minimize loss to property by depredations.

In his warning to the people of Fresno, Truax states that the police department has positive knowledge that crooks and pickpockets are on their way to Fresno to take in the fair when there will be large crowds and homes will be left unoccupied.

The chief states that persons attending the fair or mingling with crowds on the downtown streets should be careful not to carry large sums of money while Fresno householders are warned not to leave their homes unlocked while attending the fair as they may find them ransacked when they return.

Truax also asks that suspicious characters be reported to the police at once and that lost or stolen articles be reported as soon as possible after their loss is noted. Valuables should not be left in homes, the chief states, but should be removed to safety deposit boxes or vaults in order to be on the safe side.

RADIO TO WARN IN WATERS OF ALASKA

Sites Now Being Investigated; Direction Finders to Be Installed

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Treacherous Alaskan waters, graveyard of scores of vessels and into whose maw many lives and much treasure have been poured due to navigation pitfalls, are about to be conquered by radio, according to advices received here telling progress of naval communication service investigation into plans for establishing radio-compass stations.

Floyd E. Dunklee, radio electrician of the service, is now in Juneau, Alaska, investigating sites for stations, having recently completed the work of installing radio-compass stations protecting San Francisco bay.

Dangers to navigation are removed by the same means which guarded London from Zeppelin attacks, a secret during the war and one of the most interesting developments in radio-telegraphy. When Zeppelins started their attacks upon London, the foremost of allied experts applied their efforts to provide some means of defense. The prime necessity for defense was determination of the location of invading Zeppelins.

Discovery of a radio direction finder resulted from their efforts. Zeppelins used wireless in reporting departure from German bases, and frequently while on route sent wireless messages back to the base. The allied discovery was a device to determine from which direction these wireless waves came.

Direction finders established at different points upon hearing a Zeppelin wireless would report to the headquarters the direction from each station of the Zeppelin. Charting these directions the headquarters accurately determined the location of the Zeppelin and it could be engaged in combat before getting across the British borders.

Success to the direction finders resulted in extension of their use to aid shipping. Radio compass stations established on the Atlantic seaboard proved highly efficient, and establishment of stations around San Francisco bay followed. Other allied countries are also using the system.

This means of informing a vessel of its precise location is regarded as one of the most valued aids to navigation inaugurated this century, according to naval communication experts.

Tentative plans contemplate establishment of six radio-compass stations in Alaskan waters. It is expected location of the stations will be determined upon Electrician Dunklee's investigation this year and erection of stations be undertaken next Spring.

To End Mistakes in Shaving

By V. K. Cassady, B. S., M. S., Chief Chemist

In the Palmolive Laboratories we studied years to overcome the faults in shaving. We tried 130 formulas before we mastered every problem.

Palmolive Shaving Cream is the final formula—the scientific solution. It does what every man attempts with hot towels, lotions and finger rubbing. Such things with Palmolive are not needed.

Both Lather and Lotion

Since earliest history Palm and Olive oils have been prized as toilet lotions. Blended in Palmolive Shaving Cream they form a soothing, cleansing lather. A lather that lubricates between the skin and blade, so a man can shave close without scraping.

This means a shave that lasts all day—that makes the face feel satin-smooth.

Stays Foamy 10 Minutes

Hot towels and rubbing in lather with the fingers mean delay. We felt there was a scientific way to make the beard cut easily without that; and we found it. Palmolive Cream removes the natural oil-coat from the hair, so the moisture penetrates and softens quickly.

Because it stays thick and creamy 10 minutes, Palmolive makes relathering unnecessary. A cream so prolific that a mere bit on the brush lathers up 250-fold.

Four Shaves for 1c

In our 35c tube is enough Palmolive for about 152 shaves. That's more than 4 shaves for 1c. This would be tempting in any shaving lather. But coupled with these astonishing results it is changing the shaving habits of thousands.

These discoveries are hard to conceive but so easy to prove that we do not hesitate to make this free offer. Help yourself to the coupon printed below and get a Several-Shave Tube of Palmolive without cost, from any druggist named in the following list.

Hi School Music Department Manifests Big Increase Here

Below: Pasquale Santa Emma and Fred Brohaska.

From one instructor to five: and from four classes to ten classes with two orchestras and two bands is the stride of the music department of the Fresno high school in eight years, 1912 marking the beginning of Earl Towner's work with the local high school students.

Earl Towner, head of the department, is well known not only in Fresno as a teacher and pianist, but throughout the country as a composer of decided ability. He is a graduate of the College of Pacific; and a student of William J. McCoy (harmony); of George W. Chadwick, composition); Wallace Sabin, organ), Pierre Douillet, piano); and Wilbur McColl (piano). His compositions have been published by the Boston Music Publishers and performed by Boston and Minneapolis Symphonies; by the Boston Apollo Club and at the Panama Pacific Exposition. Towner composed the music for the Raisin Day pageant "Dionysius" in 1915.

Fred Brohaska who came to Fresno last year as a teacher and orchestra director, was a student of the Conservatory of Music of Leipsig, Germany and studied violin under Herman Becker and the French horn under Franee Gumbert. He has had over thirty years of experience in orchestra, band and private teaching.

Llewellyn B. Cain, voice teacher and choral director, is a new addition to the music department faculty this year and will be remembered here as the state chairman for the festival of the California Federation of Music Clubs, conducting the festival concert in Fresno on May 1, 1920. He is a member of the faculty of the University of California extension at present as choral and orchestra director. Cain has had a 27 years experience as a teacher of singing, was eight years sub conductor of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont state festivals. He was organizer and conductor of the famous Saco Valley Music Festival at Bridgton, Maine where were presented works including Manzoni Requiem Mass, Verdi; Seven Last Words of Christ, Dubois; Stabat Mater, Rossini and Rose Maiden, Cowan.

Cain organized and conducted the Humboldt Music Festival at Eureka in 1918, presenting Handel's Messiah three times, Rose Maiden, twice. He will conduct a similar festival at Eureka early in November at which artists of international reputation will assist.

Pasquale Santa Emma, the fourth teacher of the department is also new this year and comes directly from two seasons as cornetist with the Venice of America Band of which Ferullo was director. In 1907, he was with Creatore's band and has also been solo cornetist with Ellery [illegible], at Atlantic City; Don Philippini, the Denver Symphony Orchestra and Municipal Band; Royal Marine Band; [illegible] Band, San Diego Exposition Band and Coronado Tent City Band. In 1913, he was director of the Reedley and Visalia Band.

Miss Orr who is to be in charge of harmony is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a pupil of George W. Chadwick. She will arrive tomorrow.

According to the announcement of Earl Towner, private instruction is to be given any boy or girl in high school on any instrument they desire as between Santa Emma and Brohaska, practically every instrument can be taught, eliminating only piano, harp and organ. Any student seriously studying and taking certain required subjects such as harmony may secure credit for this work. Credit is also to be given for music studied under private teachers.

The department organization this year includes two orchestras, two bands, one chorus, a boys' and girls' glee club, five classes in harmony, a Junior College class, and a class in the history of music.

SEEK KEEPING UP OF SUGAR PRICES

SAN JUAN, Sept. 25.—The Porto Rican Sugar Producers' Association has replied to a request to join the Cuban sugar interests in an effort to prevent refiners from forcing down the price of raw sugar that, while the local association could not join officially with Cuba in such an effort because of federal laws, Porto Rico would not make shipments of sugar except as sold.

The cable received from the Association de Hacendados y Colonos de Cuba said:

"In view of the unjustified lowering in prices of raw sugar which endangers sugar growers' interests to the exclusive benefits of refiners, we invite you to inform us if you think it possible to obtain joint action to adopt legitimate measures to avoid grave losses in the present and coming crop."

Following the receipt of this cable a meeting of the board of directors of the Sugar Producers' Association was called and Eduardo Gonzales was authorized to send this reply for the Association.

"Federal legislation prevents joint action. We assure you that our policy is to sell before shipment and not to offer in advance."

The carriage had been left there by her mother, who when she returned ten minutes later found the baby missing. WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Discovery of the European corn borer in the vicinity of St. Thomas, Canada, has caused the department of agriculture to send a staff of entomologists to Michigan to confer with local agricultural authorities to forestall possible infestation of the corn crop in that state. The corn borer in Canada is farther west than heretofore reported on this continent, the departments' announcement said, and the corn affected is of the Flint variety.

MILKMEN FAIL TO GET QUORUM

Third Meeting, Modesto, Is Without Result; to Meet Again Oct. 23

MODESTO, Sept. 25.—For the third time in as many months the members of the Milk Producers' Association of Central California met today at the Modesto auditorium to endeavor to arrive at some decision in regard to backing their directors, or refuting their action in the matter of collective marketing in conjunction with the state association. A quorum was not present, and no official action could be taken and had there been a quorum according to the officials of the association the meeting would not have been legal.

A new phase of the situation developed when President H. E. Watson, was called upon and declared that the board of directors was in sympathy with collective marketing, but not as outlined by President J. M. Henderson, Jr. A plan is being developed, he declared, to make a new state association which will include all creameries in the state, and not just the eight associations now included.

E. A. Decou, chairman of the meeting, told of a trip to San Francisco yesterday with Watson to discuss the marketing idea, and said he found the directors very courteous and willing to listen. He said, however, that their plan was not fully explained to him and in view of the fact they favored the plan of President Henderson.

After several hours of speeches by various members and President J. M. Henderson, Jr. of the Associated Milk Producers of California the meeting culminated in a resolution calling for a meeting of the members on each school district during the next month so that proxies can be collected and a quorum had at the next meeting, which will be held on October 22.

E. A. Decou, chairman of the meeting, today tendered his resignation as chairman because he said a feeling was prevalent against him because he did not at present own any cows. His resignation was not accepted but it was voted to ask President Watson of the association to act as chairman of the meeting next month, so as to insure the legality of the actions there taken.

Hogue, named secretary by the insurgents at their last meeting, gave a vitriolic speech denouncing an advertisement which appeared in a local paper which said he was a radical and I. W. W. sympathizer. Excitement ran high during his speech and following it President Watson who was present, and Hogue went outside, followed by half of the audience, who believed they were going to fight—Nothing developed however.

President Henderson gave the keynote speech of the day, appealing to the 400 dairymen present to make every effort to get a quorum for the next meeting so as to either assist the state body in their cooperative collective marketing scheme or let them know they would not do so.

New heating apparatus is being installed in the Grammar school, also new desks for the first and second grades. The high school teachers were entertained Tuesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dewhirst on Elm ave. An elegantly prepared dinner was served, including an abundance of delicious venison which Mr. Dewhirst had secured in his mountain trip a few days before.

MADERA, Sept. 25.—Plans for the Madera County Fair at Chowchilla now include a Mardi Gras carnival for which a large number of masquerade costumes have been secured by the management. Miss Tiny Broadwick has been secured for parachute exhibitions the first two days of the fair. Among other attractions a very remarkable display of fireworks is in preparation. It is stated by those who are in a position to know that the pyrotechnics will excel anything ever seen in the state outside the state fair.

Community Banquet Is Given at Parlier

PARLIER, Sept. 25.—The Methodist church gave a community banquet Thursday evening in the basement of the church, at which about 150 guests were present. A number who had planned to attend were prevented by the threatening weather. A very delightful supper was served after which Rev. F. G. H. Stevens of Fresno made the address of the evening which was very much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. J. H. Stevenson left Thursday for Oakland, where she will visit with friends for a couple weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Higginbotham motored to Bakersfield Saturday evening. Mrs. Higginbotham will visit for a few days with friends there and Mr. Higginbotham will return to Parlier Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Tremper left Thursday for Lower Lake.

Fruit Shipments Are Heavy From Fowler

FOWLER, Sept. 25.—Shipments of green fruit are heavy from Fowler, despite derangement of freight traffic by the damaged tunnel at Tehachapi. Ricketts and Riddell are packing Malagas and Cornichons. The Fowler grape-growers at Guggenheim's plant are getting out two car loads of Malagas and pomegranates, and the Stewart people are packing the same kinds of fruit. Files is packing Malagas and planning for big shipments for two weeks to come.

The quality of Malagas is much improved, the fruit is sweeter and richer in flavor than it has been this season.

A. J. Smith, secretary of the Fowler Grape Growers' Association, exhibited at a local real estate office one box each of Thompsons and Muscats of remarkable beauty. The Muscats had the symmetry of cluster and excellence of berries that are generally seen in Malagas.

MERCED LANDS POTTERY PLANT

New Factory Will Have Output of $1,000,000 Year; Big Payroll

MERCED, Sept. 25.—Within ninety days there will be operating in the city of Merced a new enterprise whose output will exceed $1,000,000 annually, whose pay-roll will have a hundred men upon it, and whose operations will be carried on by three eight-hour shifts.

Arrangements are virtually perfected for the California Pottery company's location. A forty-eight acre site on land adjacent to the Southern Pacific right of way, and just east of the county hospital, has been secured. The plant proper will cover four acres.

The capital stock of the company is fixed at $500,000. New articles of incorporation are being drafted for those figures. The California Pottery Company heretofore has been operating with a capital of half that amount. It is a well-known industry in this section, having been a going concern since 1887, with its main plant in Oakland and with offices in that city and in San Francisco. The company has also a sales yard in Fresno.

The output will be sewer pipe, drainage pipe, roofing tile, hollow tile, terra cotta pipe and all kinds of bricks. The company will cater to the western states, to South America and to the Orient.

Building materials will probably be on the ground early next week, and before January 1 it is reported that the plant will be running under full blast.

Monday F. A. Costello, president of the California Pottery Company, will be in Merced and confer with the business men of the community.

The project has been fostered by the Chamber of Commerce for some time.

Wholesale Candy Factory to Open

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 25.—Porterville is to have a wholesale candy factory added to its list of growing industries. The Beam Confectionery Company has taken a lease on the building at 225 South Hockett street, and will open for business as soon as their candy-making machinery arrives from eastern factories. William Vanduff will be the business manager of the new concern.

HOLD W. C. T. U. BI-COUNTY MEET

Tulare and Kings Unions Gather Hear Talks on Harris Bill

VISALIA, Sept. 25.—The initial executive committee meeting of the bi-county, Tulare and Kings W. C. T. U. opened here yesterday and held an all-day session at the Baptist church, with Mrs. Louisa J. Copp, Tulare, presiding.

At the conclusion of devotionals, reports from the various officers were read.

The treasurer's report showed that $2,060.65 had been turned into the state organization, while to the law and enforcement fund there had been paid $501.

A drive for race betterment netted $500, which has been expended under the supervision of Dr. Sara Wise. Classes have been formed throughout the two counties the members of which have been taking courses in scientific betterment of motherhood.

Addresses were made by Rev. E. T. Nesbit and Horace Knott upon the Harris amendment the speakers urging the women to work hard and vote for its passage.

Have Your Parents Read This

We like to talk to you parents because we have sons and daughters of our own and we realize the interest you have in the future welfare of your boys and girls.

You are anxious to give them all the advantages you can. You want to make their lives just as happy and prosperous as possible. That's the natural desire of all parents. To be successful they must be educated, and if they are required to make their own living, that education must be the right kind. Suppose your daughter, for instance, were required to earn her own living right now—CAN SHE DO IT? Face this question fairly. What is the answer?

Now, dear parents, we believe EVERY boy and girl should have a thorough business education, and we want to say to you right now that regardless of the state of your finances, the Mackay Business College will make it possible for your children to secure that training.

If you have the means—purchase a scholarship for your child in the regular way. Take advantage of the opportunity to save $95 of a nine or twelve month scholarship by enrolling before Sept. 30th. This saving is a special inducement to encourage parents to set aside a fair and equitable time to complete the courses in a satisfactory manner.

If you have not the means with which to purchase a scholarship—see us before October 4th. We have a plan whereby a boy or a girl may earn the tuition fee and secure valuable office training while so doing. Students interested in this plan should reserve a place in our beginning class of Oct. 4th by registering AT ONCE.

WILL PROTECT CRYSTAL CAVE

To Preserve Giant Forest Attraction; Season Ends With Bonfire

GIANT FOREST, Sept. 26—It is hoped that the Crystal Cave may be opened next season. At present it is closed to protect its beautiful limestone formations from damage as well as because of the danger to visitors unattended by a guide. Some weeks ago unauthorized persons tunneled under the barrier at the cave entrance, but it has now been strengthened and provided with a padlocked door. The cave itself is only one of the attractions of the delightful region along Cactus Creek which contrasts strongly in vegetation with the sequoia belt 2500 feet higher up. The bay-scented laurel, the nutmeg and maple overshadow the creek near the cave while two waterfalls, Jewell Falls and Moss Falls are within a stone's throw of the entrance to Crystal Cave. These falls alone are well worth a visit. A few hundred yards up Cactus Creek are the Big Falls, cascading two or three hundred feet down and with a volume of water even in late September. Yet further up, less than half a mile from the cave, are the Soda Springs which gush from the banks of the creek, clear, cold and carbonated. The water has a pleasantly sweet and soft taste, equal or superior to the best advertised mineral waters. Altogether the Crystal Cave region offers an attraction comparable to that of the Big Tree country. And we forget to mention that Cactus Creek is full of fine trout.

The summer social season at Giant Forest ended literally in a blaze of glory before the bonfire at the Keller and Hammond Camps on the evening of September 19th. The bonfire was preceded by fried chicken, apple dumplings and other things which fortified against the pleasant chill of an autumn evening.

"Cash" Webster, the leading meteorologist of Giant Forest, says that we shall now have fine weather until October 20th. While not depreciating his forecast we have taken the precaution of asking the District Forecaster of the Weather Bureau at San Francisco to forward us the daily telegraphic forecast of weather conditions.

Also Giant Forest will soon have a completely equipped station for meteorological observation as we have received word that necessary recording thermometers, rain and snow gauges are to be shipped from San Francisco.

Miss Patton, Miss Keller and Messrs. Miller, Marshall and Leland Keller hiked from Marble Fork crossing to the top of Mt. Silliman (11,188 ft.) in six hours, returning in three hours. They report the view finer than from Alta Peak and that Mt. Whitney could be seen.

Messrs. Miller, Hurd and Look have left for a week's hike to the Roaring River country, their packs on burros. This method of seeing the Sierras is becoming increasingly popular.

On Sunday, Sept. 19, Manager Ryder and the superintendent, while motoring down Giant Forest Road discovered a forest fire on Pine Ridge near Little Baldy. Word was sent to Ranger Keller and Mr. Magly at Crystal Cave to proceed direct to the fire while the superintendent returned for tools and grub which were packed up the mountain on a dark night through manzanita and deerbrush. Manager Ryder and Mr. Kigilvie arrived at the fire as volunteers about 9 p. m. and during the struggle up the mountain through the thorny brush Mr. Ryder lost most of his pants.

Anyone who has not fought fire on a Californian mountain in the summer time has missed much hard work and some fun. After the big blaze has been "surrounded" bread, coffee and jam around the campfire taste like ambrosia. This fire burned over about 5 acres before it was controlled, mostly brush but a few cedar and pine trees.

Several spots interesting to the lover of nature and fine scenery have recently been opened up near Moro Rock. From Moro Vista, ½ mile west of Moro Rock a trail has been put around to the Hanging Rock, a mass of granite twenty feet long which is poised on the edge of a thousand foot cliff. From this point a view of the San Joaquin valley, even finer than from Moro Rock, is obtained.

East of Moro Rock a trail has been extended to East View whence Moro Rock is seen in bold profile, a sweeping curve of granite cliff that strikes the eye by its massive grace and solemnity.

The rate for interest on bonds was fixed at $1.88 while $2.31 was fixed for maintenance and operation. The increase in the assessment roll this year is $529,030 over last year. A new budget has been prepared calling for $118,600 for conducting the business of the district for 1920-21.

Right of Way Is Granted Tidewater

The commission's order also grants the railroad company authority to abandon a portion of its line now located on Virginia avenue, Needham avenue and N street. The entire cost of reconstruction is to be borne by the railroad. The crossings are to be protected by suitable crossing signs and shall in every way be made safe for the passage thereover of vehicles and other road traffic.

Church Orchestra Is to Present Program

Swedish Ministers Will Hold Meeting

KINGSBURG, Sept. 25—The Swedish Methodist Ministerial Association of San Joaquin Valley will hold its monthly meeting next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rev. J. P. Berg. The local ministerial association has been very active in the last year, in various lines of reform, and have done a commendable work both locally and in the State.

To the People of Kingsburg

On the 28th day of September there is a special election to be held for the purpose of deciding whether a pool hall that has been in Kingsburg since it was first incorporated shall continue or discontinue its business.

This billiard parlor or pool hall is the only place in Kingsburg that the boys can go to, or the stranger can come to and rest.

When the great war was on, the Christian organizations did all they could to take care of our boys at the battle front. The Y. M. C. A. especially had billiard tables in back of the firing line for our boys.

Now does [illegible] seem possible this innocent pastime is to be taken away from those who have fought for it?

Is it possible that the mothers and fathers living in Kingsburg want to drive their boys away from home, to seek recreation elsewhere?

Do you want your boys to stand on the street corners or alleys during the winter months and find something more dangerous than that innocent pastime called pool or billiards? Has anyone in this city ever committed a crime or went astray through the billiard parlor?

I say, not in Kingsburg.

We had this pool hall here for [illegible] in all the towns surrounding Kingsburg, what harm can it do to this city?

I hope the people of Kingsburg will give this [illegible] serious consideration [illegible] on the 28th. [illegible]

COMMITTEE

NAME MODESTO FAIR OFFICERS

Commission Meets and Plans for Next Year's Program

MODESTO, Sept. 25—The first official meeting of the incorporated Stanislaus County fair grounds commission was held last night in the board of trade rooms with election of permanent officers and the division of directors into long and short term service. E. L. Sherman was elected Manager-president; J. D. Patterson, vice president; George T. McCabe, secretary, and George Cressey, treasurer.

Under the plan of the articles of incorporation the directors serve for 3 years except the first ten who must serve five each on one and two year terms thus making a change of five directors each two years. One year term directors chosen by lot are R. W. Sweetland, Turlock; J. V. Baker, Turlock; E. L. Sherman, Modesto; De Soto H. Grant, Riverbank and Cy N. Clark, Modesto. Two year officers: George Bentley, Oakdale; V. D. Whitmore, Ceres; W. H. Tingin, Newman; J. D. Patterson, and C. C. Horsley, Waterford. Three year directors are H. E. Cornwell, N. C. Lollick, W. H. Killam, R. R. Iller and Guy H. Miller, all of Modesto.

It was decided to limit the membership in the association to 1600 members who will pay $2.50 entrance fee and be liable for $7.50 assessment in case the fair association runs short of money.

With a starter of $10,000 donated by the county the planning and erection of buildings on the fair ground site purchased by the city will soon begin. All buildings will be erected on the unit system so that at the end of the time all the buildings will be uniform and will be laid out as a whole.

Next year's fair will follow the San Joaquin county fair.

PERMIT TELEPHONE SALE.

LIVINGSTON, Sept. 25—E. R. Thoms, who owns and operates a telephone system in and about this city, has been authorized by the railroad commission to sell his plant to J. May Lamsdam for $2,000.

Kingsburg Band Will Play at County Fair

KINGSBURG, Sept. 25—The local Booster band has signed up a contract with the Fresno Chamber of Commerce for the Fresno County Fair week, and will be on hand to render choice music during the fall fair in Fresno. The boys have made remarkable progress during the past year, and now are being recognized by the outside districts.

Mrs. Amy, recently of Chicago, who has been visiting in Kingsburg with her parents, left for Los Angeles, accompanied by her sister. While in the southland the two sisters will visit Miss Agnes Peterson, a third sister.

J. P. Graber, local band master, and his wife, have moved to their new home east of Kingsburg. Mr. Graber has disposed of all his local property, and has taken to fruit growing. While in Kingsburg he was instrumental in organizing the local booster band, which has been very successful under his leadership.

A. Lobre of Los Angeles, California, is in Kingsburg for a few weeks. Mr. Lobre has extensive interests in and near Kingsburg.

Mrs. H. L. Bishop, accompanied by her daughter Alice, returned home after a visit in Berkeley. While in Berkeley, Miss Alice encountered a severe attack of typhoid fever, but has fully recovered.

Miss Peri Bishop is acting as assistant postmistress.

Central Buys Newman Creamery Concern

NEWMAN, Sept. 25—The California Central Creamery, one of the largest milk products concerns on the Coast, which has operated a small plant here for several years, has bought out the Globe Dairy Product Company, which is valued at quarter million.

The Bauer-Schwartz Company of San Francisco, which owned the capital stock of the Globe company, was interested in the enterprise by a former manager, A. L. Landy. The concern at first operated under the Landy name. Later Landy retired and under the management of J. C. Alexander the Landy processes and machinery were discarded and an entirely new plant installed, which is turning out not only but milk powder and condensed milk. W. L. McNaughton, who has been in charge of the small Central creamery here, will be put in charge of the enlarged plant.

WHIRLWIND OF FALSE GAIETY

Dr. Herman Janss Describes Conditions in Vienna After Visit

Dr. Herman Janss of San Joaquin has just returned from a three months' trip to Europe where he took a ten day automobile trip of twelve hundred miles through the war zone of France and Belgium, and visited England, Italy, Germany and what is left of Austria.

Thirteen years ago the Dr. Janss was a student in Vienna and he is able to speak understandingly of the after war conditions in that unhappy country. In speaking of the difference then and now he says:

"When I was a student in Vienna it was the capital of a country of sixty million people with a population itself of two million and was the gayest of all the European capitals, not excepting Paris. Now the country has been dismembered till all the rich valleys have been lost to it and Vienna stands, a wrecked city of two million inhabitants as the capital of a country with only six millions.

"The real gayety is gone, but in its stead there is an imitation gayety infinitely sad. Money is being spent along the old 'wine, women and song' route, but it is being spent by people who have all their lives been careful, frugal and temperate. Now [illegible] nothing; a hundred thousand kronen is, in your money, less than four hundred dollars; and there is no hope in the future, what we have saved in many years is now worthless.'"

Few children are to be seen, he says, for there is nothing for them to eat and neighboring countries are taking them in large numbers.

The one ambition and hope left in Austria seems to be that some way may be found for entrance into the United States where there is work and pay for it in real money.

He says that in Germany there seems to be an air of waiting: waiting for news of a coal allowance that factories may start; waiting for definite terms of payment to the Allies; waiting for something or other that will come some time to help them get going again.

He found one class of Germans who proudly say that they start to work again that the indemnity and promises of Germany may be made good, and another which says that bolshevism can be no worse than what they face in this payment.

Only one country seems prosperous. Belgium is alive with industry and profits from dealing with all its neighbors. The reconstruction work being carried on by the farmers of France in the devastated districts he declares to be the most remarkable sight in Europe.

PILGRIM CHURCH PURCHASES SITE

Pays First Methodist Church $18,500 For Corner Location

The Pilgrim Armenian church announced the purchase yesterday of the southeast corner of Calaveras and M streets as the site for its proposed $100,000 home. The property was bought from the First Methodist church, and the consideration was $18,500. The site consists of five lots with a frontage of 125 feet on M street and 150 feet on Calaveras. The papers in the transfer have been signed, but, under the law, it will require an order of court to complete the deal.

When the building of the First Methodist church was burned, the M street property was bought as a site for a new building, but a strong sentiment developed in favor of rebuilding on the old site. Additional property was bought adjoining the old site, and the new church will be erected there.

Plans for the new Armenian church have not proceeded to the point of settling upon the type of building, but, according to the pastor, Rev. M. G. Papazian, the structure will cost not less than $100,000.

Set aside next week and plan to be at this great Fair every day you can for never has there an event been held that will equal this in the opportunity for thorough enjoyment. There will be sporting events for those who enjoy that—there will be educational features for those who want them. You are sure to find plenty to amuse and entertain you.

Tomorrow Begins the Big Gala Event, the Big Gates Swing Wide, Inviting You to Six Days of Frolic and Pleasure

Be on hand Monday morning for the opening of Fresno District's greatest Fair. Early Monday morning the gates will swing open—and there will be revealed such an exhibition as you have never before seen. Every feature that has interested you before will have two-fold interest this year—and there will be many more, newer, better and even more interesting. You will enjoy every day of the Fair—no matter how often you come.

DON'T MISS

Tom Mix

AND HIS DAYS OF THE OLD WEST

This is going to be one of the biggest features of the Fair. You have admired this film favorite on the screen. Now come and see him in person and see him put on a show that will be the most thrilling ever—a regular rodeo—a glimpse of the days of the old West. Tony, his horse and the cowboys and girls will be here to help him.

Every Foot of Display Space Taken--Meaning Greater Exhibits Than Ever Before Shown.

The display pavilions are filled to the doors with exhibits—in every department—the agricultural, horticultural, household, livestock, etc. more entries have been made than ever before. You will enjoy these features for they are the evidence of the great prosperity of our district.

Special Prizes for Stock Show

In order to take care of the larger exhibits in the livestock department, special judging and sales pavilions have been built. Special prizes have been also offered and many fine herds of livestock, etc., have been entered in this contest.

"49" Camp

This feature will be staged by the Fresno Post Legion boys and they promise you a "regular" time. It will be such a show as they put on at the Auditorium some time ago, only better, and if you had a good time there—come and patronize it again.

Path of Pleasure

There are many concessions here—many perhaps that you have never seen and enjoyed before. Up and down the line you will find something doing to keep you amused and entertained for an entire day and evening.

The Leap For Life

This sensational feature will be an every day event. A high chute has been erected down which a daring bicycle rider will plunge—diving into a tank of water beneath. Don't miss it. Every afternoon and evening.

Fire Works Every Night

You won't want to miss this big feature—for the fireworks displays will be more gorgeous, more spectacular than you have ever before enjoyed. Plan on staying out at night for this is one of the big events.

September 24 to Oct. 2

Music and Dancing

There will be music in plenty—two bands playing day and night for your entertainment. And every night after the fireworks there will be dancing.

Don't Miss the San Joaquin Valley Classic On Saturday

And be sure and be on hand for the last day of the fair, for that is the day that the new speedway will be dedicated with the greatest auto race that has ever been held in the Valley, the San Joaquin Valley Classic. Some of the world's most famous drivers are already here testing out the new speedway and a thrilling race is anticipated.

PROBE OF STATE ROAD CONDITION COMPLETE OCT. 5

Northern Territory Still Remains Uncomplete Say Inspectors

Preliminary Reports On Roads to Be Filed October 15

Investigation of the state road system by the California State Automobile Association through Highway Engineers E. F. Peters and Walter C. Howe will be completed October 5, according to an announcement made yesterday by H. J. Brunnier, chairman of the Good Roads Committee of the Association.

The engineers have completed a physical inspection of the entire paved state system with the exception of the roads north of San Francisco along the coast.

Questions involving thickness and width of pavement are being studied in the light of present day road burdens and an effort is being made to estimate future traffic. In approaching this investigation and in passing upon the various details which present themselves a friendly and constructive spirit is the controlling impulse, according to Chairman Brunnier.

How best to administer funds supplied for a definite programme, and which through an unforseen rise in the cost of labor, material and transportation is now found inadequate, is another problem to be worked out and solved.

The preliminary report is expected to be filed October 15th.

YOSEMITE WILL CLOSE ON OCT. 1

Scores of Motorists Are Arriving During Last Few Days

CAMP CURRY, Sept. 25.—With barely a fortnight remaining before the official closing date, the first of October, scores of motorists and other guests are still arriving to pay the Yosemite a belated visit. Weather conditions have remained exceptionally fine in spite of the lateness of the season, and there is every indication that the weather will continue fair until the camp closes.

Mrs. D. A. Curry and Foster Curry, in charge of the management of the camp, have large plans in view for the season of 1921, and preliminary work on these has already begun. The work of dismantling the outlying sections of the enormous camp has begun and tents and other equipment are being stowed away for the winter, under the supervision of Curry and Wallace B. Curtis, his associate manager.

Motorcycle Patrol to Keep Highways Free From Glass

With the object of keeping the streets and highways free from broken glass and other debris, the California State Automobile Association will inaugurate a motorcycle patrol next Monday, September 27.

This new service to members was announced by Secretary Manager D. E. Watkins. It is the plan of the association to have a motorcycle rider patrol the streets daily. Members are invited by the association to report the presence of glass on the streets to the association headquarters.

It is planned later to extend the service to other sections of northern California.

An ordinance requiring drivers of milk wagons to sweep up broken bottles is also under consideration.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 24.—Five checks aggregating $83,500 sent by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads to the Nevada State Highway Department have disappeared on the way, state officials announced here tonight. Government agencies were asked to trace them. It is thought possible that the checks were destroyed with the mail airplane that burned near Luckey, Ohio, September 14.

One of the most elaborate weddings for many seasons was that last night at St. James' Pro-Cathedral, when Miss Helen Elizabeth Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer D. Clark, became the bride of Edwin Carnall Balaam of Exeter.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of yellow chrysanthemums, and one longstemmed blossom with a spray of fern was attached to the end of each one of the pews. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. Herbert Dunn, the wedding party entered promptly at the appointed hour. First came the vested choir, singing the Lohengrin Chorus. Then walked the little pillow bearers, Nathan May and Norman Balaam, dressed in white linen suits. The pillow was a long white satin one, the cover beautifully embroidered with the monograms of the bride and groom.

Following the little boys walked the ushers, in pairs. They were Robert Campbell Clark, Roland Senter, Robb Young, Arthur Bradford, Chester Isaacson, and Kessler Hammond.

Following the ushers came the bridesmaids, their dresses making a rainbow effect. The dresses were of taffeta, made bouffant style, with distended hips. They were short, and trimmed about the waists with roses. All the bridesmaids carried bouquets of Cecil Bruener roses tied with tulle to match their dresses, and wore halo hats of tulle. First walked Miss Florence Bradford and Miss Leona Pfister, dressed in a delightful shade of green taffeta; Miss Everard Hunt and Miss Helen Trevor were in pink taffeta, and Miss Marian Anderson and Miss Marian Myers wore lavender taffeta.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Campbell Clark, walked alone, dressed in light blue taffeta trimmed with silver ribbon. Her bouquet was of Killarney roses.

The bride came next on the arm of her father, and she was indeed a picture to draw all eyes to her. Her dress was made very short of heavy white satin, elaborately trimmed with duchess lace. It was wired out about the hips, with a flounce of wide lace falling over the skirt. The waist was almost entirely of lace. Falling from the shoulders was a long train of satin, over which fell the wedding veil of tulle which was held to the hair by sprays of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a handsome one of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley.

At the altar the wedding party were met by the groom and his best man, James Pogue. Dean G. R. E. MacDonald read the service.

As the party left the church, they were followed by a number of Delta Gamma sorority sisters of the bride who had come down from the Bay for the wedding. They were led by Miss Barbara Cowan and were Misses Bernice Livingston, Leoline Brown, Claire Lowe, Helen Conroy, Irene McMillan, Roxie McMillan. As they filed out, each took one of the long stemmed chrysanthemums which had decorated the pews.

Noticeable among the many handsome gowns worn by the guests was that of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elmer Clark. It was made almost entirely of sequins over pink metal cloth. Mrs. C. F. Balaam of Exeter, mother of the groom, was also most becomingly gowned in a lovely dress of grey beaded georgette, trimmed with blue.

Immediately following the service at the church, a reception was held at the Clark home on N. Van Ness avenue, the guests being the bridal party, the sorority sisters, the immediate relatives and a very few intimate friends.

At a late hour, Mr. and Mrs. Balaam left by motor for their honeymoon, the bride wearing a beautiful suit of midnight blue peachbloom, embroidered in red and green. Her hat of the same color was brocaded in gold. Upon their return, they will live in Exeter.

The many gifts of silver, cut glass, and furniture, were displayed in a room upstairs.

Among the guests from out of town besides the sorority sisters, were Mrs. J. J. Pfister, Mrs. E. H. Lewis, Misses Vera and Frances Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hunt, all of Berkeley; Miss Mary E. Wilson, president of Miss Head's school in Berkeley; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Balaam, Mrs. E. S. Balaam, Mrs. N. C. Carnall, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. May, Miss Miriam May, Masters Grafton and Mortimer May, Robert May, all of Woodlake; Mrs. Mortimer Smith; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Pogue of Exeter, and others.

Miss Thelma Morgan, the fiancee of Knox Blasingame, was the honored guest yesterday afternoon when the Azulejos club entertained with a charming tea at the home of Miss Merilyn Smith on Belmont avenue. The beautiful home was simply but effectively decorated with fall flowers. The living rooms and library had flowers in the autumn colorings and the dining room was in a color scheme of pink and white. On the table was a lovely arrangement of pink roses and lavendar tulle in a basket. Pink candles in crystal candle sticks carried out the effective color scheme. Misses Alice Clark and Blanche Barton served at the table and were assisted by several girls who have recently become pledges to the club. Among these were Misses Mary Louise Parsons, Marguerite Brown, Leona Droge, Florence Blasingame. One of the attractive features about the refreshments was the large wedding cake, decorated in pink and white, which when the first piece was cut by the bride elect, was found to be ice cream.

Among the club members are Misses Merilyn Smith, Blanche Barton, Alice Clark, Verna Vogel, Eleanor Armstrong, Constance Block, Doris Barr, Doris Black, Helen Giffen, Rosalie Mays, Margaret McWhorter, Eleanor McWhorter, Phyllis Packer, Alyce Timmins, Thelma Morgan.

School Principals Form Association

With an even dozen heads of schools in attendance, the Fresno County Principal's association was formed at a meeting held yesterday in Superior Court room No. 1. A permanent organization was perfected with the election of the senior principals, C. L. Geer of Coalinga and S. L. Stoner of Reedley, as president and secretary, respectively.

Representing the county school department were Clarence Edwards, superintendent, and Louis P. Linn, assistant superintendent, while the following principals were in attendance: H. Rode of Clovis, C. L. Geer of Coalinga, T. O. Renfrow of Kingsburg, Dr. Davis of Laton, S. L. Stoner of Reedley, Mr. Walton of Caruthers, E. G. Thompson of Sanger, Mr. Didduith of Riverdale, Julia M. Doughty of Tranquility, C. N. Steger of Easton, Mr. McKillip of Selma, Capt. Delbert Brunton of Fresno and Cree T. Work of Reedley.

ANTI-VIVISECTION MEASURE SCORED

California and Stanford University Officials Point Out Menace

BERKELEY, [illegible]—The Board of Regents of the University of California and the Trustees of Stanford University have united in a public statement pointing out the menace to the public health, the injustice to them, and the danger to education, science and research in the initiative measure No. 7 on anti-vivisection. The statement is as follows:

"The advance of sanitation, modern medicine and physiology and the teaching of biology all rest on the use of appropriate animals for demonstration and research. The control of epidemic diseases, the management of surgical operations and of childbirth, and the certification of milk and water supplies would be impossible without the knowledge gained by such studies. In fact the whole structure of the present day protection of the public from disease rests upon studies made upon animals.

"The University of California and Stanford University are vitally interested in this initiative measure since its passage would stop the research work now going on in their medical schools, hospitals and laboratories, and in the Bureau of Animal Industry. The studies on botulism in olives, which will not only save the ripe olive industry of the state but many lives, would cease, as would likewise the manufacture of serum for the prevention of hog cholera, the preparation of vaccine for anthrax, and the various other measures that annually save millions of dollars and prevent great suffering among domestic animals. Even feeding experiments on animals would be impossible.

"No worse attack on the welfare of the state and on the right of the University to seek and teach accurate knowledge and information could be made. Every man, woman and child, every unborn babe, every domestic animal in the state will be affected if this measure becomes a law. No one will tolerate cruelty to animals. The present laws of the state are drastic and quite sufficient to control any abuse. We know that there is no cruelty to animals in the laboratories of the universities. They are in charge of men and women of the highest character who are unselfishly working to better the lot of their fellowmen. Anesthetics are always used for animals in the laboratory in exactly the same way that they are used by surgeons in the operating room.

"California must not go backward. We must be able to give the best care to both men and animals, to study disease, and to protect the industries of the state by further research. We urge upon the citizens of the state the defeat of this initiative."

(Signed) The Board of Trustees of Stanford University.

President

ANTHROPOLOGISTS AS EXPERT ADVISERS

CARDIFF, Wales, Sept. 3.—(By Mail.)—A suggestion that governments should employ anthropologists in an advisory capacity was made by Professor Karl Pearson of London university at the annual conference of the British association which is just being held here.

"The governments of Europe," the professor noted, had all kinds of experts in their service, but no ethnological advisers.

"One has only to study the peace of Versailles to see that it is ethnologically unsound and cannot be permanent," he said. "India, Egypt, Ireland, even our present relations with America and Italy, show only too painfully how difficult we find it to appreciate the psychology of other nations."

"If the spirit of violence be innate in man," the lecturer concluded, "if there be times when he not only sees red but rejoices in it—and that was the strong impression I formed when I crossed Germany on August 1, 1914, then outbreaks of violence will not cease till troglodyte mentality is bred out of man. That is why the question of troglodyte or hylobatic ancestry is such a vital problem to the state."

MODESTO

The social world is again extending its greeting to all who delight in the frivolities of the age and any happy afternoons are being planned for the season. Friends are happy to greet each other again and especially glad were the members of the Christmas Club to welcome each other after the vacation time at the first meeting since the summer months in the home of Mrs. Henry Turner, Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. L. L. Dennett as hostess. Needlework was the afternoon's pleasure. The membership of this club is unchanged, remaining the same as former years, this including: Mesdames H. W. Wilbur, B. F. Stone, A. J. Carlson, H. A. Bates, N. Leek, George Threlfall, George Grenfell, S. J. Irvin, E. C. Peck, Thomas Griffin, B. F. Surryhne, Mrs. Henry Turner and Mrs. George Elsey of Lawrence, Kansas, were guests of the club Wednesday.

Exquisite in each detail was the luncheon party presided over Wednesday at 1 o'clock by Mrs. C. S. Kerr in her home. She placed her guests at individual tables and each table was prettily arranged with lavender favors, the place cards in the shapes of mammillias being especially original, the clever work of Mrs. A. H. Jarman, one of the honor guests. Lavender was the predominating color used by the hostess in both decorations and menu, two tones of asters being used throughout the living rooms thus furthering the decorative scheme. The affair was given complimentary to some San Jose matrons who were house guests in the Kerr home, Mesdames Walter A. Folger and A. J. Jarman. Following the serving of a delicious luncheon bridge claimed the interest of the guests, favors being awarded Mesdames E. H. Zion and Walter Scoon. The guests at this delightful party were: Mesdames Walter Folger, A. H. Jarman, W. Wiggins, F. Locan, Lionel Wise, Leo Carpenter, Sylvain Latz, E. H. Zion, Walter Scoon, Geo. L. Bare, Walter P. Shoemake.

On last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shoemake presided over a delightfully informal dinner party at the Hotel Modesto having as their guests several of the season's bridal couples. A bride's bouquet was used as the centerpiece while the place cards furthered the ideas. Covers were placed for, besides the host and hostess, Messrs. W. H. Killman, I. L. Diensting, and Carroll Fulkerth.

Bridge, both pivot and progressive is slated to be as popular this season as former years and the various clubs are reorganizing in order that the members may enjoy a full year. The card table has always proven an attraction, a happy pastime for an afternoon or evening. An informal club which met last year having many happy times met Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Arthur Wiecgarver. The players for this afternoon were: Mesdames Robert McDuffie, George Maze, Wm. Devlin, Harry Conway, Raymond Whitby, Dave Hartley, G. L. Bare.

A telephone call summoned a number of friends to dinner Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Zion, the affair being given to compliment a visitor in the home, Miss Anna McConnell of Sacramento. Informality marked this dinner party.

A score or more youngsters congregated at the Presbyterian church, Friday evening to enjoy a candy pull. The best taffy ever, so said the kiddies was made during the evening and all sorts of fun and frolic was indulged in while it was being concocted. And during the pulling of the taffy, merriment reigned supreme. The happy guests were the members of the Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society of this church and Friday was one of their regular social evenings.

Informal teas have shared honors in entertaining this season and this delightful mode gives the hostess ample opportunity to ask a number of friends to drop in to meet her honor guest. Mrs. E. H. Zion adopted this mode of introducing her house guest, Miss Anna McConnell to a number of friends at her home Saturday afternoon. The guests who dropped in for tea and who enjoyed meeting Miss McConnell were: Mesdames B. F. Stone, A. J. Carlson, E. C. Peck, C. S. Kerr, W. N. Steele, Geo. Schafer, L. L. Dennett, N. Leek, Hugo Ekstein, W. R. Carpenter, Geo. Threlfall, B. F. Surryhne, W. L. Roberts, Misses Fanny Morey, Margaret Bowen and Grace Melton.

A beautiful centerpiece of lovely asters from the hostess's own garden graced the round tables presided over Friday evening by Judge and Mrs. J. C. Needham in their home. A delicious menu was served the guests who were bidden to accept the Needham's hospitality.

An enjoyable evening was spent last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Lollick of Wood Colony, when a number of young people gathered together for a farewell party in honor of Misses Mable Strom and Vera Strom who are to enter San Jose Normal and Vincent Lollick and Clarence Hadley who will return soon to the College of Pacific. The evening was spent in playing games, after which dainty refreshments were served. Those present were: Misses Anna Strom, Lyda Carver, Cora Zweep, Myrtle Hayward, Flo Wilder, Pearl King, Olean Well of Fresno, Olean Wood, Edith Hadley, Eliza Thompson, Ruth Howell, Nora Walstrum, Anna Blessing, Helen Upton, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Strom, Charles Wilder, Martin Anderson, Bundy Strom, Chas. Myers, Alvin Brink, Horace Lollan, Reginald Lollan, Nyron Gunder, Elmer Spenker, Harry Howell, Elmer Wade, Cecil Wade, Everett Ford, Lawrence Kelly, Floyd Edwards. Miss Anna Strom, Flo Wilder and Pearl King assisted the hostess in serving and making the evening a success.

Mrs. Peterson is still active and enjoys good health. Accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ida Peterson, she came to California a couple of months ago and expects to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Anderson, and son John A. Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. John McConchie and Mrs. A. E. McClanahan have returned from Long Beach, where they spent the summer.

Mrs. J. B. Moornaw is visiting with the Joel Wright family at Los Gatos.

TURLOCK

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnson, when Melvin Lundgren and Miss Effie Johnson were united in marriage. The Rev. Carl Anderson of the Swedish Mission performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lee attended the bride and groom. The procession entered the room to a wedding march played by Miss Ruth Larson.

The bride was beautiful in white georgette over white satin, and a tulle veil held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of large beautiful roses.

The home was beautifully decorated in pink and white and gorgeous dahlias were in profusion.

A program, in charge of Art Lundgren was rendered, as follows: Male quartet; solo, Agnes Johnson; reading of telegrams of congratulations; talk, Rev. Anderson; piano solo, Alice Berglund; remarks, C. F. Anderson of Stockton; solo, Ethel Anderson of Stockton; male quartet. About 100 guests were present, including relatives and nearest friends.

After the ceremony, a sumptuous wedding supper was served, during which the bride gave each guest a small white box in which was a piece of the bride's wedding cake. The bride and groom are both of Turlock and have many friends here. Mr. Lundgren has a farm in Youngston Colony, on which he has been living for some time. [illegible] Lundgren has been making her home with her parents, southeast of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Lundgren left for Los Angeles on their wedding trip and will be gone for a week or ten days, and upon their return will make their home on the farm.

NASH MOTORS

The Franklin CAR

—152.5 Miles In Low Gear
—12 Hours and 25 Minutes
Without a Motor Stop

—This is the remarkable record made by the Franklin in the test it was put to Tuesday, September 21st.

—The car used was a stock car in every respect save that high and intermediate gears had been removed from the transmission.

—The Franklin traveled in low gear from Fresno to Lemoore, thence to Hanford, Laton, Fowler, Selma, Kingsburg, Dinuba, Orosi, Reedley, Del Rey, Sanger, back to Fresno—a total of 152.5 miles—without a motor stop—covering the distance in 12 hours and 25 minutes—one hour and forty-five minutes ahead of Schedule time!

—Not once did the Franklin motor give the slightest evidence of overheating. Not once did it as much as miss a single explosion—not a single adjustment was made on the entire trip.

—Could any other car—but the Direct Air-Cooled Franklin—go through 12 hours and 25 minutes continuous running in LOW GEAR without overheating?

—It is certainly a test no water cooled motor could be put to.

Consider What It Means In Motor Performance

—There were more than 1,200,000 cylinder explosions—enough normally to drive the Franklin more than 450 miles—crowded into 152.5 miles of running!

—To turn the wheels once—the Franklin motor revolved 13.65 times! The average speed was 12.3 miles per hour. The gasoline consumption was 13 gallons—or 11.73 miles to the gallon! And as the motor turns 3.15 times oftener in low gear than it would in normal high gear, therefore, the gasoline mileage would have been 36.95 miles to the gallon!

Why We Made This Test

—We wanted to give a demonstration that would prove conclusively that the Franklin Direct Air-Cooled Motor will not overheat—even under the severe condition of running continuously hour after hour in low gear.

—Franklin cooling depends, not upon the rush of air through a radiator filled with water—but upon air pulled through the cylinder flanges by a fan in the fly wheel.

—The faster the fan revolves, as it does in low gear—the more air is drawn through the cooling system. The Franklin will not heat in low gear anymore than in high gear.

—The Franklin does its cooling with air DIRECTLY—that is the only difference. The Franklin way is infinitely simpler—infinitely more efficient. It makes possible a lighter car, a more economical car, a more comfortable car.

—May we give YOU a personal demonstration of these facts?

PRESS AGENTS: PUBLIC OPINION

Problems Growing Out of their Great Increase During the War.—Many Varieties from Original Circus Type.

A debonair young miss intrigued her way into the editor's presence. Pale frocked and coiffured with that nicety which seems to be desirable, she was clearly capable of carrying by direct attack all of the organized defenses intended to protect modern men from the intrusions of the outside world. Office boys and secretaries proved quite unequal to fending off such a visitor.

The editor looked up from the mass of papers which hardly held his sophisticated attention. For a moment he was aroused and interested—the young thing knew that he would be. She delivered her message: "I am the press representative——" she began. The editor's heart sank, but before he had time to interrupt she hurried on, "of the such-and-such church. I have here a live story about the missionary movement in Mandalay. Here is a short statement, and I have lovely pictures, ——." The chances are at least even that she told the truth, or that at any rate she had concocted an interesting yarn. In time, it may be that what she had written will be printed and the gentlemen who are anxious for publicity in order that the heathen of Mandalay may be converted will be duly impressed.

The girl, who, in her own vocabulary, is "selling missionary stuff" to the editors is one of the most recent recruits to a once despised but now respected and prosperous craft. Her spiritual ancestor is the circus advance man, while her most impressive present associate is the "director of public relations." Her calling has enlisted thousands of men and women in all the large cities and in most modern countries. It includes many types of effort, some legitimate, some verging on the criminal, some of the high dignity of a ministry of foreign relations. For press agents and publicity advisers harbor within their ranks individuals as various as does the law or medicine. There are good press agents and bad press agents, just as there are shyster lawyers in league with criminals and members of the bar devoted to noble forms of public service, and between the two extremes there is an almost infinite gradation.

Press-agenting was born in the circus, just as surgery sprang from the barber's chair. For a long time the advance man of the itinerant circus was the most prominent representative of the profession of publicity. An ingenious soul was this forerunner. He was the familiar annual pilgrim to most of the newspaper offices in the country. His duty was to obtain the publication of a story about his show. He had little news to offer, and so he turned to gentle invention. He was, perhaps, the original nature faker. Every year he brought an announcement of a strange new animal, ordinarily never before caught on land or sea. His tales were not especially true, but they were amusing.

Theater Press-Agenting Next

When his own fancy failed, he would lure reporters to his collections. Bright young men would permit themselves to be persuaded to accept the lady gorilla's invitation to afternoon tea, and a fine story would be had. Or the python would go to the dentist for the delectation of the journalist and the enrichment of the press agent. The devices were endless. Once an American circus invaded London, and the advance found the papers adamant against his ordinary wiles. But he was not baffled. A letter supposed to be written by one of the "freaks" was sent to the Times. In this letter the scientific causes of freakishness were discussed in seeming solemnity. According to tradition, an enormous correspondence was thereby evoked. The circus was the talk of London. The press agent smiled wearily. One of his old best tricks had won the day when his latest novelties had been vain.

The theaters quickly imitated the circuses. They hired newspaper men, and soon systematized the advance man's art. A circus comes and goes, but the theater runs on forever. Consequently the theatrical press agent had a difficult job. After the first day or two his production really afforded no news. But his salary depended on the frequency with which he got "news notices." He accordingly became the prolific parent of invention. The most fantastic creations sprang full-blown from his typewriter. Some of his imaginings were palpably untrue, but interesting as semi-fiction. Theater press-agenting has now attained the weight, if not the dignity, of a very solemn profession. The agents hunt in packs. Representatives of diverse and competitive companies meet at appointed hours and make the rounds of the newspapers as gravely as a complete set of honorary pallbearers. They are corpulent and well dressed, and apparently prosperous.

Some of them, of course, are young and energetic and wicked. The public has had a taste of the extravagant lengths to which such go. District Attorney Swann was aroused lately by the movie press agent who invented a suicide for a Japanese actress in order to attract notice to a film drama. Fakers of that ilk are like shyster lawyers or quack doctors. If there are laws to punish men who contrive lies to waste the time of public officials and of newspapers, the publicity faker ought to feel their severity. Let it must be admitted that press agents were not the first wolves who masked as journalistic lambs.

Yellow journalism played its part. Unscrupulous editors have been known to invent foreign correspondence in order to compete with more enterprising rivals. Men who pretended to write from London or Paris or Berlin have actually composed their articles in New York or Chicago. The inside faker was the conscienceless proprietor's pet economy. Fully many a traveler of yellow journalism has never left the home office. Men trained in this type of shameless invention have responsibility of much of the worst sort of press agent faking. For the reporter taught by a yellow editor to fabricate falsehood is apt to continue the business when he goes into the publicity fold.

Bold Lying Under the Ban

Sometimes, however, the faking is only intended to be temporary—and then it becomes a hoax. No less a literary man than Edgar Allen Poe was the author of one famous hoax. In the early days of American journalism the hoax was a favorite diversion of enterprising editors. Pseudo-science was the usual stuff from which impossible tales would be fashioned. Trips to the moon, made possible through some miraculous invention, have more than once been imposed upon a gullible public. Even now the hoax is used by ill-advised journals. A modern editor, keenly aware of his responsibility, will no more knowingly deceive the public than will an honorable manufacturer vend spoiled products.

This is the real reason that mendacious press agents are under the ban. The springs of public information cannot safely be polluted. Yet that is what happens when men and women take to inventing occurrences designed to enrich some one at the public expense. But actual "faking" of news is relatively an unimportant feature of the press agent's field. The news liar is probably no more numerous in the craft than is the medical or the legal liar in those professions. As a matter of truth, the press agent is the natural by-product of democracy. Public opinion is said to govern in free countries. Perhaps it does—not certainly does if it persists long enough. The press agent, the director of public information, the public relations adviser, are each in their degree engaged in making public opinion for the cause they represent.

The causes of the individuals represented may be good or bad. The undertaking, however, if carried out in accordance with an honorable code, is itself sound. Suffrage is a good example. In order to get votes suffragists had to enlist public opinion. Newspaper publicity was the most direct route. In Boston the newspapers at one time were decidedly hostile to the suffragists. Women seeking the vote found it next to impossible to get any press mention of their meetings. They therefore resorted to many subtleties.

Going to Jail to Make News.

To no small extent suffrage has had to dramatize its news. The suffragists have not "faked," but they have created events for the sole purpose of attracting attention. The endless number of women who have gone to jail for the infraction of petty ordinances have had this goal in mind. To some the effort has seemed to go to the extent of fanaticism, but the sacrifices of the suffragists have been justified by success. In their work they have elaborated a remarkable technique which is being used in many other fields. Every reform movement has its publicity department now. Reform must have the support of a favorable public opinion, and the press agent seems to offer the facile route to that end. News is created. A meeting is staged, not because it is expected that the meeting in itself will accomplish much, but because news will develop from the meeting.

Not only movements but also individual men and women often stake their reputations on press agents. Occasionally it works out strangely. Not far from Manhattan Island lies a preacher who in the judgment of one of his flock was not sufficiently well known. So this worshipper surreptitiously hired a press agent to bring fame to her preacher. The agent was effectual. On every topic of the day that particular divine was interviewed. He was subtly led to take attitudes and to state views sufficiently bizarre to assure attention. The press agent was engaged for a six weeks campaign. Within three weeks the member of the congregation who had sought to invest in fame had enough. But meantime the minister had become a public character. His appetite for headlines had been whetted. He had learned to see himself in terms of news values. It was an unfortunate discovery. But it is precisely what some politicians and opera singers have long been been doing.

Out of all this random development the business of the publicity expert has matured. As matters now stand nearly every large organization has its press agent. The field of activity has, too, enlarged. For when the press agent becomes the "director of public relations" he assumes new duties. Instead of seeking to get material printed he often exerts himself to keep his clients out of the papers. The best of the type are genuine advisers. They are men of experience. They are called in to estimate the possible effects of certain courses of action. They are supposed to be experts in appraising the temper of masses of men. One course of action is advocated and another opposed. No business man with a skilled publicity adviser would ever say anything remotely resembling "the public be damned." These words might express his innermost views, but he would be wary enough to avoid the tactless utterance.

Propaganda's Various Guises.

Besides advising modern business what not to do, the "director of public relations" must explain appropriately what is being done. In this positive fashion the press agent has something of the work of a lawyer, with the difference that he may be talking to the nation rather than to a jury. The railroads began to take on men for this service when the Granger movement was at its height. Much of the legislation unfavorable to the transportation companies had been stimulated by unpleasant personal relations between farmers and railroad agents. More fundamental grievances were, of course, also operating. But when the corporations changed front and began through considerate utterance to woo the good-will of the public, the emotional impetus of much of the anti-railroad lawmaking was cut off. So has it been with business generally.

The positive side of this publicity service becomes propaganda. Psychologists during the last few years have begun to lay a somewhat scientific basis for work of this sort. Suggestion constantly reiterated does have its effects, although these are often nullified by other conditions. Business propaganda is both immediately and remotely useful to the organization using it. The primary duty of the press agent is favorably to interpret the actions of his employer. Almost every large business has definite public relations. What city councils, state legislatures and even congresses may do is of great moment to them. Consequently the "public relations adviser," the super-press agent, must steer a course for his client as nearly in harmony as is possible under the circumstances with what he imagines to be the public will. States and nations moreover, began even before the world war to imitate this development of large business.

The development is entirely natural. Diplomacy inherently is in part a press-agenting and newsgathering business. The diplomat during the war found himself in a competition with newspaper correspondents and with governmental press agents. The ministers and ambassadors frequently found themselves sadly "scooped" by correspondents who were more enterprising in finding ways of transmitting news than were dignified diplomatic persons. Open propaganda has, of course, never been esteemed proper for embassies and legations, but still the successful foreign representative has been the man whose personal popularity put his country in a favorable light abroad. For that reason graceful speakers have been very useful in the foreign service.

New Diplomacy's Use of Publicity

As diplomacy becomes "open," the ambassador tends to become more and more a director of public relations in foreign lands. During the war most countries found it desirable to create "committees on public information" to supplement this work of diplomacy. Often jealousy arose between the two branches. Ministries of foreign affairs deemed themselves entirely competent to handle all the propaganda of their countries. Perhaps they were. Certainly since the end of the war brought about the dismantling of the frankly propaganda organizations the foreign offices have been ladling out "public information." Those who do not like the particular species of information thus dispensed are critical of governmental propaganda, but really the tendency is progressive. For, if the democratic peoples are ever to control their foreign policies, they must know what those policies are. Propaganda from a foreign office can scarcely be termed "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," as a philosopher would understand truth, but nevertheless it is an improvement over the old-fashioned secret diplomacy. In recognition of this fact the creation of ministries of public information or departments of propaganda is being launched in more than one great country.

The great objection urged against the super-press agents of business and governments lies in the charge that they render the truth more difficult to get. Some do and others do not. In one way these entrepreneurs of public opinion have rendered news gathering easier of

MINISTRY OF HEALTH

Great Britain's Unified Health Administration Under Cabinet Member

New York Times

"Where the city of the faithfullest friends stands,
Where the city of the cleanliness of the sexes stands,
Where the city of the healthiest fathers stands,
Where the city of the best-bodied mothers stands,
There the great city stands."

It has been suggested that these words of Walt Whitman should be written in letters of gold over the doorway which leads into the Ministry of Health, a massive building in London, not over 200 yards away from the British Houses of Parliament. Certainly the main objective of this new ministry, which has now been in existence as part of English national life for just over a year, is to prove the truth of the poet's words.

Throughout the world there has been a demand since the war for unified health administration. The Austrian government appointed a Minister of Health in 1918. Dr. Addison, who at one time was a medical man in the East End of London and later became a university professor at Sheffield, in August, 1919, was appointed the first British Ministry of Health.

The experience of Great Britain in dealing with this problem, although inevitably little can be accomplished in a few months, has a worldwide interest, and it is useful to consider the reasons why the British electorate were so unanimously in favor of this new Ministry. Up till a year ago, fourteen different government departments in England muddled and meddled in health questions. An ordinary workingman was entitled to medical attendance at home under insurance committees administered by one department; his wife could get medical advice at a clinic run by the local council; his children at school were medically inspected under arrangements made by the board of education. If vaccination was necessary a man could get this done by the vaccination officer of the Guardians, a body run by the old local government board; the home office was concerned with the man's health in the workshop, while another department kept records of the birth of his children. Inevitably this division of responsibility led to confusion and overlapping.

The Ministry of Health co-ordinates the health functions of these various departments with a view that the heatlh of both rich and poor may in time be under the one minister.

The first necessity is to have vital statistics properly collected and continuously studied. Accordingly, the Registrar General's office, which deals with births and deaths, now is under the Minister of Health, and the coming census of the people is to be conducted scientifically, so that there will be ample data available for future research. For clearly, a Minister of Health must be concerned with research into the problems of disease, and for this reason accurate information is essential.

Another function of the new ministry is to direct the various medical officers employed by the state. Under the Poor Law Service there are upward of 4,000 medical men. The Public Health Service is controlled by 1,800 sanitary authorities and 318 local education authorities, who employ a staff of over 3,000 medical officers. In addition to this the National Insurance act of 1911 brought 12,000,000 insured people into medical benefit which is at present provided by 12,000 doctors and 10,000 chemists. It is obvious that uniformity of administration is necessary if this varied work is to be carried out effectively and economically.

Little by little a national program is being evolved to deal with the medical problems of motherhood, childhood, adolescence, adult life and old age; with the prevention and cure of non-infectious diseases as well as infectious; and with the education of the public through the press, the pulpit, the platform and Parliament. But it is of significance that the program, so far as it is outlined at present by the officials of the Ministry of Health, emphasizes the question of education for parenthood.

Schools for mothers have been opened in all parts of the United Kingdom and special state assistance is being given to finance these schools. Herbert Samuel, who is now governor of Palestine, wrote in 1913 when he was president of the local government board: "The infant cannot indeed be saved to the state. It can only be saved by the mother. But the mother can be helped and can be taught by the state." It is interesting to note in this respect that the American Red Cross Society has very generously interested itself in certain English schools for mothers, and has given money grants to enable the schools to extend their work.

Mothercraft is being taught to all elder girls in the elementary schools, to girls over 14 at the continuation schools, and to married women. In every case emphasis is placed on the fact that the health of the girl herself as a future and potential mother is of the utmost importance. Lord Rhondda, who for years pressed for a Ministry of Health, declared in 1911 that such a department properly conducted would save a thousand English babies' lives a week. It is believed that already the work of the infant welfare department of the Ministry of Health is having a far-reaching effect, and that the figures next year will show that not only is the infantile death rate being reduced, but that the burden of suffering and weakness which result from the bad bringing up of infants is being decreased.

For the government of Great Britain is looking to the next generation. The industrial revolution of the last century, so poignantly illustrated in the novels of Bronte and Dickens. A school medical service was instituted in England and Wales in 1908, and was further extended by the Fisher act in 1918. Today every child in the national schools of England is medically inspected at regular intervals. Special attention is given to the teeth. There is systematic physical training. In case of need school meals are provided. In this respect it is noticeable that owing to the increase in unemployment during the last few weeks the number of meals that are being provided to school children since the beginnig of August is on the up grade. There is also special open-air education for defective children. There are 1700 school nurses engaged in this work. There are 580 school clinics, and in London alone last year over 160,000 children received special medical treatment.

It is fully appreciated that bad housing means diminished personal cleanliness and physique, increases the sickness rates, particularly the risks of infectious and contagious diseases, and lowers the general expectation of life. For this reason the provision of adequate housing accommodation is regarded rightly as one of the most urgent tasks which Dr. Addison has recently undertaken.

As well as the housing department, a large section of the ministry is devoted to dealing with such subjects as infectious diseases, tuberculosis and venereal diseases. There are approximately 19,500 beds in sanatoria available for patients suffering from tuberculosis, and a comprehensive scheme for medical treatment of this plague is now being drawn up with the advice of the consultative council, one of the most important new developments of British health policy. A number of experts, who are not simply administrative officials likely to be bound in red tape, have been appointed under the chairmanship of Lord Dawson of Penn, a man with an international reputation on health subjects. In this way expert medical opinion is brought to bear directly on the policy and administration of the new department.

As well as infectious diseases, the council is dealing with the difficult problems of the prevention and treatment of non-infectious diseases like heart, rickets, indigestion, mental diseases. It is felt that the time has come for prevention rather than cure to be applied to all diseases. This includes both medicine and surgery, which although primarily curative, prevent or remove the causes and condition of disablement. All these are technical questions which now for the first time in England are being dealt with under one head.

"Now I see the secret of the making of the best person. It is to grow in the open air."

The world saw Great Britain organized for war in 914. Now little by little the nation is bein organized for the purpose of national health.

Another division has to see that the money spent throughout the country is properly audited; while yet another has to deal with the Poor law. But briefly expressed the functions of this ministry are six:

1. To administer the work of local government.
2. The formation of a medical intelligence service.
3. The initiation of health legislation.
4. The co-ordination of the health work of the central departments.
5. The encouragement of preventive medicine.
6. Advice and assistance with regard to foreign and imperial health questions.

From the American point of view the last named is one of the most honorable health services carried out by Britain. The department exercises continuous watch on the centers of epidemic diseases in all parts of the world, and warns port sanitary authorities, when any dangers arise. In conjunction with the British foreign office and the consular service, full information is kept up with regard to plague, cholera, smallpox, yellow fever and malaria. In the words of Sir George Newman, "Knowledge leads to control, and to control these diseases is to control the tropics, and to make new zones of the earth available for human habitation and expansion."

This work entails co-operation with the International League of Red Cross Societies, and F. N. Doubleday of New York could bear witness to the sympathy with which American suggestions on this matter have been received. Further, this question of international medical work leads to the new health campaign in which the League of Nations has now made itself responsible. At the present time the steady advance of typhus fever westward through Europe is a matter of deep concern to the medical profession. The infection appears to start in Russia, where, according to official soviet figures, there were nearly 2,000,000 cases last year.

It is a matter of regret in Europe that the United States up to the present has no taken its share with the League of Nations in the organization of a permanent health division of the league to protect the world against the spread of this disease. It is fully recognized that Poland has been served valiantly by a sanitary commission composed of 500 American officers and men and that Great Britain has provided money to fight the disease, but the manace is steadily growing. It is necessary to plan comprehensive methods for cleansing, for disinfectants, for the supply of food, and already the League of Nations has provided 2,000,000 shirts and 2,000 tons of soap.

While seeking to avoid the dislocation of commerce, which is apt to result from quarantine, efforts are making to increase international understandings with a view to improving the health of the world.

None can forget that 5,000,000 lives were lost in India from plague in the first ten years of this century, and that nearly 6,000,000 died from influenza in India in 1918. While regarding the problem primarily as one of strengthening the normal physique of the British people, the nation's principal asset, so that normal life in India may be happier and more productive, the heads of the Ministry of Health appreciate the fact that they are the commanders of a medical army which is seeking to defeat "the captains of the men of death."

HOLD MEET ON CHILD RELIEF

Hoover Confers With Committee; 2,500,000 Children Starve

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Conferences are in progress, it was announced today, between Herbert Hoover, chairman of the American Relief Administration, and officials of the Red Cross, Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and church bodies, both Catholic and Protestant, with a view to "joint and co-operative action in the effective organization of American charity toward 2,500,000 destitute children in Europe the coming winter."

Hoover, it was said, has just received reports from a conference of sectional managers of child feeding operations abroad which indicate approximately 2,5000,000 children of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, the Baltic states and other parts of Central Europe, must be fed until the next harvest, "to avert an unthinkable tragedy."

The American Relief Administration, it was said, fed 6,000,000 children during the winter of 1919. With the gradual improvement in some countries the number of hungry children decreased to about 3,250,00 last winter. The funds of the Hoover organization, it was stated, will be exhausted about next January 1, at which time, unless there is support on a large scale, the work will cease or operations will have to be so curtailed that "deaths from starvation will rival any casualty list of the great war."

SAYS GRACE BEFORE RESTAURANT MEAL

LONDON, Sept. 25.—In a small restaurant in Bird-in-Hand court, Cheapside in the heart of the city, where a "Fish Ordinary" served as it was served in 1793 grace is always said before the meal commenced.

A courtly old man of 80 receives the customer at the door and punctually at 1 o'clock he "takes the chair." When everyone is seated this white-haired old man, Mr. Henry Shelton, raises from his seat, raps on the table and says quietly, "Ladies and Gentlemen, grace please." Then there is silence. He bows his head reverently and adds, "For what we are about to receive may the Lord make us truly thankful."

When everyone is served, the carves the three courses of fish himself; he looks down gravely from his high-backed oaken chair and if one has the honor of knowing him he will raise his glass and drink with you.

At the conclusion of the meal he raps the table again, and says "Ladies and Gentlemen, grace please. For what we have received may the Lord make us truly thankful."

Every day for twenty-four years he presided over this meal table and it is claimed that this is the only restaurant in London where grace is said before and after meals.

PORTUGUESE STOP GAMBLING MANIA

New Government Raids Rooms in Reform Campaign

LISBAN, Portugal, Sept. 25.—Gambling which flourished here to an extraordinary degree after the armistice, has suffered a severe check at the hands of the new government headed by Premier Baptista. Up to two months ago, the gambling houses remained undisturbed, but since Baptista's government took office the law has been rigorously enforced and now there are few visible signs of the prosperity the gamblers have enjoyed for a year.

The gambling mania began to manifest itself as soon as the war ended. Magnificent clubs on which big fortunes must have been spent suddenly sprung up like mushrooms; gilded, glittering clubs, splendidly furnished, such as Lisbon never dreamed of possessing. Palaces belonging to the old aristocracy were rented at incredible prices and transformed into "The Majestic," "The Palace Club," "Maxim's," "Palais Royal," and dozens of others on the same scale, with restaurants, ballrooms and gambling rooms; everything being perfectly planned and carried out on the most modern and expensive lines. Hundreds of smaller imitations followed, until it may with truth be said, that not a street in Lisbon was without two or three gambling houses.

A great change came over the humdrum social life of Lisbon, where nothing in the way of amusement ever happens beyond theaters and moving picture shows. The club-restaurant's excellent cuisine attracted fashionable crowds, constant relays of American and English tourists spent their money lavishly and smartly dressed women coming nobody knows from where were a doubtful source of attraction in the streets by day and at the clubs by night.

This condition existed for well over a year. Then well-known firms were robbed by trusted employes.

An officer, who wore the Cross of War, shot himself after losing large sums of money, which was not his. Young men belonging to the best families fell into disgrace.

A campaign was then begun by part of the Portuguese press, headed by the Seculo and the Situacao. Columns of letters from parents and well known Lisbonites were printed daily, disclosing demoralizing facts and exhorting the government to close the clubs. The government, however, rapidly succeeding each other, had other things to attend to. And the gambling continued.

When the Baptista government came into office strenuous measures were taken. The magnificent clubs, the glittering restaurants, the smart foreign women all disappeared as suddenly as they had burst upon the scene a year ago.

For a week carts and camions conveying roulette tables and other gambling paraphernalia to the police stations formed the chief attraction of the Lisbon streets.

DRIVE TO SUPPRESS TSETSE FLY PEST

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Aug. 28.—(By Mail.) A great game drive is in progress in Zululand, with the object of stopping the ravages of the tsetse fly, which is fatal to equines and bovines.

Whole tribes of Zulus attracted by the prospect of unlimited meat, are taking part in the drive. They are mostly armed with assagais, the native spears.

It is thought, however, that the size of the drive is defeating its own object. The wild creatures have become panic-stricken and the ludicrous situation now exists of the hunters having become the hunted.

The great cordon of white men and Zulus has been broken in several places by charging herds of frantic zebra and other animals, and the hunters have been compelled to split up into small parties for their own safety.

PRESS AGENTS; PUBLIC OPINION

achievement. Through the press agent it is at the worst possible to get an official version of the facts in any particular case. Before the rise of the publicity business it was often impossible to get this. Responsible executives were inaccessible. In a big strike, for example, both sides usually now have their press agents.

The correspondent who accepted one of these partisan statements as the prima facie truth would be as superficial and as prejudiced as a court which based its decree on the unsupported brief presented by one side. But a lawyer's brief does not necessarily befuddle a jurist and a press agent's announcement need not inevitably deter a reporter from his pursuit of the facts in any issue. The good judge verifies the allegations of the counsel and the wary reporter uses the stuff supplied by press agents for what it may be worth. If he is lazy or incompetent or prejudiced he may be frustrated by the publicity man, but in similar fashion a judge might be thwarted by a lawyer. But the sin would be that of the individual and not of the system.

On the whole it may safely be guessed that the press agent, large and small, has come to stay. Propaganda is not a passing phase. Popular government is in the ascendant and public opinion is the power behind the democratic throne. The publicity man is the attorney whose arguments may go to the nation. He is frankly a special pleader. He has not the detached passion for truth which is the glory of the scientific mind. Often also he seems embarrassingly numerous and at times irritatingly banal. Sometimes he is a shameless liar and again he appears to be an enemy of the people. But he would be missed. Whether as the fabricator of harmless pleasantries or as the serious proponent of far-reaching policies, his place is as sure as the lawyer's. And that species, be it observed, is in no immediate danger of extinction.

IS PERMITTED TO KEEP HIS SPURS

VIENNA, Sept. 4.—(By Mail.)—A former officer of the Austrian army was walking through a poor quarter of the city in full uniform when a workmen's councillor ordered him to remove his clanking spurs. An altercation ensued, leading to a suit by the officer for defamation. The court gave him damages to the amount of 1,000 crowns and told him he could wear the splendor of his former estate when and where he would. The workmen's councillor pleaded that he and his neighbors objected to such a reminder of the old-time authority of the military class.

Since the ratification of the treaty officers in the full uniform of the old army with breastloads of medals and decorations have become very much in evidence on the promenades. Many of them say their uniforms are the only decent clothes they have.

EDUCATORS READY FOR STATE MEET

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Sept. 25.—Plans for educational legislation to be sought at the next session of the state legislature are expected to occupy most of the discussions at the annual convention of state and county superintendents opening here October 4. Heads of state normal schools, representative of the state department of education and members of the state board of education were invited to attend in addition to the superintendents.

Visits to the Sherman Indian school, University of California, Citrus Experiment Station and the site of the proposed Riverside Farm School were on the program.

THE BRITISH

les in the early 'ninties, and after residing a year there came to Fresno.

His first work was in a livery stable, though in less than a year he was engaged as a teamster. In 1904 he became foreman on a large ranch.

In 1909 he entered the employ of the Fresno Canal and Irrigation company, then of the Fresno Land and Canal company, having care of ditches.

Mr. Ross is now a landholder, having a valuable forty acre ranch.

Robert Lochead, county supervisor of second district, was born in Ayrshire in 1865. He came to this country in 1884, taking up his abode in Iowa, in which state he lived for three years. He came to California in 1887, working first in the planning mill in Fresno. In 1908 he organized the Fresno Planing Mills company, of which he was the president until he sold out his interests in 1916.

Irish.

William Doherty was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1855. So eager was he to get to the new country that he left the Emerald Isle before he had attained a full year of age, and tried his fortunes first in Massachusetts. Not being satisfied with the New England environment he transferred his residence to Wisconsin, and later to Kansas. In 1860 his father took the family across the plains in a wagon and they found themselves settled in the San Joaquin valley. After farming in Stanislaus county, Mr. Doherty moved to Kings county. He and his brother were probably the first farmers near Hanford, and Mr. Doherty claims to have sown the first alfalfa that was planted in Kings county. In 1901 Doherty purchased twelve hundred acres on Little Dry Creek, in Auberry valley, and moved to this county. He used the land for stock, for farming and for timber. This tract he sold in 1914, then purchased in the Barstow district. For four years Mr. Doherty prospected in Death valley, where he searched for deposits of nitrate of soda. Fortune was kind, and he was rewarded by a find which he sold for a good price to an English syndicate.

South Africans.

The only South African Fresnans of whom we have learned are Mrs. P. T. Ryan and sister. They left Cape Town in 1905 and went via England, New York and Boston to Chicago, where they spent four winters. They did not like the climate, and, hearing that climatic conditions in this valley were equable, came here in 1919.

Canadians.

The first to come into this valley, after its exploration by the Spanish, were French Canadian trappers, who found their way down here in the interests of the Hudson Bay company, when otters and beavers were in all the streams, bears in the foothills, and dense flocks of ducks along every stream of water.

One of these trappers, a survivor of the old regime, is living now near Hume, in the region of the Upper Kings River Canyon, where he has collected skins and furs of all animals that range that region, as well as many specimens of snakes and birds. Some young ones are kept in captivity. In this region the French Canadian trapper, Joe Clark, has hunted and trapped for more than a score of years, his collection now constituting the most valuable, representative, and interesting local museum we have. It belongs where it is, in the setting of mountain, big trees, woods, and canyons; but it is to be regretted that this irreplaceable collection is not more available to the average Fresnan.

There are many more Canadians, almost all of British extraction, who came into this country than is generally supposed. As was mentioned in Part 1 of this account, in 1910 there were in this country 1,530,944 persons who were English Canadian by birth or who had one or both parents of English Canadian birth. Similarly, the proportion of Canadians in Fresno is greater than is generally supposed, though we are not able to cite statistics. At the present time the clergy of at least three churches in Fresno are Canadian by birth, and at this time last year there were four such churches. Many British people who are in Fresno have come here by way of Canada. The portions of Canada from which they seem to come in largest numbers are the Maritim provinces and the province of Ontario.

One of the best known of our Canadian born is the Reverend G. R. Edward MacDonald, Dean of the Episcopal Pro-Cathedral Church. Although born in the Province of Quebec, his college training was in the University of New Brunswick, at Frederickton, located on the Canadian Hudson, the St. John river, and his first charges were in that picturesque province. From New Brunswick the Reverend MacDonald came to Hanford, where he was rector for a few years, then to Fresno. He is the president of the Council of Advice of the San Joaquin Valley Episcopal Diocese; secretary of the Missionary Commission of that district; a member of the Department of Public Welfare, of Fresno county. In our first article on the British we gave a portion of Dean MacDonald's published account of the Hanford church of the Saviour, founded by English pioneers.

A few Australians have come to Fresno, though we believe they do not number more than a half dozen families. Included among these are:

Honorable William D. Crichton, familiarly known as 'Judge' Crichton. Judge Crichton is in the anomalous position of being neither foreign-born nor native-born. He was born at sea in 1863 while his parents were enroute from Australia to San Francisco, and saw American shores with as young eyes as any of the foreign-born, or, for that matter, any of the native-born. At the age of fourteen he went to work in Humboldt county as a ranch hand, remaining at this employment until he was twenty-three.

He then began work in the lumber business in Eureka, studying law at night. In 1887 he came to Fresno and was admitted to the bar in 1890.

That same year he was elected justice of the peace. A decade later, in 1900, he was the Democratic nominee for the national House of Representatives, but being in the wrong party—for the minority is always in the wrong—was defeated.

PILGRIM WRITINGS FOUND IN HOLLAND

LEYDEN, Holland, Sept. 4.—(By Mail.)—New light is thrown on the residence of the Pilgrim Fathers in Holland by three old documents which Professor Eekhof discovered in the archives of Leyden and which he published on the occasion of the Dutch Pilgrim Fathers' celebration here. One of the documents is a contract signed by John Robinson, leader of the Pilgrims, declared to be the only signature of Robinson which has been preserved and this discovery may lead to the identification of other writings by him.

The second document is a letter written by William Bradford a short time before his departure from Holland. He was afterward governor of Massachusetts Bay colony.

The third paper Dr. Eekhof discovered is the last will of Bridget White, John Robinson's wife, and contains a considerable quantity of interesting information about Robinson's household.

Dr. Eekhof has added to his work the facsimiles of three documents.

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 25.—The metropolitan police bureau of Tokyo has started a searching investigation into profiteering in an effort to check rising cost of living, according to the Tokyo correspondent of the Nippu Jiji, a vernacular newspaper here.

WEEKLY COMMENTS
PEOPLE EVENTS PUBLICATIONS

By Charles H. Shinn

A young man once went into the old Mercantile Library of San Francisco to "look up a subject" for a newspaper article. It grew on his hands, and interested all the library people. Instead of spending an hour over three or four books he found both profit and pleasure in giving his evenings for more than a month to the following up of clues in books on the shelves of many an alcove. When he could get no further without mastering several such languages as Sanscrit and Arabic he wrote his article, concerning which a University professor said cheerfully "You went a little way into a very large matter!"

Dolefully the young man replied to his old teacher: "I know it. Never before have I realized how one can go into a library and stick a pin hole out through the sky, so as to see the constellations move overhead. I only wanted to know a little about pottery, porcelains and ceramic art, but fifty life-times could not master it!"

The best thing about real love for knowledge is that it carries one into the universe and gives him a key which unlocks door after door, and will so continue forever. To teach, in the true sense, means merely this—that the child is started on the road, and thereafter gathers knowledge, not for fame or pelf, or any prideful silliness, but simply for love of seeking the truth, and climbing towards the light.

Long, long ago the writer remembers seeing a fat youngster rubbing his spelling book in the mud. To his sister's remonstrance he replied, "Nothin' but words—darned mean ones too!" But not long ago we were reading about the making of the great "Oxford Dictionary." Dr. Trench, back in 1856, pointed out how very defective were even the best dictionaries in existence. Then some three and a half million new quotations showing uses of words were made, a group of lexicographers like the late Dr. James Murray gave their lives to the work—and at the present time eight of the ten volumes planned for have been issued by the Clarendon Press, Oxford.

"Morale"

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, the veteran educator, who has lately resigned from the Presidency of Clark University, has added another volume of great value to those which long ago made him one of America's leaders of thought. He holds "Morale" to be the supreme standard of life and conduct—earnestly sought for by millions of discontented persons in every possible field of human activity."

"Morale" is the very spirit of life; Dr. Hall compares it, in his first chapter, with the standards of conscience, honor, and the superman. Of the last, he says that when this "superman" appears, he "will be content to be thought least," will "place the good of others before that of himself." The war, he adds, has taught us a "cult of condition" which adds a new factor to the ideals of the other three standards by which we live. "Morale" is health, wholeness, the "flower of every kind of hygiene"—both personal and social—efficiency; perpetual preparedness so that what must be done is "done now."

Dr. Hall tells us that the world war was simply the total collapse of an old-world morale, Germany "lost her old soul" and put a demon in its place. Other countries had lost "their vital touch upon present reality. Hence the need for a new international consciousness, a new feeling of solidarity."

Our author discusses in twenty chapters this entire subject—the better measurement of all human conduct, all human institutions. In a chapter upon "Morale, Sex and Women" he tells us that the new world must be more of a woman's world" in a way that will bring to her and her apostolate for the race a new reverence, * * * It is then her task to re-evaluate the world and all its institutions—business, trade, state, church, science—by the supreme test of their service in bringing future generations to an even more complete maturity." If Galton is right in calling eugenics "the religion of the future," women will be its priestesses. Dr. Hall believes that woman, rightly using all new opportunities, will, in this greatest crisis of her sex, make herself "more womanly, not more manlike, and thus do most to make the post-bellum world a wiser and a better one."

"Other chapters which will illustrate Dr. Hall's straight forward way of putting his case are on "The Labor Problem," "Prohibition," "Profiteering," "Feminism," "Education," "Statesmanship," and "Religion." One of the most timely ones deals with "Morale and the Reds," showing how labor reorganization is the only hope for the civilized world. His words are: "Psychology sees one way, and one only, of setting a backfire to Bolshevism and its perversion of the soviet idea, and that is by effecting the reorganization of industry on a broad cooperative basis, and giving the world an object lesson of harmony and efficiency in production with the recognition of the primacy of the human factor in order to substitute mutual goodwill for unrest and conflicts."

What has this great teacher to tell us about "Morale and Religion"—his last chapter? Very much that will arouse dissent or lead to discussion. But it will do good, for as he justly tells us: "the world will never be saved by creeds, forms of worship, or even belief * * * even these are valuable or vicious, solely as they improve or impair character."

In other words the final test of all institutions is what do they do for will, feeling, emotion, sentiment, character, action? This leads our author up to the questions "What is true Progress?" "Is man really making any?" He believes firmly in "the life of service," carries pragmatism to its limits, would check "the devastating momentum in hyperindividuation and greed which has destroyed every great state in the past." But "selfishness is again rampant to an almost mad and orgiastic degree, until it seems as if nothing but a new religion could save us from disintegration."

The heart of this book is that "love alone unselfs," that the full service of each for all is the highest Morale of the race and the individual to be found. This is a noble and worthwork of Dr. Hall's year of work.

D. Appleton & Co. publish the book, which ought to be in all our libraries.

"The Blood Red Dawn"

Californians will take up with interest a new book which the Harpers issue—the first novel of that well-known writer of short stories, Charles Caldwell Dobie of San Francisco. It shows an intimate knowledge of many things beneath the surface of city life; it has all of a young writer's pains, passions, hatreds, and affections. Claire Robinson, the heroine, appears with her widowed mother on the first page, at the Second Presbyterian church, hears an appeal from Dr. George Daniels for his country—Serbia.

Claire is a stenographer, has musical ability, tries to earn all she can to help her mother, works for more than one vulgarian and poison-minded employer, fights free at last, and finds other work. Those who know business life as it averages up will feel the literary exaggerations in many of these episodes, nor will the melodramatic close of the novel seem high art. It is tragedy in "the blood red dawn" to be sure, but Claire with a better mother, and anything like a real home would never have been twenty times so near destruction.

Decidedly the best chapters in the book are those that deal with people and events in and around the Greek Cafe on Third street. Daniels, as the story develops, is felt to have both tragic passion and intense affection in his soul, so that one is not surprised that Claire marries him on his death-bed, though he has tried to kill her. Condor, drunken old Flint, Nellie Lily Whitehead and some others belong truly in this human drama. The reader, laying down the book, asks himself "Does Ned Stillman of "the old Rubicon Hill family," who wins Claire after Daniel's death, impress one as the star of the play?" To be sure he has a superb gesture of leadership at times, but does not live up to it.

This new novelist has the ability to go far with his powers of character-study, and readers will do well to follow his work. Let him give us in his next some happy and loyal-hearted home-building and out-door Californians, as we feel sure he can.

"Leerie"

The other day a request came from friends for a list of fifty new novels—"but no war stories." We had to reply that in these days some of the very best, such as "Harvest," contained more than a glimpse of the great conflict. Today we have been reading Ruth Sawyer's splendid story of a hospital nurse, Sheila O'Leary, whom every one loved to call "Leerie" for short. She goes to the front in the end, but in spite of that it is plain that none who begin the book will be able to lay it down before the end, so full of humor and strength is the tale.

Mrs. Albert C. Durand of Ithaca, New York (who is Ruth Sawyer the novelist) has never done anything to equal this book, which is joyous at times, and in other places just as tragic and serious-minded as it is possible for a book to be. Leerie, and the patients whom she saves from death—and worse—and the head-nurse and all of the doctors except one (who is a cowardly cad) and one snake-hearted nurse, Miss Jacobs, who is utterly hateful—all except these two are simply lovable and fine in everything.

Of course Leerie's own love story, and the young newspaper man, Peter Brooks, who she marries after their long toils together "at the front," will be for many readers the best of the novel. But serious-minded critics everywhere will ask themselves: "How is it that Ruth Sawyer knows so much about life in health and in disease? How does she get underneath the surfaces of doctors, nurses, invalids and all sorts of people? She has the larger philosophies, the true eugenics, the deepest psychologies. Besides, she does sincerely and forever love the rest of the world.

We shall tell the secret—Ruth Sawyer is a wife and a mother and her husband a trained physician, went over to France in the war-strain, while she did all she could in America. The characters in "Leerie" belong, we think, to both of the Durands and will make readers want to set right down and tell Ruth Sawyer just that.

Peter, the Davison Butler

The Appletons publish a novel by a new writer, Charles Brackett, an amusing society romance whose title, "The Counsel of the Ungodly," tells so little, and yet implies so much, that we have taken the liberty of suggesting a better one.

The heart of the plot is that Peter Van Hoeven, aged 62, loses all his money at a stroke. He tells no one, leaves his friends in France, becomes the butler in the household of new-rich Mrs. Isaac J. Davison. There is a fine daughter, Mary, whom the reader cannot fail to admire. Neither can Peter, who, when the long-lost father re-appears, and a lot of strange, amusing "March Hare" performances follow which threaten to engulf the happiness of the family.

But our shrewd old Peter the butler manages things with the genius of a born diplomat, becomes Mary's "darling Uncle Peter," brings her and the right young man together, and (to give the last words of the butler-hero) "they are to be married next month. Blessed are they that administer the counsel of the ungodly, for their plans succeed."

"German Leaders"

We have at last a penetrating criticism of forty-five German leaders of "yesterday and today," written by Eric Dombrowski, one of the few independent newspaper men of German, and published by the Appletons. His articles are of the sort that cut to the bone. The ex-Kaiser, Ludendorff, Von Tirpitz, Prince Max, and most of the rest, great and small, are nailed to the wall for the world's laughter and contempt.

The two most illuminating sketches in the book are those on Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht—those intense radicals. But the most awful account yet in print is that of Wilhelm II, superficial, incidental, lost in self-love and foggy mysticism.

"Lindy Lloyd"

This novel carries a sub-title "a tale of the mountains"—not anywhere "out west," but in those moonshiner lands of the Alleghanies which have afforded the background for much strange history and some thrilling stories. The author, who lived and taught school in the country she describes, is Mrs. Marie E. Hoffman, and it seems to be her first book. The Marshall Jones Co. of Boston are the publishers.

The heroine, Lindy Lloyd, is a plucky and attractive girl who is forced into a secret marriage by a rowdy sinner, Hass Hicks, in order to save the life of one she loves—a fine young doctor. Bad as Hass, the villain, has been all his life, some one—his mother—cares for him, and she has her poor little wish at last: "God Almighty send he can die in his bed"—long before the officers arrest him for nefarious crimes. Then Lindy is united to the young doctor, Hugh Humphrey.

In years to come, when the sturdy American people of this mountain region are educated and made a part of the national life in the fullest sense, such scenes as this novel portrays will seem absolutely impossible, but anyone who knows the region as it has been in a not remote past will recognize its truth and historical value.

A. BEVERLEY BAXTER,
Author of "A Blower of Bubbles"

"A Blower of Bubbles"

The author of the book, named as above, which we lately spoke of is A. Beaverley Baxter, and he looks as cheerful as if he did nothing else all day but amuse a lot of charmful children. But he does, or he could not do much newspaper work, nor would the Appletons have published his book.

Short Reviews

MacMillan published a book last year which deserves to be widely read in California. Its title is "The Iron Hunter" and ex-Governor Chase S. Osborn herein tells the story of his busy and successful life. Its frontispiece shows us the author's mother, Margaret Ann Fannon Osborn—and it is a superb American pioneer face. Books of this brave sort are god for young men to read.

A little paper-bound volume entitled "Where Iron Is There Is the Fatherland" comes from B. W. Huebsch, is by Clarence K. Streit and sets forth the close relations of "privilege and monopoly" to war and all the war industries. It is a powerfully written, but not aggressively radical presentation of pregnant facts.

From the same publishers we have Morris Hilquit's "Socialism on Trial." Mr. Hilquit was the counsel for the five socialist members of the New York legislature who were expelled from that body. This pamphlet gives his closing address, and is already a historic document. Like the previous pamphlet it belongs to a series of discussions published in popular form, and called "The Freeman Pamphlets."

From the Harr Wagner Publishing company of San Francisco we have a little book of verse by Carl Bryan Rayburn of Dinuba. Its name is "The Dream of Dreams, The Charge, and Other Poems." They show a musical ear, and genuine, though untrained imagination. The volume will give real pleasure to many readers who will hope to see the growth of this young poet in years to come. There are eighteen "sonnets," so-called in the table of contents, but only a few of these are cast in true sonnet form—the rest are just lyrical verses in other than sonnet shapes.

Ruth Sawyer's "A Child's Yearbook," which Harpers publish, contains lovely child-verses and pictures. It is well worth remembering for next Christmas, and we expect to quote from it some of these days.

CHILEANS DEMAND LIQUOR CONTROL

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 21.—(By Mail.)—Agitation in favor of rigorous enforcement of regulations governing the sale of intoxicants and for additional measures of control has been growing recently in Chile.

"A campaign has been started to make the Araucanian Indian reserve of Cholchol "dry," following a petition to the government from residents in the district alleging violations of the existing laws which prohibit the sale of alcoholic drinks on Sundays and feast days and by persons without license. "The petitioners declare peddlers visit the Indians on holidays and during their traditional fiestas, trade liquor for blankets, fowls and cereals, with the result that the feasts "degenerate into drunken brawls and much disorder."

Movements also have been started by workers in the nitrate and coal fields in favor of prohibiting the sale of liquor on pay days.

The cup of happiness was brim full and flowing over for Mr. and Mrs. Wilber L. Main of Klink last Saturday afternoon, when their eldest son, Roy L. Main, took to the altar Miss Myrl Mozel Mathias, and while the paternal parent with a number of intimate friends was witnessing the ceremony, a telephone message caused the elder Main to unceremoniously break from the happy assemblage and hurry to his home, where Mrs. Main presented her husband with a bouncing baby boy. He aptly said that blessings came doublefold to a few people on earth, among whom he considers himself. Later he thought of the joy that came to his first born, but their happiness had been complete while on the Sabbath morn all Klink was profuse with congratulations doubly bestowed upon the Main household.

Read What Mr. Burgess Says About the Fresno Farms Tract

Fresno Farms Co.,
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gentlemen:—

Fourteen years ago I came to California from South Dakota, and after looking over land offered for sale, I purchased sixty acres of the Fresno Farms Company Tract, northwest of Fresno.

Since then, I have planted the entire piece to Thompson Seedless vines, and 40 acres of which is now 5 years old, and this year the crop from these vines and the younger vines amounted to all of 80 tons of raisins.

Realizing that raw land is limited and steadily increasing in value, I purchased one hundred and sixty acres more land a year ago, two miles west of my present holdings, and am now preparing to plant the entire hundred and sixty acres to Thompson Seedless Vines.

I believe we have just the right location and the right kind of soil for the maximum production of Thompsons.

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM BURGESS

What Mr. Burgess Has Done With 40 Acres You Can Also Do

The above letter written to the Fresno Farms Co. is just one of dozens that we have on file in our offices.

They all tell of the wonderful success of various ranchers in developing their raw land purchased from us.

What other vineyardists have done out there you can also do, for there still remains hundreds of acres of the very same kind of soil and all other conditions are identically the same.

You can do it—all you need do is to buy a tract of raw land and plow it, plant it, water it and cultivate it and in a few short years you will be independently rich.

TERMS:
$200
—Per Acre
1-5 Cash
—Nothing but interest at 6 per cent for the first three years, balance in two annual payments.

Fresno Farms Tract is Not a New Tract

The Fresno Farms Tract was put on the market several years ago and thousands of acres were sold at that time and they have all since been improved and planted mostly to Thompson Seedless vines and they are the show vines of the valley today. Thousands of acres of them are to be seen throughout the district. The pioneering here has been done and you are assured of success the moment you plant your vines.

The Handsome Doug Picks a National.

Mr. Fairbanks is the owner of a number of cars, but just before he left for the East he dropped in and bought one of the new National Sextets. And he didn't take it without a demonstration, either. Doug drove the car all over the country for a couple of days before signing on the dotted line and then declared that the National was the easiest handling car he ever drove.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS PICKS A NATIONAL

CLAIMS IT HANDLES BETTER THAN ANY CAR HE EVER DROVE

Douglas Fairbanks is considered one of the most enthusiastic motor fans in the country, having a string of America's highest-priced motor cars as well as the best that Europe produces. His latest car is a National sextet which was chosen by Mr. Fairbanks in competition with a number of the best cars in the United States. He decided on a National because of the car's ability to perform and act.

The sale was made by the Garden Court Garage and Motor Supply company, Hollywood dealers for the National sextet, and from all reports Mr. Fairbanks tried out the car from every angle before buying—pushing it over the top of the tallest grades, racing it through rought roads, and subjecting the car to every condition he could possibly think of.

When Mr. Fairbanks put his name on the dotted line, he said: "I have never driven a car that handled and performed so marvelously," and he has driven the best the world has produced. —Advertisement.

The War, the World and Wilson

A Review of George Creel's Book

George Creel's alliterative volume, "The War, the World and Wilson," just published by Harper & Brothers, is a eulogy of President Wilson and the part he played at the peace conference. The book is written as if it were the President himself telling the people the truth of the whole matter just as it happened.

Mr. Creel charges in several chapters, in fact almost throughout the work, that the facts about the war and the peace have been distorted by enemies of the President. In the very first chapter and on the second page he declares:

"Our might struck the shackles of tyranny from the body of the world, but it was our pledges that set free the heart of the world. America, without dissent, indorsed these great guarantees of a new and better order, and the allied governments accepted them and hailed them as words of light and guidance. At home they gave unexampled unity and indomitable resolve; abroad they poured like wine into the war-weary veins of the allies, won the support of neutral nations, and struck at the very foundations of enemy morale. The world, hopeless, despairing, turned to us as the forlorn of Galilee turned to Christ, not knowing, but believing; not asking, but trusting.

"It was the giving of these pledges that won the war; it is the repudiation of these pledges that is losing the peace. What is the use of mincing word? The moral leadership that was our pride is now our shame. The peoples of earth are turning from us even as they turned to us, and in their hearts is a vaster bitterness than comes from any mere betrayal of the body."

Apparently Creel reflects the President's ideas as to how the nations of the world regard this country since the Senate repudiated the treaty. Here is an extract from a part dealing with the necessity of a League of Nations which promises to become a campaign issue:

"* * * Never was choice so plain. Either a League of Nations, a great world partnership in world reconstruction, eager and effective in restoration and stabilization, abating the passions and despairs of humanity by the sanities of its justice, or else a military establishment sufficiently large and powerful to guard our shores against the rising storm. There is no parallel for the madness that strikes down the peace treaty with one vote, insulting and alienating the whole world, and with another vote reduces naval appropriations, denies universal training, wipes out our merchant marine, and utterly annihilates the aircraft program.

"It is the people, as always, in every great crisis, that must meet these problems and give these answers. Poisoned by partisanship, the bankruptcy of Congress is utter and absolute. Government by proxy has fallen down. It is the men and women of America who must fight the peace even as they fought the war. Not Republicans nor Democrats, nor conservatives nor radicals, but the people as a whole; the countless millions who are not seen or heard, but whose energy and hopes and devotions are the strength of democracy."

Wilson Not a Politician.

One chapter is devoted to Mr. Wilson himself; it is a defense against the attacks made upon the Executive and deals with the President's personality, especially with the charge that he is "autocratic."

"As far as appearances are concerned," the author tells us, "there is a certain measure of justification for the repeated charge that the President is inclined to autocracy, preferring to 'play a lone hand' instead of inviting counsel; that he is cold and lacks human warmth; that he is selfish and self-centered; that he is without capacity for friendship, and that he has worked disintegration by his disregard of Congress."

And in defense of these charges, the writer says:

"This clash of diametrically opposed conceptions of power, while at the bottom of the President's inharmonious relations with Congress, was given intensity by personal dissimilarities no less fundamental. Woodrow Wilson looks at things from the standpoint of the statesman; the average officeholder approaches government from the standpoint of machine politics. The politician is concerned only with votes, the statesman with results; the one has an eye upon the popularities of the moment, the other upon history."

Creel points to "the treadmill activities of the White House," declaring that in truth its occupant has little time for anything else and that the presidency can hardly be regarded in the light of a job.

"I saw him (Mr. Wilson) many times," the author says, "when his face had the gray of ashes, but the one complaint that I ever heard was on the score of sleepiness. 'I'm getting like Dickens' Fat Boy,' he laughed one day. 'I could go to sleep at an angle of ninety-five degrees.'"

One of the interesting chapters in the book is entitled: "The Case of Leonard Wood." Creel gives the General credit for nothing and sets forth documents to show that he is not entitled to any of the glory others have given him, not even excepting the part the General played in his Cuban campaign. He implies that General Wood has hardly a right to the medal of honor that he wears.

Why Wood Stayed Here.

General Wood was not sent to France, Creel says, "for the simple reason that General Pershing did not call for him," and adds:

"As chairman of the Committee on Public Information, with duty to stimulate and guard the national morale, I made it my business to inquire into the facts in the case. At the time of General Pershing's departure for France I knew, as did every one else in Government, that it had been made plain to him that he would not be hampered by home meddling. Even as he was held to full responsibility, so was he given full power in the selection of those men upon whom he would have to depend. His list, therefore, was approved as a matter of course, and went into the War Department files until further action should be demanded. As I remember it, the whole trouble arose from the fact that General March treated the circumstance as one of military routine entirely, utterly failing to realize its political importance. Instead of informing General Wood at once that he had not been chosen to go to France, he followed the established procedure and waited for the completion of the training period before issuing orders to the division commanders. General Wood, however, left Camp Funston in advance of the division and without waiting to receive his orders. General March sent them to him in New York, and in consequence there was an appearance of eleventh-hour action, an effect of jerking General Wood from the very deck of the transport.

"As a matter of course, General Wood carried his complaint to the President and was told plainly that the list would not be revised in the personal interest of any soldier or politician."

Creel says that "the reputation of Wood is built upon assumption rather than fact, on clever suggestion rather than provable statement. His military genius is made a matter of general belief by reason of constant allusion to Indian campaigns in which he played heroic parts, assuming command of an infantry battalion after it had 'lost its last officer,' and conducting himself in such a manner as to win a medal of honor."

And then the author says: "This record, when taken to pieces, is seen to be an absurd jumble of baseless claims," which he endeavors to support by records from the War Department.

"Fourteen Points in Treaty."

Toward the last of the book Mr. Creel devotes a chapter to the President's fourteen points, quoting them and telling how they have been utilized, as he sees it, for the good of Europe; and continues:

"Let there be an end to the lie—circulated by malignants and accepted by the half-baked—that the fourteen points were 'thrown into the discard.' Every one of them was written into the treaty, and the result will stand for all time as a monument to the courage and faith of Woodrow Wilson. * * *

"The Germans, in their heart of hearts, know well that the peace is written in fairer terms than they ever expected. Had it not been for the attitude of Senator Lodge and his Republican associates, Germany would have accepted the treaty without any large demur, and by now would be working back to prosperity and the esteem of the world. As it is, she counts upon the Republican party to force America into a repudiation of the peace, thereby entailing a confusion, a general weakness, that may enable her to escape entirely."

There is a chapter telling how the treaty was killed and another devoted to a plea for the League of Nations.

NOTABLE UNITARIAN LIBRARY IN AMERICA

BERKELEY, Sept. 22.—In a little frame building in this university town, remote, in miles, from metropolitan centers of culture, is housed what is regarded as one of California's richest treasures — the world's finest collection of Unitariana.

Bibliophiles may be surprised that this valuable material on liberal Christianity is to be found here, rather than in Boston, the home of Unitarianism, but the collection at the Pacific Unitarian School for the Ministry, some 12,000 bound volumes and 11,000 phamphlets, is, in the opinion of Dr. Earl Morse Wilbur, president of the school and professor of practical theology, "the most complete and valuable collection of Unitariana in the world."

Dr. Wilbur's hobby, since the establishment of the school sixteen years ago, has been collecting publications concerning Unitarianism. Today he says: "I have made a careful survey of what is at the Harvard Divinity School, the Meadville Theological School (Unitarian), the American Unitarian Association in Boston, Union Theological Seminary, the Library of Congress, and several other libraries; and having done so I would not for a moment consider giving what we have in this line for all that they have put together."

The growth of this remarkable library, and its status, compared to the Dr. Williams' library in London—"which might in some respects rival ours"—is given as follows by Dr. Wilbur:

"When the school was established sixteen years ago I began to give a course in Unitarian history. So far as I know no such course has ever been given elsewhere. My studies for this course naturally led me to collect books bearing on it. The library has been enriched again and again by gifts of valuable libraries of Unitarian ministers, and by other gifts of Unitarian books from America and England.

"In addition to gifts, I have carefully scanned catalogues, especially for old and second-hand books, during all these years, and have bought generously from them of whatever illustrated the history of Unitarianism on the continent, in England, or in this country. I have tried never to let any important item escape me, and have sought many important items especially, and have usually been successful. So far as I can discover, we are the only library that has been systematically collecting Unitariana."

"The reward for these years of bargaining and scanning the lists for obscure "finds" is to be found in the following: an excellent representative collection of works of the Polish Socinians; a considerable number of volumes on Unitarianism in Transylvania; all the main publications about the earliest Unitarian pioneers many valuable original editions of Socinus and other early leaders of Unitarianism on the continent and in England; one of the finest sets of Bibliotheca Fratum Polonorum extant; a nearly complete file of the English Unitarian tracts of 1890; most of the yet earlier English Unitarian prints; the complete works of Emlyn, Priestley, Lindsey, Belsham and other Unitarian leaders; everything of importance ever published by American Unitarians, including many long files of series of sermons; an unequalled collection of the reports of the chief and many of the minor Unitarian organizations in England and America; a practically complete file of every American Unitarian newspaper or periodical of importance and most of the minor ones as well, with similar files from England.

"Many of these things have been found or collected with the greatest difficulty," says Dr. Wilbur. "Some of them are probably unique, and the collection, if destroyed could, humanly speaking, never be duplicated in anything like its present entirety.

"I have not seen the Dr. Williams' library in London, which might in some respects rival ours; but as I am confident that we have far more English items than they have American, I think I hazard nothing in saying that we have the most complete and valuable collection of Unitariana in the world."

MECHANICAL MILK SUPPLIES WAR CITY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Lack of pasturage for dairy cattle in the vicinity of Nitro, West Virginia, resulted in the establishment at that war-built city of a "mechanical dairy," where milk and cream equivalent to the output of a farm with 1,500 milch cows was produced, according to a government report just published. Bottles and cans of the fluid were labeled "reconstructed" milk or cream and "nitrolac."

Accommodations for 25,000 inhabitants were provided at Nitro; schools, churches, hospitals, department stores, restaurants and all other elements of a modern, well-equipped community being part of the project. As a construction problem it was comparatively simple, but officials began to strike snags as soon as they approached the task of insuring a supply of staple foodstuffs, particularly of fresh milk.

The process is described as the "emulsification of butter-fat obtained from unsalted butter in a solution of skimmed milk powder, or diluted evaporated milk." A building 150 feet long by 51 feet wide was constructed and provided with huge mixing vats, refrigerators and bottling apparatus. Chemically pure water was used in the mixing and careful tests made of the product which proved to be a little superior, if anything, the report said, to natural milk.

AGRICULTURE CLUB NEWS

REEDLEY'S HIGH SCHOOL CLUB

By the County Club Leader; Stories by Club Members in This Issue.

Now that the schools are opening to be organized, a short review of last years activities of one of these clubs, written chiefly by its members, will show to some extent the purpose and result of agriculture club work. Our new school you will see three high schools in one county taking advantage of the financial and other assistance of the University of California and the United States department of Agriculture in organizing agriculture clubs thus defined by the State Club leader, "Agriculture Clubs are a means whereby young persons profit from farming through the practice of it in competitive groups under the supervision of trained men."

In Reedley high school, club work will be directed by J. R. Hermsh, local club leader; in Kerman by A. R. Tylor, local club leader; in Caruthers by C. A. Aspinwall, local club leader; in Selma and Kingsburg club work is done by agriculture teachers, J. H. Tibbs and T. M. Alcum, the direction of the University of California Agriculture Extension Service. The county club leader directs one high school club. There were five high school clubs in the county in 1919-20. There were sixty grammar school clubs under the same directions but that is another story.

Last seasons club work at Reedley was directed by M. A. Soderberg. Mr. Soderberg with a spirit full of pep and enthusiasm, helped the Reedley club to become one of the very best in the state.

There were members in the following contest, pig feeding, sow and litter, nursery stock, grapes or other fruit called the acre contest. Everybody had a project at home.

A few of the clubs' successful activities included a number of evening rallies and meetings at which agricultural songs and topics were followed by a social time and refreshments. Trips were made to places of practical agricultural interest. A very successful farm play was given and produced several times netting the club a profit of several hundred dollars and putting over a good demonstration in addition. A banquet was given to all grammar and high school club members in the district as a boost for better high school agriculture and club work. A summer trip was taken to Yosemite Park where fishing, hiking and swimming was enjoyed in the High Sierras. Especially designed watch fobs were purchased by the high school club for all winning grammar school clubmembers in the district.

A club journal called the Reedley Agriculturist, summarizing the years club work and containing many illustrations was published. A club track meet held the balance of the high school to a 96½ score against 43½ points for the club. The club made a special journey to Clovis during picnic day at the farm school. Every eligible member attended the Davis convention of clubmembers.

As a final honor the club has been asked, by those directing the University Extension Service, to present its play entitled "Back to the Farm" before five hundred clubmembers at the coming Agriculture Club convention at the Farm school, October 14-15-16.

Agricultural Club Rallies

By JOHN McGEE
Reedley Club Member

Rallies were invented to "let off steam." When enthusiasm grows beyond bounds, the Agricultural club usually stages a rally and entertains the rest of the student body with yells and songs and speeches.

The first of the Agricultural Rallies was held when the club members returned from the Davis convention. Led by their president, Elmer Almgren, they marched on the stage. The usual "Bossy Cow-Cow" opened the program. The club's repertoire of songs and yells followed. Then some of the boys who made the trip to Davis told of their experiences. Among the speakers were Brooks Estes, Phil Smith, Ernest Bolknap, Philip Stay, Varsh Manoogian, Arshog Manoogian, Theo Conrad, Gilbert Davis, Elmer Almgren and Lyle Oliver.

The morning of January 28, the agricultural club invaded the Assembly hall for the purpose of advertising "Back to the Farm." President Almgren of the club, called all members to the platform. Following "Bossy Cow-Cow," "Wee-ce-unk," "If It Wasn't For the Farmer," and other songs and yells, the members of the cast were introduced and responded with excerpts fro mthe play.

At the close of school on the 29 of January, the club paraded the streets of Reedley to advertise the play. Lyle Oliver, dressed as the devil and with trombone in hand, rode the hood of the leading machine. Gilbert Davis, William Haas and Alwa Brower followed mounted on snorting and fiery steeds. The rest of the club were packed in the machines that followed. The machines were decorated with posters, made by the Art Department for the occasion.

On April 20, the club gave a rally in the study hall as a send-off to the animal husbandry class who left for the Davis to attend the stock-judging contests on Picnic Day.

Invents Nitro Method to Double Production

Dr. F. M. Wood, of Chicago, after several years' research, has succeeded in giving the farmer a new method of doubling production on the same acreage and labor as used by the old method. The doctor is producing a liquid fertilizer from cultures obtained from the nodules of leguminous plants. He calls this new fertilizer "Nitro-Bacter Liquid Fertilizer." When applied to the soil in liquid form this compound produces nitrates. They thus supply food for the plant, which doubles and triples production.

The amazing thing about this is that this fertilizer can be produced at a cost so low to the farmer, the cost being approximately 25 cents per acre for nitrate that would cost $30.00 per acre under the old method. In every case where Dr. Moore has experimented in the late year, his fertilizer has more than doubled production.

Story of "My Pig"

(By Anton Nielsen of Reedley)

One day in November, 1918, I joined the Pig Club. It is a good thing for boys to join.

I got my first pig from Joe Caesar. It is a Poland-China. It was nine weeks old when I got it, and weighed 272 pounds when I was through with the contest.

Last year I won first and second prizes in Reedley and second in the Fresno fair. I had a free trip to Davis. It was a fine trip. I saw pigs weighing about 150 pounds that they were asking $150 for, because they were brood sows. My pig was bigger, and looked better. I had bad luck with it. It died. But I did not give up. I tried again this year and had good luck.

I feed my pig milk, slop, alfalfa, midds, barley and tankage. My pig drank lots of water. I put fresh water in its trough every day.

On November 30, 1919, my pig weighed 59 pounds; on March 30, 1920, it weighed 272 pounds; it gained 1.55 pounds per day. It cost me $15.55 to feed it. I sold it for 15 cents a pound.

When I entered the contest I was figuring on building a self-feeder, but I didn't. I do not think a self-feeder is good. I think it best to give the pig all it can eat and then let it lie down and rest, and let it get hungry and then feed it. I feed my pig in the morning and evening. One day when I went down to feed my pig I saw it had lice. The next day I fixed up some sheep dip and washed it. It got them; but after a few days I washed it again. It pays to take god care of your pig. It will gain more a day than when you do not take care of it right.

One day in March Mr. Soderstrom came out to weigh my pig. It was hard work to get it into the crate. When we got it into the crate it jumped over the top of the crate and got out, so we nailed some boards on the top of the crate. We cornered the pig and got it the crate a second time. It was heavy; it weighed 272 pounds. He had to use wrenches and hammers for weights because we did not have weights enough along.

Dirt and Farming

By ERIC OVASKA
Reedley Club Member.

The word agriculture, generally speaking, has in the past brought to the minds of many city folks, a picture of dirt and hard work. Naturally enough this did not appeal to these supersensitive people.

Truly agriculture is dirt. But—it is clean dirt, thanks to modern science. It is the dirt without which the world would not long exist.

We admit also that agriculture is hard work. But since when did hard work become a disgrace in any but the eyes of those who seek after social position? Nor is this hard work without its recompense. The modern farm home with its improvements and comforts are its reward.

The Farmer as Business Man

By Carl Parlier—Reedley Club Member.

We have no desire to prove the farmer a business man. The very fact that he has capital invested in his farm makes him a business man. And yet, in our observations of rural life, we find too many farmers who do not understand that an investment of money such as they have made in their farms must, as a part of good business, be followed at the end of each year by an accounting that shall show receipts and expenses, profit or loss.

Did you ever see a merchant or any other business man fail to keep an account of his business, whether he has invested ten thousand or a hundred thousand dollars? Yet there are farmers, and many of them, who—with an investment fully equal to this will go through year after year without knowing what their farms cost or what they return.

What we desire to know is: since the farmer is a business man, why should he not be a good one?

Scientific Farming on One Acre of Ground

By LESLIE TITUS
Reedley Club Member.

The main purpose of this article is to record briefly the activities of the Agriculture Club boys enrolled in the grape acre contest. This contest calls for those who "sign up" to care for an acre of grapes for one year, keeping accurate records.

The members of the Agriculture club who are enrolled in the Grape Acre Contest are: Elmer Almgren, Jess Frantz, Arshog Manoogian, Varsh Manoogian, Eric Ovaska, Lyle Oliver, Carl Franzen and I.

As I know more about my own methods of farming than those of the other contestants I shall tell of them first.

After I took my acre in charge I pruned. That was in December. The vines are two year old Muscats of very rank growth. I saved the best cane cutting it off about eighteen inches above the ground. Then I staked and tied the vines so that next year they will have their crowns pretty well above the ground.

I plowed the vineyard and disced it both ways on April 21. After discing I suckered, taking off everything except the top three or four young canes. I suckered the vines again the same way about the middle of May. After suckering the second time I topped the vines, cutting them two to six inches from the tips of the canes.

I irrigated the vineyard thoroughly between May 18 and 25. The first part of June I went over the vineyard again, topping and suckering.

This years' harvest probably will not make me a multi-millionaire, but I am expecting great results next year.

Jess Frantz, first year member of the Agricultural club has Malaga vines which are about eight years old. He pruned the vines about February 15, using the "half long" method. Shortly after the vines leafed out he sulphured them lightly. He sulphured two times more a little later, and intends to sulphur once or twice more, thus making his vines quite mildew proof.

Arshog and Varsh Manoogian each have four year old Thompsons which they have pruned and plowed twice and sulphured. They expect a record crop.

Lyle Oliver has completed his pruning, plowing and sulphuring. He used a power machine to do his sulphuring.

Eric Ovaska and Elmer Almgren also have completed their plowing, sulphuring and pruning.

Carl Franzen has ten year old Muscats, which he pruned between the middle of January and February 20, using the "vase form." He has plowed and irrigated twice.

A little later we will be able to give you a more complete report on our acres. The records will show what it costs to produce a pound of grapes or raisins and cost of production is an important item in the determining of prices.

Inspection Service Developing Rapidly

The newly organized Fruit and Vegetable "Shipping Point" Inspection Service recently announced by Director Hecke, is growing rapidly. During its first month of operation over 500 cars of fruit and vegetables were inspected and certificates issued on same. To date almost 800 cars have been certified to by inspectors of the state department. At the present time a force of inspectors is handling the important Watsonville deal, and grapes are being inspected daily in the Lodi and Fresno districts. The Gravenstein season in the Sebastopol section is practically concluded. Every car moving from that important area this season with but few exceptions has carried with it a state certificate. Mr. L. J. Weishaar, supervising inspector, is now in southern California organizing the Vegetable Inspection Service for that district. (F. W. R.)

SANDSTROM TRACTOR SCRAPERS
A One-Man Tool for All Kinds of Leveling or Grading

It is strictly a one-man scraper and with it one man can do more leveling and move more dirt than several men with teams. It embodies all the newest ideas in the building of scrapers and is mounted on wheels. This makes possible the hauling of a greater load at less expense in the amount of gasoline used.

The wheels set as they are, directly behind the scraper instead of at the side, makes it possible to do a smooth job of leveling, for the scraper makes a level track for the wheels. Come in and let us show you this new idea in scrapers.

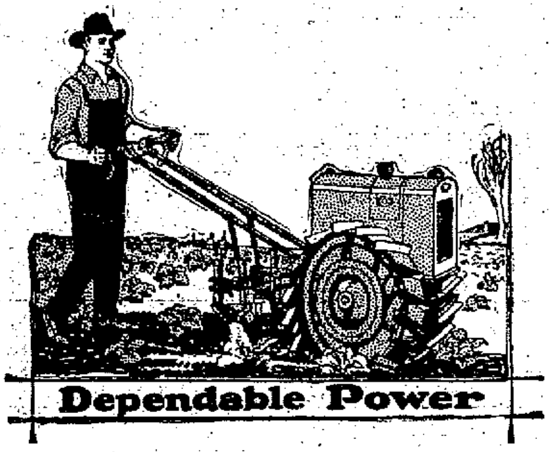
Eliminate The Horse
KICK THE LAST HORSE OFF THE FARM



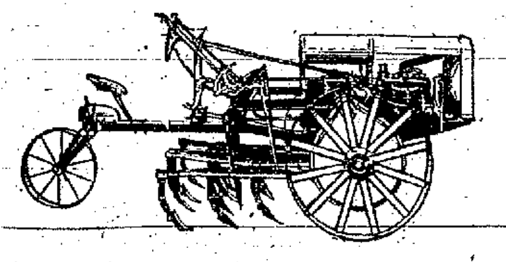
MIDWEST UTILITOR TRACTOR

It is no longer necessary to keep even one horse on your vineyard or other farm property. You can completely motorize your farm and forever get rid of the nuisance and expense of keeping horses.

We have gradually rounded out our line of quality power farming machinery until now we can fit your needs no matter how large or small or of what character your farm is.

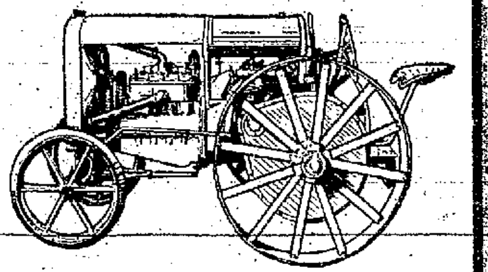
For the 5 to 20-acre place we have the MIDWEST UTILITOR, a remarkable little tractor that will pull, all the implements one horse can pull, and in addition operate small pumps, saws, cream separators, lighting plants, etc. On large vineyards or orchards this same little tractor will supplement its bigger brothers by doing the single plowing and other small jobs that one horse is frequently kept to do.

For narrow vineyards and low hanging orchards we have the TORO TRACTOR with a width of only 42 inches and a height of only 51 inches.



TORO MOTOR CULTIVATOR

The Toro Motor Cultivator handles the cultivation of cotton, corn and all other row crops better, quicker and cheaper than horses can ever do it. It is also much faster and more efficient than tractors in cultivating vineyards and orchards. By means of a clever set of attachments the TORO CULTIVATOR is quickly convertible into the TORO TRACTOR, and vice versa. This feature gives you a combination of tractor and motor cultivator that is hard to beat.

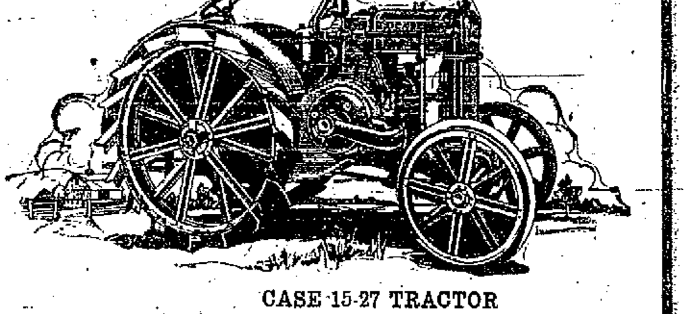


TORO TRACTOR

The Case Line of Tractors

In heavier tractors we have the famous old CASE line of kerosene tractors in three sizes—10-18, 15-27 and 22-40. These tractors are well known in Central California, where they have been faithfully performing for their owners for a good many seasons. To go behind these reliable tractors we have the same company's line of Grand Detour plows and harrows which are hard to equal.

For farm and other transportation we have FEDERAL MOTOR TRUCKS and LEE TRAILERS, both quality products of the highest order.



CASE 15-27 TRACTOR

With this remarkable assortment of power farming equipment to select from, you may be sure that we can correctly solve your power problems. In one or more of our products, we have the equipment that will best do your work. You need fear no misfits when dealing with us. We have what is best suited to your particular needs and would have no object in selling you something else.

Hard Work That Pays

By JOHN T. BARTLETT

"There are men who think it is an easy way of getting rich quick without any extra work on their part. When they find their mistake, they drop out of the association.

This remark, made by a western cowtester, undoubtedly indicates a rather frequent cause for defections in cow-test associations. It is possible to picture so alluringly the profits in cow testing that the labor and pains involved are lost sight of by the farmer whose enthusiasm is aroused. The same condition is common in poultry trapnest work. Much over half the trapnest equipment installed by poultry keepers is not used over a year—if it is kept in action that long. And the same truth extends to records in general on the farm. How many thousands who have started to keep books have stuck to it a shorter or longer time, and then given up? The number is certainly large.

From the nature of the thing, the farmer who expects to get quick results is bound to be disappointed in greater or less degree. It is true that application of some records can be made quickly, and immediate benefit derived, but the larger use of cow testing, just as with the trap-nest and with a set of books, is in long-period employment. In the cow-test association, the second, third and fourth years of work representing consistent application of the facts revealed by the systematic test, show in real figures the progress made. The farmer has put something into the testing work, but he has pulled a lot out. The cow test is an education in itself, and times without number it has converted a raw, inefficient beginner into a first-class, successful dairy farmer.

And so it is with trapnest work on the poultry farm. There is a Barred Rock breeder who makes a good deal out of his specialty. He has trapnested for years, and is continually enlarging on the value of this device in profitable poultry keeping. But indicate to this man your intention to adopt trapnests (as many of his customers do) and before he makes comment he is sure to give you a keen "onceover." And when he does start to talk, his observations will be on the amount of work involved, the bother, and how no results worthy of the labor involved can be expected unless the trapping is continued year after year. Then the poultry man, like the persistent cow tester, can have the satisfaction of watching average production climb, climb, climb. It is useless to keep records unless the results are applied. For the application time, as well as labor, is required. And the labor involved in the first place must not be forgotten.

Poultry Notes

Keep turkeys, geese, ducks and hens in separate quarters.

The nests need fully as much cleaning as the roosts.

Now is the time to cull your flock. It does not pay to winter useless birds. Sell them now.

Have you been fairly successful during the past year with your poultry? If so, how did you manage? What have you accomplished? Please tell folks about it through our columns. May we not hear from you?

Separate the Sexes

As soon as the chicks get old enough to show sex they would be better off if kept separated. There is a whole lot of feed run off and lost in the useless activity of young poultry that would be utilized to a profitable end if the sexes were separated. Well, perhaps on the farm the cost of such separation would more than offset the gains. Then caponize and give free range.

If confining the cockerels seems too much bother and expense, then put them through the fattening process and fit them for the market in a few days. Crate feeding will put flesh on them in a very short time, and you are soon rid of the youngsters and have the money in pocket. There is no sense in keeping the cockerels longer than necessary to make them marketable.—T. L. Smith, Latah county, Idaho.

Protein Important

Poultrymen who wish to produce a maximum number of eggs economically during the summer and fall months should supply their hens with a ration carrying a liberal amount of protein, according to results secured in feeding tests at the Ohio experiment station. Hens getting a ration containing 13 per cent of meat scrap produced almost 50 per cent more eggs than those getting but 2 per cent during a period from July 1 to October 1.

Skim milk or buttermilk may be used to supply the protein for laying hens if fed in sufficient quantities to give the hens all they can drink. If a sufficient amount of buttermilk or skim milk is not available, tankage or meat scrap, even though high in price, may be profitably used.

Exports For June Show Increases

For the twelve-month period ending June 30, oleo, oil, natural lard and pickled pork were the only meat and meat-food items exported which showed increases over the previous fiscal year. The principal items which showed the heaviest decreases were bacon, with a decrease of approximately 435,000,000 pounds; hams and shoulders, with a decrease of 392,0000,000 pounds; lard, a decrease of 186,000,000 pounds; lard compound a decrease of 84,000,000 pounds, and fresh beef 179,000,000 pounds.

"Comparing exports during June, 1920, with the previous month, there is cause for a degree of optimism, for liberal increases are shown in exports of beef, bacon and hams and shoulders. Beef exports showed an increase slightly in excess of 3,000,000 pounds, bacon approximately 10,500,000 pounds, and hams and shoulders 3,250,000 pounds, while minor increases are shown in lard compound and pickled pork. This favorable showing is due in part to recent limited credit arrangements perfected between Germany and some of the meat packers in this country. Although June exports showed creditable increases over the previous month, practically all items were far below the amounts exported during the corresponding month one year ago, with bacon, hams and shoulders and lard showing the greatest declines." The Market Reporter of the United States Bureau of Markets.

Drive to Avoid Bruised Livestock

The appointment of large advisory and publicity committees representing railroads, producers' organizations, live stock exchanges, stock yards, the Institute of American Meat Packers, and shipping associations throughout the United States to aid in the nationwide campaign to eliminate avoidable losses on live stock, has been announced by Everett C. Brown. Mr. Brown, president of the National Live Stock Exchange, also is chairman of the National Conference which will conduct the campaign.

Producers and members of shipping and livestock organizations appointed on the committees include John G. Brown, Monon, Indiana, President of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations; A. E. Compson, Remus, Michigan, President of the Michigan Co-operative Live Stock Shippers' Association; Martin Sar, Essex, Iowa, Secretary of the Iowa Co-operative Live Stock Shippers; W. A. McKerrow, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn., Secretary of the Minnesota Central Co-operative Live Stock Shippers' Association; Herbert W. Mumford, Manager of the Live Stock Department of the Illinois Agricultural Association, and W. J. Carmichael, Secretary of the National Swine Growers' Association, and J. W. Coverdale, Secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, all of Chicago; A. Sykes, Ida Grove, Iowa, President of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association; John H. Cockerhan, Lacelle, La., President of the Southern Cattlemen's Association; J. H. Mercer, Topeka, Kansas, Secretary of the Kansas Live Stock Association.

Test for Maturity

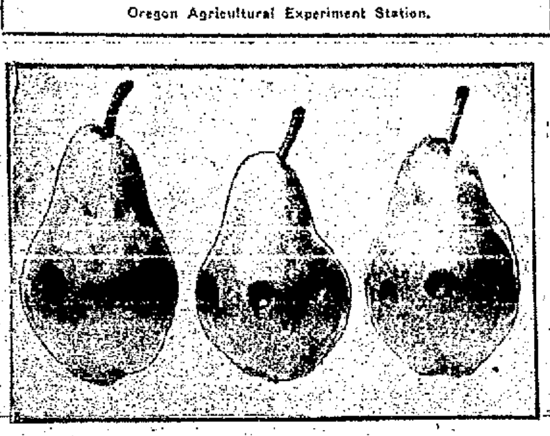
By A. E. MURNEEK

Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station.



Bartlett pears, showing position of pressure punctures.

"How ripe is my fruit?" "Are my Bartletts, Bose, Howells, Anjous, etc. ready to pick?" "What are the signs, anyway, by which one may tell the approximate stage of maturity of a pear or of an apple?" Such questions are often heard from growers as the time of harvesting one's crop approaches.

There will be many who will tell you to go by the size and pick when the fruit has reached a certain diameter. Others will point to changes in color of the skin as a much safer guide. Still others will reply on testing for sugar, either by chewing a slice or applying what is known as the iodine test for sugar, which is really a test for starch. But many an orchardist, very many, to be sure, will begin to pick his pears or apples when, or because, his neighbor does so, who in turn may have been influenced by someone else. Thus it is easily seen that there is no reliable test or measurement in use by which one may determine the exact stage of ripeness of fruit.

Aware of this situation, the section of horticulture research of the Oregon agricultural experiment station has for several reasons endeavored to find a simple but reliable test for pears, and, if possible, apples also. Of the various methods under consideration a simple one known as a "pressure test" has given very satisfactory and reliable results in measuring the maturity of pears. It has been given extensive and thorough trial for two seasons with almost all leading varieties of pears and a few varieties of apples. We feel at this time that in order to prove its usefulness this test should be given a wider practical application.

The "Iron Thumb"

Testing by means of this method is accomplished by a mechanical device or apparatus especially constructed for the purpose. Briefly, the apparatus consists of a blunt, rounded plunger running through a jacket and connected with a lever. A movable ring, separated from the stationary jacket by a spring, runs over the top of the plunger to a definite distance when contact is made with the stationary jacket, causing an electric bell to ring. In operating this tester, the fruit is placed in a padded stand on top of an ordinary family scale. The plunger is now pressed into the side of the fruit at a point of its greatest diameter by means of the lever. The plunger penetrates to a definite distance, or till the bell rings. The weight required for this pressure is recorded on the scale. Only fresh fruit of recent picking may be tested with reliability, as even a slight shriveling or drying will materially interfere with the correctness of the results.

One can readily see that the main idea of this method of testing is nothing but a modification of the common and popular practice of pressing our thumb into a fruit to see whether it is ripe or ready to eat (to the great disgust of the fruit peddler); in other words, this apparatus is an "iron thumb" connected to a bell instead of our own thumb registering the results in our brain.

How Does It Work?

During the season of 1918 and 1919, several thousand tests on all leading varieties of pears were made by means of this apparatus in the Rogue River Valley. It was found that on the average the harvesting season for Bartletts, for instance, begins when this test registered a pressure of 35 pounds. During the height of the packing season the apparatus indicated an average pressure of 32 to 28 pounds, while the last lots of Bartletts pressed during the two seasons required a pressure of but 25 pounds. In the case of this pear, there was a gradual average lowering of resistance to this kind of pressure at testing amounting to one-half pound for every 24 hours. Of course, different figures, but just as consistent, were obtained when other varieties of pears were tested. Judging from a few preliminary investigations with apples, this device seems to be very acceptable for testing apples also, in which case it may prove of much wider application. It may be used not only in determining the ripeness of fruit at picking time, but also while in storage.

At the time of writing this, three of the described testing devices are in use in the state, one in the Rogue River district, another at Hood River, and the third in the department of horticulture at Oregon Agricultural College. Further work in testing pears and apples is being conducted this season.

Any grower or organization interested in the apparatus or method of testing fruit may obtain additional information by writing to the horticultural department of the Oregon Agricultural College and asking for Station Bulletin No. 162. No fruit will be accepted for testing at the college unless it is brought to the agricultural department six hours from the time of picking.

Better Stock; Better Homes

As a rule, better stock means better homes and better homes better stock. There are exceptions, of course, but when you think of the one it is very likely that you think of the other also.

Even if you are making no effort to grow high-grade stock or purebreds you are apt, after taking more pride in your home and your buildings, to take better care of the ordinary stock on your farm. An expert can get better results with less fuel from an old and poor heating plant than a slipshod person will get from a high-grade outfit. The most money is not always made with the highest grade or purebred animals. There are some men who make really good returns by handling good grade animals in an intelligent, practical way.

Good Handling Necessary

The thoughtful farmer knows that the only profitable animal is the well-cared-for animal. Many a man who is not at heart very kind has learned the lesson—so far as cattle are concerned—that the exercise of consideration and gentleness means the saving of dollars. Very few men are mean enough to be mean when they know it hurts their pocketbooks. Anyone who gets the notion that it pays to give the best possible attention to the animals he has, even if poor, will not need much argument to convince him that better-bred stock will yield him still better results.

In some of the older-settled regions of the United States there are men who have stock that is bred well enough but has been handled in so shiftless a way that the animals might just as well be scrubs. In some of these cases the advent of an "up-and-coming" neighbor has worked a change of conditions.

In the more progressive communities organizations—county breeders' associations, extension workers of universities, and county agents—have worked wonders and produced splendid results. Boys' and girls' livestock clubs have been able to bring reforms that no other agency could reach. Occasionally the older men who have never had very good ways and have become set in them are reached only through the kiddies.

Following Good Practices

About the first thing that may be done toward getting better stock and better homes is to check up on conditions as they are and see the many ways in which they may be improved. But most people are not able to make the best of what they have. A man who lets his buildings and fences fall down, pays no attention to rotation of crops, lets his manure leach away the creeks, forgets or neglects to feed and care for his stock regularly, and lets his wife go out to pump water and split wood is apt to instill into the minds of his children the idea that nobody is ever a farmer who is smart enough to be anything else. On the other hand, one who maps out his course and lets no season go by without making some improvements in his way of doing things will surely find himself getting better animals and gaining in self-respect and importance, not only to himself but to the community as well.

Gradual, continuous livestock improvement has been practiced for many years by the most successful livestock farmers everywhere. Improving livestock—grading up, eliminating the scrub, etc., is merely following the practice of these successful men who for years have been keeping the best and "breeding the best to the best." It is well known that a good cow, for example, bred to a purebred bull will usually produce a good calf. It is also well known that a better bull bred to a better cow will produce a better calf and this applies to other kinds of livestock.

It was to emphasize this important practice that the United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the different state agricultural colleges, inaugurated the "Better Sires—Better Stock" crusade to realize the general quality and usefulness of our animals. Not only the scrub sire is to be eliminated but the undesirable sire as well even though he is a purebred.

23,000 TONS OF WALNUTS THIS YEAR

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—The 1926 walnut crop of California will amount to not less than 46,000,000 pounds, valued at from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000, according to W. T. Webber, secretary of the California Walnut Growers' association.

He said it was believed shelled walnuts and by-products of walnut shells would bring the growers from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 more.

Complete figures are not available because the crop has not all been harvested.

The association's marketing system is said to give the consumer the walnuts at an advance of 35 per cent more than the producer received for them, in comparison, according to Carlyle Thorpe, general manager, with the 65 per cent more than the producer receives that the consumer pays for the average product.

Mr. Thorpe said people eat more walnuts as the weather grows cooler and that prospects are good for an unusually heavy demand for the California crop.

How to Better California Potatoes

Without good seed no permanent success can be expected and production of good seed is coming to be an industry in itself. Not only does it pay in increased production for home use but the market for this kind of stock is becoming better every year as growers of commercial potatoes throughout the state are recognizing the absolute necessity of better seed if they are to secure profitable yields. It is possible for Humboldt county to produce a considerable amount of the good seed needed throughout the state.

It is impossible for anyone to determine by merely looking at potato tubers whether they will make good seed or not, as they may carry disease or be inferior in producing power without the tubers giving indication of this. It is, therefore, necessary to inspect the plants in the fields where they are growing in order to determine their productiveness, freedom from disease and general fitness for seed purposes. Because of this fact the state department of agriculture has established a system of seed potato inspection which makes it possible for any grower to have his fields inspected and if his crop comes up to the required standard for good seed he can get a certificate to this effect and sell his crop as California Certified Seed Potatoes. A tag is placed upon every sack of such potatoes so that every one purchasing them can know what he is getting. Full particulars regarding this inspection work can be obtained by writing the state department of agriculture at Sacramento. Certified seed can be grown to good advantage in Humboldt county and it is hoped more of the potato growers here will take advantage of the potato seed certification service.

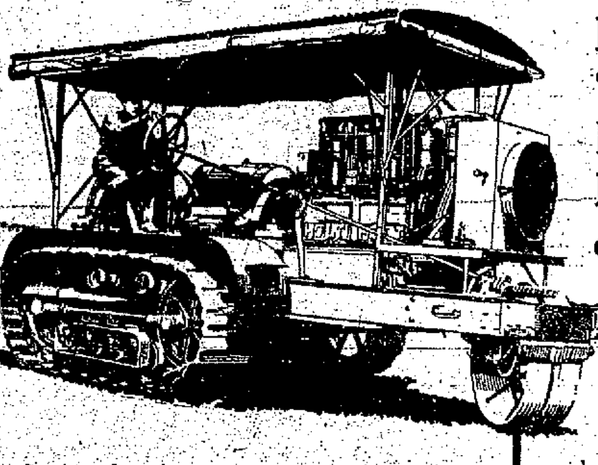
How Much Power Do You Need?

Remember This—"Caterpillar" 75 Tractor Is by Far the Most Powerful Tractor on the Market Today



Don't underestimate your power needs. Don't try to do heavy tractor work with inadequate power. Overloading causes 60% of all upkeep expense. Eliminate that 60%. Buy a "Caterpillar" 75 Tractor—a machine with plenty of power for pulling an 11½-foot land leveler, the biggest size ground drive harvesters, a subsoiler or deep tillage plows, absolutely without danger or fear of overloading.

Remember that the extra big power of the "75" entails little additional first cost or operating expense and no extra labor or maintenance cost. Every week in the year there are times when you'll wish you had that extra power. Play safe on power, as well as on service, on durability, on performance—make your choice a tractor of proved performance—the "Caterpillar" 75 Tractor.

"Caterpillar" 75 Tractor stands first in power—it has become the standard machine for deep plowing, subsoiling, chiseling, leveling and other heavy work.

It stands first in economy, using less fuel and oil than other tractors of considerably less horsepower.

It stands first in accomplishment—results behind the drawbar. It is geared right—on direct drive it handles a big width of plows at the proper plowing speed.

It stands first in accessibility—a more important advantage than most people realize, for in the course of a year it means a considerable saving of the time necessary for cleaning, oiling, adjusting, etc.

"Caterpillar" 75 Tractor works on any ground surface without power-loss due to slippage. It turns as short as the implements can follow. Its durability is proved by the fact that the first "75s" built, seven years ago, are still in successful service. It is backed by real factory service, that insures success and eliminates delays in the field. It is built better, especially since the adoption of rigid Government standards during the war, than any other tractor.

You can get immediate delivery of a "Caterpillar" 75 Tractor if you place your order without delay. Buy now and be equipped to do your work properly, economically, quickly.

The "45"

The "45" is a big tractor in power and capacity for work—a small tractor in its ability to do the light power jobs economically and to work in orchards; small, irregular shaped fields, etc. There's a special low-built, shield-protected model for orchard work that every orchardist should investigate.

"Caterpillar" Disc Plows

The "Caterpillar" Disc Plow is adaptable to every kind and condition of plowing—extra deep plowing, soft land, Bermuda grass, side-hills—convertible into a moldboard plow if desired. The only four wheel plow built. The only plow that positively overcomes side draft. Plows any width without running the tractor on plowed ground. Besides all these features it has the strength and durability that eliminate breakdowns and delays in the field.

"Caterpillar" Land Levelers

Here is a tool that will do your leveling at minimum cost and in just the way you want it done. It's as simple as an anvil, as easy to handle as a wheelbarrow. It will pay a big dividend in your own work and is highly profitable equipment for contract work.

HEARNE CAPTURES KINGS COUNTY AUTO CLASSIC

FAILS TO LOWER OLDFIELD MARK, BUT LAPS FIELD

Circles 50 Mile Course in 43 Min., 49 and 3-5 Seconds

G. C. Enright Captures 25-Mile Event; Track in Good Condition

HANFORD, Sept. 25.—Eddie Hearne, although at times pressed, easily won the 50-mile auto race classic at the Kings County Fair this afternoon. He lapped a field of eleven starters before the thirty-fifth lap had terminated. In passing each car he received a round of applause, and when he left the winner of the second prize a lap behind in the thirty-fifth lap in front of the grandstand, a great burst of enthusiasm rang forth.

Taking the lead in the first lap the plucky driver piloted his car around the oval at an average rate of speed of 70 miles per hour. The official time for the fifty miles was set at 43 minutes, 49 3-5 seconds.

E. J. Murray of San Francisco took second prize, and was the hero of the day, with the fans due to his game efforts to prevent Hearne from overtaking him. For five laps, he managed to overcome defeat, but finally was forced to trail behind Hearne. Mike Moosie also of San Francisco, was a close third.

The fast time was due, no doubt, to the excellent condition which the track was in. It was noticeable that at all times there was absolutely no trace of dust at any time and the crowd was afforded a great view of the race at all stages. The track is now in as good and undoubtedly better condition than any other dirt track in the country. At least this is the version of veteran drivers including Hearne himself.

Hearne failed to break the world's dirt track record, failing by 2 seconds. In his attempt, he made the mile lap in the fast time of 45 seconds.

In the opening event of the day, G. C. Enright won first prize. The race was a twenty-five-mile event and was keenly contested by the three "in the money" at all times. Fred Funchness was second and Paul Funchness was third. The time in this race was 22 minutes and 52 2-5 seconds.

The crowd witnessing the event was one of the largest in the history of Kings county auto racing. Many visitors from Fresno were present, coming with the caravan headed by F. F. Minaker.

Nevada Defeats U.C. Farm 7 to 3

RENO, Nev., Sept. 25.—Fumbles almost cost the University of Nevada the game against the Davis University of California Farm School eleven here today. Nevada won 7 to 3. ## BENNY LEONARD DEFEATS MORAN

Champion Decisively Outpoints His Opponent

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Sept. 25.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight boxing champion easily outpointed Pal Moran of New Orleans in 10 rounds here today.

Moran remained on the defensive almost throughout. Only in occasional flashes did he try to break through Leonard's defense and the champion had no difficulty in blocking.

Leonard apparently could not get started in the early rounds but in the last four he had Moran at his mercy. Swift left jabs and his famous right cross brought blood from Moran's mouth and opened a large cut under one eye.

Leonard seemed continuously on the verge of scoring a knock-out but Moran battling gamely, hung on till the finish. Neither man put over a knockdown.

Moran weighed 130 and Leonard about 135 and the weight advantage seemed to help the champion considerably. Moran, however, is the first man to go the limit with Leonard since the champion's active return to the ring July 5.

A crowd of about 10,000 saw the fight, every seat in the open air arena being taken.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25.—Chicago defeated Cleveland today 5 to 1, taking two of the three games in the present series and cutting Cleveland's lead to one-half game in the race for the American League championship.

Claude Williams, the visitors' left-handed twirler, pitched masterly ball, holding the Indians to five hits. At bat he contributed a double and single. He had the locals at his mercy except in the third, when Cleveland scored its only run on Sewell's double and two long flies. Cleveland made three of its five hits this inning. Cleveland batters popped the ball in the air throughout the game, Chicago players getting only four assists, the first one in the seventh, against 21 for Cleveland.

While Jackson made two doubles and a home-run, he made many enemies by his actions in the fifth inning while running out his circuit hit. As the crowd cheered his effort he made an insulting gesture as he rounded third base and repeated it as he crossed the plate. He was booed and jeered the remainder of the game, thousands of former soldiers who are here to attend the American Legion convention shouting "ship yard" at him.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 25.—New York won the first game of the series with Brooklyn today, the series that ultimately will decide the result of the National League. The score, 8 to 0, resulted from consistent hitting by the Giants and good pitching on the part of Barnes, backed up by wonderful fielding support.

Notwithstanding the defeat today Brooklyn needs only to win two more games to clinch the pennant and this can be accomplished by taking the two from New York or one from the Giants and the final contest to be played with Boston. The score:

FRANKIE MASON WINS

Chicago Shortens Cleveland's Lead; Giants Advancing

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The Cleveland Americans' lead was shortened to a half game today when Chicago won the deciding contest of the three game series with the Indians. New York sliced a game off the lead of the Brooklyn Nationals but with the Superbas four games ahead, the Giants' only hope is in taking all four remaining games to be played with the League leaders.

In the American race Cleveland can drop two of its eight games to be played and still if Chicago could obtain by winning five straight would be a tie. The New York Yankees, three games behind the Indians and with only four to play, are still a mathematical possibility for first place, but would have a difficult task even in capturing second.

GRAIN STOCKS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—Wheat today continued to be the target in the drive against high prices, with the result that the market renewed its downward trend, but not on so large a scale as yesterday. At the finish the market showed a net loss of 3 to 7⅛ with December 218¼ to 219½, and March 211⅛ to 212; corn was off 1⅝ to 1½; oats were down ⅝ to 1¼ and provisions ranged from unchanged to 27c lower.

Wheat continued under pressure from hedgers, tired longs and an increasing amount of bears. There was a big demand for the cereal on the break from export houses but even this failed to halt the decline.

New low figures on the crop were reached again today for the deferred futures of corn. Liquidation was on and while there was a fair support early it was withdrawn later when wheat broke sharply.

Oats showed stubborn resistance to selling presure but weakened with other grains and also sold down to new low figures on the crop.

Provisions were weak and lower, the declien in grains and commodities prices being the main influence.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—There was liquidation in wheat today and prices broke sharply with March leading. A big general trade was in evidence. Opening quotation, which ranged from 1½c to 5¼c lower with December, $2.22 to 2.23½, and March $2.11, were followed by a moderate rally.

Trade in corn was only fair with deferred deliveries at a new low mark. After starting ⅝ to 3c lower, with December, 96⅝c to 97c, further declines took place which were followed by a reaction which carried prices back to the initial quotations.

Oats were firmer after an early break but again became weak with other grains. Initial quotations were ⅛s to ⅝c lower with December 57⅝c to 57¾c.

Provisions were quiet and weak.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Close:
Wheat—Dec., $2.18½; March, $2.11½.
Corn—Sept., $1.21½; Dec., 93⅝c.
Oats—Dec., 57¼c; May, 60⅝c.
Pork—Sept., $21.45; Oct., $24.45.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The short interest in the stock market attempted at the outset of today's brief session to press its advantage of recent days, further losses being sustained by many speculative shares.

Buying of oils, rails and some of the steels and equipments turned the tide, however, the general list making rapid recovery with some substantial gains at the fairly steady finish. Prominent issues of the rally embraced the Mexican group of petroleums, also Houston, Royal Dutch and Shell Trading, Crucible, Vanadium, Lackawanna and Sloss-Sheffield Steels, Baldwin Locomotive and several of the coppers.

Rails were featured by speculative as well as standard shares, Chesapeake & Ohio, Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, Southern Railway, Western Pacific and Chicago & Alton, rising with Canadian Pacific, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and Reading. Sales amounted to 275,000 shares. Increased strength was shown by the bond market in which Liberty issues were conspicuous for additional gain. Speculative rails also hardened, with firmness in the foreign group. Total sales, par value aggregating $5,550,000. Old United States bonds were unchanged on call for the week.

The weekly report of the clearing house was noteworthy for another enormous expansion of actual loans. That item increased by almost $170,000,000, or a total approximating $252,000,000 in the past fortnight.

This brings actual loans, discounts, investments, etc., of the clearing house to a grand total of about $5,400,000,000, a high record for the year to date.

RENAISSANCE ART TO BE SHOWN SOON

What promises to be the outstanding social and artistic event of the season on the Pacific Coast will occur when the exhibition of Old Masters is opened at the Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco in the early part of October.

During his recent visit to New York, Director Laurvik secured the loan of one of the finest collections of paintings by Old Masters ever shown in America, rivaling in interest and importance the famous Hudson-Fulton exhibition held in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York during the Hudson-Fulton celebration in 1909. And it is confidently expected that this exhibition will surpass in its artistic and popular appeal the Morgan-Rembrandt collection which was shown at the Palace.

Probably no such aggregation of Old Masters has ever before been shown outside of New York and Boston, Director Laurvik has planned to have the exhibition representative of all the important schools of early and renaissance Italian art as well as that of Flemish, Dutch, Spanish and eighteenth century French and English art. It will practically illustrate the whole development of European painting since its tentative beginnings in Italy in the fourteenth century down to the brilliant school of French and English portrait painters of the eighteenth and early nineteenth century. Practically every subject that engaged the interest of the Old Masters, from allegorical, classical, mythological and religious, to landscapes, portraits and still life, will be comprised in this extraordinary assemblage of paintings.

World famous pictures, known wherever art is studied and admired, by such renowned artists as Luini, Bronzino, Tintoretto, Veronese—to mention only a few of the outstanding examples in the Italian school—will be shown here; while the Flemish school will be represented by such great luminaries as Mabuse, van Orley, Teniers and the incomparable Rubens and his contemporary, Van Dyck. No less interesting will be the representatives of the Dutch school, which it is expected, will include painting by Rembrandt, Ferdinand Bol, Nicholas Maes and their great landscape painters, van Goyen, Wijnants, Cuyp and Ruisdael.

To the old Spanish families of the Coast the ancient glory of Spain will be vividly visualized in the profoundly moving and colorful paintings by Francisco Goya, Carreño de Miranda, Francisco Zurbaran and the very original and mystical El Greco, while the very large and art-loving French public will undoubtedly revel in the incomparable virtuosity of the inimitable Watteau, the colorful Boucher, the brilliant portrait painters Van Loo, David and Duplessis, the painter of Franklin and other notables of his time.

But perhaps the most popular of all these schools may prove to be the English, with their alluring portraits by Gainsborough, Lawrence, Romney and Reynolds, whose types have come to personify the finest virtues of the Anglo-Saxon race as exhibited in their manly men and feminine women, while the frank forthrightness of the Scotch character as depicted by the great Raeburn in several famous portraits has given this painter one of the highest places in the world of art. Besides these notable portrait painters, the English section is expected to include representative examples of their great school of landscape paintings as illustrated in the works of Wilson, Crome, Turner and Constable, who have long been regarded as the fathers of modern landscape painting in Europe.

The collection, which is valued at $10,000,000, is being brought to San Francisco under the auspices of a committee of patrons and patronesses whose generous support makes the exhibition possible. As in the case of the Rembrandt and Zuloaga exhibitions, a small admission fee will be charged to help defray the very great expense involved in bringing this collection to the coast.

LIVINGSTON, Sept. 25.—E. D. Thoma, who owns and operates a telephone system in and about this city, has been authorized by the railroad commission to sell his plant to J. Max Lamstain for $2,500.

Buy Montebello Oil Fields, Inc. Stock

Mr. Investor—Your Opportunity

Another big gusher just came in (Temple Well No. [illegible]) of the Standard Oil Co. with a flow of 4,200 barrels daily. Our property is in the same anticline and in close proximity. Montebello Oil Fields, Inc., have a 15-acre lease sufficient for 6 to 8 wells which is entirely surrounded by property of such companies as Standard Oil Co., Union Oil Co., Gen. Pet. Co., Pet. Midway Co., and others. Some of their wells come in with an initial production of from 12,000 to 25,000 barrels per day.

Remember—Montebello Field produced about 1-7 of the crude petroleum of California, or about 14,000,000 barrels in 1919. Wells in this field maintain their production year after year and therefore make for their shareholders an excellent investment. Our geologist, Mr. Robert B. Moran, a recognized Montebello Oil expert, has given us a very favorable report on our holdings, which report is on file in our office.

A 15 acre tract of real oil land in a proven field is an asset of far greater value than thousands of acres of so-called oil lands leased merely for advertising purposes.

We will begin drilling as soon as material and machinery can be purchased and set up.

CALIFORNIA PERMIT NO. 16865.

Our stock is selling at $1.00 per share (par value), fully paid up and non-assessable. Buy now before we make our strike, and enjoy the profits later.

I hereby subscribe for ____ shares of Montebello Oil Fields, Inc., stock at $1.00 par value, and agree to pay for same upon delivery of stock certificate.

Without obligation on my part, send me full information about Montebello Oil Fields, Inc.

Save the surface and you save all

Like the Bark of a Tree

Paint protects and preserves the surface it covers. Moisture, the sun's intense rays, and drying winds, play havoc with the unpainted surfaces of buildings.

Wood loses its life and decays, metal rusts and gradually falls to pieces, and paint, Fuller's Paint, would safeguard the surfaces and prevent destruction.

Measured by years of wear, good paint is an investment and not an expense. W. P. Fuller & Company make paints for every purpose, paints that protect and beautify. They are the best looking and best wearing paints that skill and experience can make.

LIGHT USED CARS

WE are headquarters for light cars. This is naturally the result of the great popularity of the Light New Overland. We have many Fords, Maxwells, Chevrolets and Overlands offered us in trade. We take in the good ones, condition them if necessary and sell them at the lowest price and on the easiest terms of any firm in town.

Our business is the sale of new cars. We expect to sell every buyer of a used car a new Overland some day. Hence we do not overcharge for the used car when sold, for a used car buyer is just as much interested in his loss by depreciation as anyone.

If the above seems reasonable to you, and if you are satisfied that our volume of business comes from clean selling, come to the rear entrance of our garage at Van Ness and Tuolumne streets. Our cars are protected from the sun and dirt, so the paint is fresh. Here are a few good cars for immediate sale:

Reo—5-passenger. Extra tires. In good condition every way.

FIGHTING BLOOD IS AROUSED; RAISIN CO. DEFIES PACKERS

Will Take Its Case to the Last Court in the Land, if Necessary, Says President Giffen in Formal Statement

The California Associated Raisin company will fight until it finds it has the right under the law to manufacture and sell its own product under its own brand, or, failing in that, it will fight until the laws are so amended that the fruit growers of California can pool their interests to their own advantage.

This is the attitude of the association as expressed yesterday by its president, Wylie M. Giffen, after a long session of the board of directors. Another meeting of the directors will be held next Tuesday.

The compromise in Los Angeles has not weakened the fighting spirit of the association for its rights, and President Giffen says that raw product will not be sold to the packers until the last court in the land has ruled that the association must sell its raw product.

The following formal statement to the raisin growers was issued yesterday by Giffen:

"Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away and we know exactly the terms of the compromise made in Los Angeles on last Tuesday it is well that the growers should have a definite statement of the terms.

"This compromise was not satisfactory to us, but was accepted as being the best thing to do under all the circumstances. Some of the things that led to this settlement are now a matter of public knowledge; some cannot, at this time, be given out, and if there is any one who feels dissatisfied we ask you to be patient until all of the facts can be told.

"The exact terms of the compromise are that we have agreed to sell to Chaddock & Co., Bonner Packing Co., American Seedless Raisin Co., Guggenhime & Co., and Rosenberg Bros., the firms, whom, we believe, are responsible for the bringing of this suit, 20,000 tons of raisins at a price that will net them $5.06 a ton if sold at our price. It is also agreed in this stipulation that we will sell to the California Packing Corporation a like amount of raisins; that we will do away with selling "firm at opening" and "guaranteeing against our own decline," but this in no way changes matters because we were already under contract with the California Packing corporation for that amount of raisins, and we had by letter to the trade, done away with the practice of selling "firm at opening" and "guaranteeing against our own decline."

"Another matter covered in this stipulation is that our option in the growers' contracts to purchase the crops of 1921, 1922 and 1923 shall not be exercised during the time that this trial is pending, but as this option does not expire until April 1, 1921, and the case will undoubtedly come to trial either in November or February this point is not material and we would not have exercised it until April of next year at any rate.

Cost Growers $100,000

"The stipulation further provides that, the grower who was coerced into signing his contract should be released, but as long as practically all the growers have made affidavit that they were not coerced, this fact is unimportant. As we had already, by advertisement and letters, notified every grower that he would be released on the condition that he make an affidavit to the effect that he had been coerced, it is extremely important that every grower now will make that contention, so that the only thing of any consequence that we have conceded is the sale of 20,000 tons of raisins to the above mentioned firms at a price that will cost the raisin growers of this district $100,000, or approximately $5 a ton against their delivery, and in lieu of this the attorney-general's office has agreed that the restraining order asked for in Judge Bledsoe's court would be dismissed.

"A statement given out in Los Angeles to the effect that by this agreement 60,000 tons would be released, is not correct, as the 20,000 tons sold to the California Packing Corporation are the same raisins sold to them under a former contract, and the balance of the 60,000 tons was already controlled by the independent packers and had been sold to the trade at 3c above our price.

"The net result of this compromise is that the independent packers are to have 20,000 tons of raisins on which they will make $100,000; the consumers of the country, in whose interests the suit was ostensibly brought, have not gained a single dollar; the California Associated Raisin Company has lost $100,000 in money and $1,000,000 worth of pride, but had the injunction been granted the Associated Raisin growers would have undoubtedly lost $25,000,000 in money and many million dollars worth of pride. Confronted with this choice, we chose the lesser evil.

Have Right to Manufacture

"The thing of importance is that we have not established a precedent that will need to be followed in other years, and that our contention today is exactly the same as it was before the compromise—that we have a right to manufacture and sell our own product, either in part or its entirety, being guided alone by the question of whether or not it is better to sell certain goods to our competitors or pack them under our own brand. In the last few years we have been pursuing the policy of packing all first class goods under our own brands and at times selling the damaged or poorer goods to some of our competitors and this is the policy we expect to pursue on other crops in future years, as we believe that when the case is tried on its merits the courts will say that we are under obligation to sell our raw product to our competitors, and this is the point that we consider absolutely fundamental.

"Judging by the experience of the old association, we do not believe it is possible for any organization which does not control its own marketing to exist for a long length of time. We are spending over a half million dollars a year in advertising, and believe this is absolutely necessary to keep up with the increasing production, and if continued the consumption of raisins can be increased in the next ten years to double our present production, and as a result untold wealth will be brought to this state. We do not believe that advertising can be done to advantage if it is done in the hit-or-miss fashion of advertising everybody's raisins without having any control over the brand. We believe it is of vital importance, if the advertising is to be continued, that the people who pay for it should own their own brand and manufacture their own raisins, for it certainly would not avail much to spend a half million dollars a year to advertise the Sun-Maid brand of raisins if they all went out under a hundred different brands belonging to our competitors who contribute nothing toward the advertising.

Growers' Rights to Sell.

"Mr. Preston, in a special interview in the morning Republican, says that their fight is to see that the growers have a right to sell to whom they please, and it hardly seems necessary that there should be all this fight over that point when it is conceded by all parties. The packers whom Mr. Presto represents have been doing business in this community for thirty years; the California Associated Raisin Co. has been doing business for seven years; and two years ago, after an experience of twenty-five years with these firms and five years with the Associated Raisin Co., when every grower in the district had a perfect right to do as Mr. Preston suggests eighty-eight per cent of the growers pleased to sell to us and fourteen per cent pleased to sell to the aforesaid packers, and since that seven growers, who signed contracts with us, have claimed that they did so under an undue influence and have been released so that evidently eighty-eight per cent of the growers [illegible] seven growers are doing as they please when they deliver to us, and even if they have since changed their minds we believe that a contract is sacred and should be lived up to until it expires even if its provisions seem irksome to the people who signed it, so that as far as we are concerned we expect to enforce these contracts in the future as we have in the past regardless of Mr. Preston's opinion.

Only One Point Difference.

"Reduced to its final analysis there is only one point of difference between the California Associated Raisin Co. and the independent packers—they profess to be grieved because we have taken advantage of the consumer and in order to prove their sincerity have sold their own raisins at a higher price, they also profess to be interested in the question of whether or not we "guarantee against our own decline" and sell "firm at opening" and they pretend to be interested in the welfare of the jobbers who demands that we pack our goods in their private cartons that they may be further enriched at the expense of the growers.

"There is also much ado about the fact that a few merchants and bankers own some stock in this company, and they would have you believe that if we were organized on a strictly co-operative and non-profit basis our troubles would be at an end, and as evidence of their sincerity on this point it is only necessary to call your attention to the fact that Mr. John Preston is the attorney who has brought suit against the Milk Producers of this state, who are organized on a non-profit basis; but, as a matter of fact, as proven by the compromise just made at Los Angeles, these men are not at all interested in any of these things, but are interested solely in seeing that we are forced to sell our raw product to them that they may become the selling agents.

"Stripped of all camouflage this whole controversy is reduced to this simple proposition—are we or are we not, under the laws of this country, under obligation to sell our raw product in the sweat box, or have we the right to manufacture and sell it ourselves under our own brand? This point is so vital, as we see it, to the future welfare of the raisin and dried fruit industries of this state that we propose to fight either until we find that under the laws of this country we do have this right, or, failing in this, we propose to fight until the laws are so amended that the raisin and fruit growers of California can do what every other person in the country is doing—pool their interests for their own advantage. This compromise in Los Angeles has in no way dampened our ardor, and our policy today is exactly the same as it was a week ago—that we do not intend to sell our raw product to the packers until the last court in the land has decided that we are under obligation to do so. If, at that time, it seems feasible to run an organization to the terms suggested by Mr. Preston we will do so, but until then we will run it according to our own judgment.

"And, finally, this is but a continuation of the same old fight and the question is whether or not the packers who now, through the pathetic voice of John Preston, plead for the right to live, and who, for years, sacrificed the industry for their own selfish advantage, denying the growers the same right to live, because of their self-proclaimed superior ability, are to be constituted the divinely appointed selling and manufacturing agents for all time to come of the raisins and dried fruits of this state. Our answer to this question is that this right is not a divine one, but one that must be determined by the growers themselves and so far as we are concerned we are willing to leave the question in their hands and abide by their decision, as Mr. Preston says, "let the growers sell to whom they please." The question of whether or not we sell the packers a few thousand tons of raisins in itself is unimportant, but the question of whether or not we have to sell these raisins is all-important and determines, in the end, the question of whether or not a co-operative organization is worth while, for as we have said many times before, whoever controls the selling of our product controls the destiny of the raisin growers.
